SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—In a scene of wildest enthusiasm the Thomas car, the leader in the Paris Matin-NEW YORK TIMES race from New York to Paris, this afternoon finished its remarkable run across the continent. Never have sportsmen had a greater triumph than was the portion of the American crew, beginning this morning and ending when the car, with Harold Brinker, George Scheuster, and the others, made its way slowly up Market Street at 4:30 o'clock through a jam of people who almost defied the efforts of the police to control them.

San Franciscans had waited with impatience for several days for the coming of the car. Crowds tramped the streets last night seeking news of the coming of the American racer, and did not go home until a late hour, when it was learned that the Thomas had lost its way in a swamp near Los Banos, and would not arrive until to-day. The crowds were out again this morning and the streets through which the car was scheduled to pass were filled for hours before it was due. The car bulletins and extras issued by the newspapers were eagerly scanned for news of its progress. Thousands of persons, unable to wait, made their way across the bay to cheer on the racers at Oakland.

The last day's run from Los Banos, more than 100 miles south of San Francisco, was one of the best in the journey of the machine. It was not marred by the slightest accident and parts of the distance over the beautiful boulevards of Alameda County were covered at the rate of more than forty miles an hour. Some of the smaller cars were unable to keep up the stiff pace set by the racer.

There was a large procession of cars from San José for the whole fifty miles to Oakland, and then across the bay to San Francisco. In Oakland the main street was so crowded that the Thomas car could proceed only with the greatest difficulty. More than once it was compelled to stop, while hundreds of enthusiasts blocked its path and insisted upon shaking hands with the American crew. Hundreds more, who could not get near, yelled wildly in their enthusiasm.

This scene, however, was far outdone in San Francisco.

The streets for blocks from the ferry up Market Street were absolutely jammed by cheering throngs. The scores of automobiles that followed every move of the racers kept their horns blowing and whistles in factories made a din.

Every one of the cars was decorated with flags and bunting, and the procession up the big wide street, headed by the official car of the Automobile Club of California, made a great spectacle. Buildings all along the way were gayly decorated with American flags.

The car will be thoroughly overhauled here and will be shipped to Seattle in time to take the boat to Valdez, Alaska, which sails April 1.

George Scheuster, who will take charge of the car here and drive it to Paris, said that he expected to find the rivers of Alaska frozen so that he might drive along them. If this did not prove to be the case, he believed it would be very difficult to make any progress until the Fall.

THOMAS CAR'S FINE FEAT.

Even Under Adverse Conditions It Is Not Far Behind the Record.

The record of the Thomas car from New York to San Francisco was a remarkable feat. Many skeptics declared when the New York to Paris racers started out from New York in the dead of Winter that none of them would get across Wyoming until Summer, some that they would not reach Chicago, and a few that they could not cross New York State. The Thomas car spent five days in New York, reached Chicago on the fourteenth day after fighting its way through the worst blizzard that Indiana has seen in years, arrived in Omaha in six days from Chicago, passed Cheyenne in four days, crossed Wyoming in six days, and ran into San Francisco in eight days from Ogden, including a 900-mile detour to the south that brought the total distance across the country up to 3,832 miles.

The total time elapsed in transit across the country was 41 days 8 hours and 15 minutes. This compares very favorably with the best record across the country. In August, 1904, L. L. Whitman and C. S. Carris started from San Francisco in a Franklin car and arrived in New York in 32 days 23 hours and 40 minutes. This time was made over the direct route across the Sierra Nevadas under the best weather conditions in the Summer time, and is still considered the best time ever made by a motor car.

Twice in 1906, under different conditions, the time was bettered, but in each case the car used shifts of drivers, with one set of men traveling by day and another by night, the relief proceeding by train. In this way the cars were kept going practically twenty-four hours a day, and the Franklin car made the distance in 15 days 2 hours and 10 minutes, and the Buick in 24 days 8 hours and 45 minutes. The only time the country was crossed in Winter was in 1904, by Megargel, when more than 200 days were taken.

The Thomas car was a little less than ten days longer than the record time in crossing the country, taking an 800-mile longer route, making the trip in Winter, and, because of the long distance to be traversed after leaving America, laying up a day at Buffalo, two days in Chicago, a day at Omaha, a day in Cheyenne, and

FIRE IN DRURY LANE THEATRE

Famous Playhouse in London Damaged in Early Morning Blaze.

LONDON, March 25.—Drury Lane Theatre, one of the most famous in London, was badly damaged by fire early this morning.

The flames were first discovered about 4 o'clock in the morning bursting from the windows of the building. The seructure burned fiercely despite all the efforts of the fire brigade.

There was no loss of life. The theatre had been closed since the pantomime season ended. It would have been reopened on April 18. The origin of the fire is unknown.

According to later reports, the fire was less serious than at first supposed. The stage and scenery were entirely destroyed, but the caretakers succeeded in lowering the fireproof curtain, and in this way the auditorium was saved from complete destruction.

Drury Lane Theatre was first built under royal patent in 1663 by Thomas Killigrew, who directed what was known as the King's Company of Stageplayers. The house was originally called the Theatre Royal. It burned down in 1672, and was rebuilt in 1674 from designs by Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's Cathedral.

In 1682 the King's Company united with a rival band of players known as the Duke's Company. All went well for twelve years, when Betterton and other members of the company seceded and went to Lincoln's Inn Fields. The theatre went to the bad, and in 1790 closed its doors, owing to bad management.

Colley Cibber a short time after took the management of the place, and once more prosperity smiled on "Old Drury." Then David Garrick came into his own, and an extraordinary run of prosperity met the efforts of this famous actor-manager. The stars with Garrick were "Peg" Woffington and "Kitty" Clive. In 1791 the old building made way for a new structure, which was opened three years later under the management of Sheridan. In 1809 it was destroyed by fire.

Three years later, in 1812, the present structure was completed. It at once renewed its old popularity with Kean as the star. Since that time, however, the famous theatre has suffered a number of vicissitudes. With the advent of the late Sir Augustus Harris it found a streak of luck, since which there has been no turning back.

Sir Augustus made it famous as the home of pantomime.

It was only three or four years ago that the London County Council peremptorily demanded certain radical alterations at a cost of $75,000 with a view to making it safer. It is certain that was it not the King's house, it would have been condemned and pulled down years ago.

The pantomime, "Babes in the Wood," had been running from Christmas time till it closed.

FREER DIVORCE IN FRANCE.

Bill Passes Parliament Converting Separation Decrees Into Divorces.

PARIS, March 24.—The Senate, by an overwhelming majority, has concurred in the bill recently passed by the Chamber of Deputies, to automatically convert a decree of separation into a divorce at the end of three years when either party to the separation requests it.

The constantly growing number of divorces in France since the restoration of the divorce law in 1886 has been the subject of an intensely interesting and bitter controversy recently. Paul Bourget, as the champion of the French traditions of indissoluble union, brought it to a head with his problem play, "A Divorce," in which he portrayed the wreck following in the wake of the separation of parents. The dispute took wide range in the newspapers, and a referendum was held at the theatre where the play was given. A statement attributed to M. Briand, now Minister of Justice, in favor of "trial marriages," but which the Minister repudiated, added piquancy to the controversy.

Men and women, married, unmarried, and divorced, old and young, came forward and told pathetic stories of life tragedies in support of their respective contentions. In the end, however, the friends of greater freedom of union and disunion had the better of it in Parliament, the referendum, and the public prints.

M. Bourget, while reaffirming his irreconcilable opposition to the principle of divorce, says he is not surprised either at the Senate's action or the expression of public opinion.

"As a student of moral science," said he, "I long ago foresaw what France was coming to. We are hurrying toward 'free union.' France, as demonstrated by the polemic which has just closed, is divided into two camps—one, the feebler, opposes divorce; the other, the stronger, favors free union. The new law voted by the Senate is the first step, for it frankly establishes divorce upon the demand of husband or wife—a principle not only contrary to morality but contrary to the rules of society. As a Frenchman, I am profoundly grieved to witness this further step into the abyss."

"NIGHT RIDING" MAY STOP.

Tobacco Growers Said to Have Made Peace with the American Company.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, March 24.—It was reported here to-day that an end to "night riding" in the Kentucky tobacco war had been brought about through a formal agreement between the American Tobacco Company and the Executive Committee of the Society of Equity in a conference at Winchester, Ky., yesterday.

It was said that the company would buy the 1906 and 1907 crops at 16 and 18 cents a pound, respectively. The committee was sworn to secrecy, and the report has been officially denied, but is nevertheless declared to be authentic.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 24.—The failure on the part of the State authorities to run down perpetrators of outrages committed by "night riders" culminated today in a direct appeal to the President for Federal interference in Kentucky. A petition prepared by leading men of Lexington and Central Kentucky is being put into circulation. The petitioners are aware that the President can take no action unless the Governor so requests, but they say it is their purpose by this means to bring the two Executives together in the matter.

ALDRICH TO FORCE VOTE ON BILL TO-DAY

La Follette Declares War and Announces He Will Object to Unanimous Consent.

SAYS IT ENCOURAGES PANICS

Wisconsin Senator Reduces His List of 100 Dominators of Nation's Business to 14 He Calls Supreme.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Senator Aldrich will to-morrow attempt to force his currency measure through its last legislative stages to a vote. He gave notice to-day, after Senator La Follette had concluded an arraignment of the measure, that he would call up the bill after the routine business was out of the way, and press it to final considerations, to the exclusion of all other legislation.

The open breach in the Republican ranks came when La Follette objected to unanimous consent to the Aldrich programme. This programme contemplated the consideration of amendments to-morrow and part of Thursday, pledging the Senate to vote on that day. La Follette threw off all disguise and declared war in the open, expressing his contempt for the power of the majority organization.

"I announced on the floor of this Chamber some time ago," he said emphatically, "that I never would agree again to any unanimous consent for the purpose of rushing important legislation through. This was accomplished on the rate bill and my time was foreclosed. If I can prevent it such a condition never will happen again."

It was pointed out to La Follette that he was violating all Senate tradition, but he was not to be moved. Earlier in the day he had knocked some of the old veneer off Senate tradition by mentioning the name of Chauncey M. Depew, a fellow Senator, and present at the time, as one of the money barons who rule the country; he also made mention of a brother of another Senator, Simon Guggenheim, who also was present.

Beveridge a Peacemaker.

Beveridge sought to smooth over the situation. When Beveridge, with a "bless-you-my-children" expression, sat down, it was to be seen that La Follette was considerably mollified. His pompadour did not bristle so aggressively. There was an atmosphere of near-peace until Senator Teller rose.

"After having listened to the remarkable speech of the Senator from Wisconsin," he said, "I judge he will introduce numerous amendments, and it will take time to call the roll and vote them down, as many of them will be voted down. The Senator appears to believe this bill is intended to reform the financial system, but he is alone in this, for every one else knows this is merely an emergency measure."

La Follette, in Senatorial language, intimated that he would attend to his own business and be guided by his own intelligence, and served notice on Teller and the Senate generally that he would do as he pleased. Teller's disclaimer did not restore harmony.

Senator Aldrich eventually put an end to the extended discussion by declaring with emphasis that to-morrow, just as soon as the morning business was cleared away, he would insist that the Currency bill be taken up and considered, to the exclusion of all other business until a vote is had. The leaders believe that this vote will be reached Thursday evening.

Would Bring Panics About.

La Follette said: "This measure is framed altogether in the interests of those banks that are engaged in speculation and in dangerous finance.

"The bill, furthermore, will encourage panics instead of preventing them. It will put a five-hundred-million-dollar premium on panic, for it will provide money for those financial institutions that would profit heavily from such panics."

The Senator declared that the differences existing between the Standard Oil and the Morgan interests were no longer apparent; that feuds had been laid aside, and that the inevitable consolidation of the financial power of the country was under way. Morgan's picture, he said, looked down from the wall of Rockefeller's private office at 26 Broadway.

La Follette also revised his list of 100 men who, he asserted earlier in his address, dominate the business and the financial interests of the United States. These he reduced to fourteen, whom he designated as lieutenants of Rockefeller and Morgan and whose acts "were the results of orders from men higher up."

The Rulers of the Country.

In this list of fourteen he placed the names of W. K. Vanderbilt, August Belmont, Frederick Weyerhauser, Henry C. Frick, J. Ogden Armour, George J. Gould, Jacob Schiff, E. H. Harriman, Thomas F. Ryan, Louis F. Swift, John Jacob Astor, James Speyer, James J. Hill, and W. H. Moore.

He had two other groups, each lesser than the "big fourteen" in importance, but the first outranking the second. In the first he placed J. H. Post, J. B. Duke, D. Guggenheim, G. A. Peabody, J. F. Dryden, and others. The second contained the names of Senator Depew, G. W. Perkins, James B. Forgan, John H. Converse, Victor Morawetz, Charles M. Schwab, Paul Morton, and Levi P. Morton.

"There are eight men in this country who, through their connection with the financial interests," he said, "control two-thirds of all the railroad mileage of the United States. These men have a taxing power greater than the taxing power of Congress. They levy each year $2,000,000,000 on the American people, as against $700,000,000 levied by the Government."

SAVED BY A VEGETABLE DIET.

Col. F. N. Lawrence's Recovery Attributed to His Abstinence from Meat.

A vegetarian diet is said to have saved the life of Col. Frederic N. Lawrence, 74 years old, who is recovering from a serious attack of pneumonia at his apartments in the Croisic, Manhattan. Yesterday he was pronounced out of danger by Dr. Harris A. Houghton of Bayside, L. I., who says that Col. Lawrence owes his remarkable recovery to the fact that he became a vegetarian twenty years ago, and has since lived a strictly vegetarian life.

BIG EXPLOSION IN JERSEY.

Said to be in Smokeless Powder Works—Not New Railroad Bridge.

A heavy explosion shook South Amboy, N. J., and the country for miles around just before midnight last night. The concussion broke panes of glass in the old shanties on the old bridge of the New York & Long Branch Railroad across the Raritan River.

At first it was thought that the explosion was dynamite on the new stone and steel bridge which is building near by the old crossing of the river. It was soon learned, however, that it had occurred at some distance from there.

Residents of South Amboy believed early this morning that the explosion had been in the works of the International Smokeless Powder Company, located on the Raritan River between South Amboy and Sayreville, in a settlement known as Parlin. No word reached other towns from this place, and it was impossible to verify the rumor or learn if any one had been hurt.

REICHSTAG STRIKE ENDS.

Journalists Appeased by an Apology by the Centrist Leader.

BERLIN, March 24.—The strike of the Reichstag journalists, which began on Thursday last, was ended this evening.

Under pressure from various party leaders, Herr Groeber, the Centre leader, who had called the journalists "swine" because they jeered at a statement used by a member to the effect that "negroes also had immortal souls," read a statement at the ending of the day's sitting expressing his apologies. The journalists afterward voted to return to work on Thursday.

During the course of the strike not a line has been published here on the proceedings in the Reichstag, and as a result a large number of the members declined to deliver speeches, thus greatly impeding the work of the House.

OUST THE MUSICAL UNION.

Theatre Managers Vote to Draw Orchestras from New Organization.

At the meeting of the Theatre Managers' Association yesterday at the Hotel Astor the theatrical men took a decided stand against the new demands made upon them by the Musical Mutual Protective Union. Every important theatre, with the exception of the two Belasco houses and the Astor, was represented, and the action was unanimous.

At the opening of the meeting the new regulations and price list submitted by the Musical Union was read. The association then unanimously resolved not to accept the demands of the union, as the conditions were detrimental to the business interests of the theatres, and to notify all orchestra players that existing contracts would not be continued after the end of the current season.

The managers also went one step further and resolved that next season all players should be obtained through the new National Association of Theatrical Musicians, an association incorporated only a few days ago, which already has 50 0applications for membership and will probably be affiliated with the so-called International Union.

CHARGES LIBEL IN SERMON.

Husband Causes Arrest of Minister for Remarks at Wife's Funeral.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Penn., March 24.—Charging him with making libelous remarks at the funeral of his wife, Jeremiah Werner this afternoon had the Rev. M. H. Stettler arrested. The accused gave bail in $500 for a hearing on April 20.

At the funeral of Mrs. Werner, held at Mohnton in St. John's Lutheran Church, the Rev. Mr. Stettler preached the sermon. It is alleged that Mr. Stettler said in the pulpit that the husband knocked his wife down a week before she took to her bed; that she did not have shoes or clothing that were fit to wear, and for that reason she did not frequent church as often as the other sisters of the congregation. Mr. Stettler declared, it is charged, that the husband sat unmoved with no feeling in the presence of the body of his helpmeet.

Werner denies the charges of cruelty and says that he will also begin a suit for damages for slander. The Rev. Mr. Stettler is one of the best-known clergymen in the Pennsylvania Lutheran ministry.

OPPOSE CRUCIFIX IN CHURCH.

Episcopal Rector Removes Emblem, but Says He Will Put It Back.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 24.—Because the Rev. Charles S. Strombom, who recently succeeded the Rev. Robert Fulton Crary as rector of the Church of the Holy Comforter, one of the leading Episcopal churches of this city, placed a large bronze crucifix in the chancel of the church, some of the members of the congregation opposed the movement so vigorously that the rector removed the crucifix and placed it in a side room out of sight of the congregation.

The objection to the emblem was that it was decidedly high church. When the young rector heard this he promptly preached a sermon on the meaning of the crucifix, and later announced that although he had taken down the crucifix, the removal is only temporary, and that it will be placed over his pulpit and kept there before long.

WANTED: 2,500 NEW NAMES.

Queens Needs Them for Its Streets, but Bars Mythological Ones.

In order to avoid duplication of street names, the engineering department of the Borough of Queens wants 2,500 new names for streets in that borough which are at present undergoing the process of being remapped.

That there is danger of allowing employes of the topographical department a free hand in the matter was illustrated in the new map of the old town of Newtown, now the Second Ward of Queens, where all the gods and goddesses of ancient mythology have been let loose in the streets of that section, much to the horror of the churchgoing people. Some of them live on Pluto Street, Dido Avenue, and highways with similar names.

Chief Engineer Robert Crowell, who has taken charge of the renaming of the streets, would like the citizens of the districts to suggest a way out of the trouble.

Wreck Fatally Injures Three.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 24.—Twenty persons were injured, three fatally, in a head-on collision between a Blue Grass special passenger train on the Queen & Crescent Railroad and a special freight train at Curdville Crossing, in Mercer County, early to-day.

MRS. A. G. VANDERBILT MOVES TO TUXEDO

Ships Household Effects, Dogs, and Little Son's Toys from Newport.

OAKLAND FARM CLOSED

Mr. Vanderbilt Will Spend Summer in London, Driving the Coach Venture Between That City and Brighton.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 24.—Newport people are considerably stirred up to-day over the departure of Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt with her son, Master William Vanderbilt; their pet dogs, maids, and the boy's toys for Tuxedo Park, accompanied by Miss Pauline Leroy French and her fiancée, Samuel Wagstaff.

For several days the big wagons of Oakland Farm, which are used to carry hay and grain stuffs have been carting large and small packages, boxes and barrels, and encased pictures to the express office, each marked "Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mr. Amos Tuck French Cottage, Tuxedo Park, N. Y." This is the home of Mrs. Vanderbilt's brother.

In all, about eight wagon loads of packages, boxes, and crates have been shipped away. How long Mrs. Vanderbilt intends to remain at Tuxedo cannot be learned here. So far as known, Mr. Vanderbilt has not been at Oakland Farm for a month or more, having recently returned from London, where he will drive the coach Venture as a public coach this Spring between London and Brighton.

Later he will be one of the judges at the international horse show at London, where his horses won many trophies last year, which are in the trophy room of the training ring at Oakland Farm.

It is reported here to-night that Mr. Vanderbilt will arrive at the farm tomorrow to inspect improvements and to select a site for the stable and headquarters for his fire department apparatus.

It is expected that his visit will be short, as he has taken a house in London. For the first time in years, Oakland Farm is practically closed, and this means much to Newport socially and financially. Mrs. Vanderbilt will naturally return to Newport for the wedding of her niece, Miss French, who will marry Samuel Wagstaff in St. John's Church at noon May 5.

The wedding reception and breakfast will be held at Harbourview, the Newport home of Mrs. F. O. French, Mrs. Vanderbilt's mother, who is returning from Europe for the first time in several years.

The people of Newport feel deeply the leaving of Mrs. Vanderbilt, whose kindness to them has been marked.

The silverware and other belongings which had been in the vaults of the Aquidneck National Bank for some time were removed Saturday from Oakland Farm.

Special to The New York Times.

TUXEDO, March 24.—Amos T. French spent a part of to-day at Tucks Eden, his beautiful home here, leaving for New York this afternoon. Tucks Eden was vacant last Summer, and Mr. French has been in it very little this Winter. The servants are getting the place ready for occupants, who will come in to-day or to-morrow.

A great lot of baggage came in from Newport to-day, and was sent up to Tucks Eden. It is understood that Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt will spend some time here. Tuxedo will welcome this addition to the colony.

Mr. Samuel Wagstaff accompanied Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt and party from Newport as far as this city, and then went to his father's home at Babylon, L. I. Mrs. Vanderbilt and her niece did not go to the Plaza or to the old Vanderbilt apartments in Madison Avenue. A close friend of the family said last night that he believed they had gone out of town for a few days pending the arrival of their effects at Tuxedo.

Mr. Vanderbilt has been in the city for some time, but will return to London at an early date. He was at the Plaza yesterday.

MELLEN GOING TO U. P.?

Boston Hears He Will Succeed Harriman, Who Will Resign Presidency.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 24.—It was stated on good authority to-day that President Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Road will soon leave that company to become associated with the Union Pacific, and that President Tuttle of the Boston & Maine will head the merged lines in New England.

Both Mr. Mellen and Mr. Tuttle profess to know nothing about such an arrangement.

The Boston News Bureau says to-day: "For some time rumors have been rife of Morgan control in Union Pacific. It is being whispered that E. H. Harriman will retire as President and will be elected Chairman of the Board of Directors. It is said that Charles S. Mellen will succeed E. H. Harriman as President."

KILLING WAS JUSTIFIED.

Chicago Police Chief Exonerated for Shooting Anarchist Assailant.

CHICAGO, March 24.—A Coroner's jury to-night declared Chief of Police George M. Shippy and J. F. Foley, his driver, to have been justified in killing Lazarus Averbuch, the young Russian, who attacked the Chief in his home recently.

More than a score of witnesses were examined, chief among whom were Olga Averbuch, sister of the dead man; Chief Shippy himself, his son, Harry, who is recovering from a serious wound in the chest received in the affray, and other members of the Chief's household.

HER BELT FROM LICENSE FEE.

Mr. Morrison Buys Back Pennies His Fiancee Paid for Permit to Wed.

Marguerita Emilie Snow, who is about to be married, is to have a new belt made entirely of 1908 pennies. Miss Snow and Abraham Cressy Morrison of Chicago, whom she is to marry, went to the City Hall yesterday to get a license. When the time came to pay for the document Miss Snow proffered a package of pennies. She said to the Clerk:

"Abraham will buy these back from you, and then he is going to have them made into a belt for me."

Mr. Morrison paid a silver dollar for the pennies.

LEOPOLD SERIOUSLY ILL.

Keeps to His Rooms and Is Visited Constantly by Physicians.

BRUSSELS, March 24.—It is reported that the indisposition from which King Leopold has been suffering for some time past has taken a serious turn.

This report is borne out by the fact that the King keeps to his rooms and that his physician is visiting him twice daily.

TO OPERATE ON SHERMAN.

New York Congressman Taken to Hospital in Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Representative J. S. Sherman of New York was removed to Garfield Hospital at a late hour to-night. He has been ill for some weeks, and it is feared an operation is imperative.

The New York member had two severe chills to-day and his condition to-night alarmed his physicians, who ordered his removal.

UTICA, N. Y., March 24.—Congressman Sherman's family physician, Dr. F. H. Peck, was summoned to Washington tonight. The Congressman's sons, Sherrill and Thomas M. Sherman, went with him.

The advices here are that the patient's condition is very serious, but no immediate danger is apprehended.

RHODES SCHOLAR KILLED.

Ralph C. Many Washed Off the Rocks at Cornwall.

OXFORD, England, March 24.—Ralph C. Many, a Rhodes scholar from New Orleans, La., at Oxford, was washed off the rocks and drowned at Port Isaac, Cornwall, to-day.

Ralph C. Many obtained his appointment to Oxford in 1905. He was a student at Queens. A. K. Read, the 1904 Rhodes scholar from Louisiana, died in March, 1906, from meningitis.

ROOSEVELT TO RECONSIDER?

Lodge's Son-in-Law Wants Delegates Free to Act if He Does.

Special to The New York Times.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., March 24.—In a political speech here to-night Congressman A. P. Gordon, Senator Lodge's son-in-law, said:

"I am in favor of Taft resolutions at all conventions, but I will not support any delegates who will stand on any platform which will prevent their voting for Roosevelt in case he should be willing to reconsider."

DR. T. J. BACKUS DEAD.

President of Packer Institute Expires in Brooklyn.

Dr. Truman J. Backus, for many years President of the Packer Collegiate Institute in Brooklyn, died early this morning at his home, 57 Livingston Street, Brooklyn. Dr. Backus had been ill for nearly a month with a complication of diseases. He started life when a youth as a reporter on THE TIMES.

CIGARETTES HARM SOLDIERS.

British Commanders Disquieted by Growth of the Smoking Habit.

LONDON, March 24.—The growth of cigarette smoking in the British Army is beginning to disquiet the higher officers, whose reports indicate that the health of the men is being seriously impaired.

Lieut. Gen. Grenfell, Commander in Chief of the forces in Ireland, is the first to take action. He has just issued an order to the troops of his command calling attention to the evils which must inevitably follow such excess and appealing for "earnest and early action to combat what is gradually but greatly affecting the efficiency of the men."

40 HURT IN TROLLEY SMASH.

Car Left Rails and Demolished Front of Two-Story Building.

DETROIT, March 24.—Over twenty persons were injured this afternoon when an Interurban car on the Ann Arbor branch of the Detroit United Railway bound into the city from Jackson, Mich., was derailed by defective rails and plowed across the brick pavement into a store building.

The car was wrecked, and the front of the two-story building was demolished. Nearly twenty more received minor injuries, which were dressed at the scene of the accident. Two of the injured are reported to-night to be in a serious condition.

FIFTH AV. HOTEL'S LAST DAYS.

Work of Destroying Famous House Will Begin on April 4.

The Fifth Avenue Hotel will, to all intents and purposes, cease to exist on April 4 next. A notice was posted in the lobby of the hostelry last night to the effect that on that date the house would discontinue business. The building is to be torn down and replaced by a large business structure. The tenants in the stores in Broadway will probably stay in possession until August, when their leases expire, but in the mean time the demolition of the building will be begun in the rear.

SCHWAB SWEARS OFF TAXES.

Steel Man Proves That His Debts Exceed Value of His Personalty.

It was a financial loss to the City of New York when Charles M. Schwab, the steel man, moved within the city limits. Mr. Schwab himself proved this to the satisfaction of the Tax Commissioners yesterday when he appeared to swear off his personal taxes.

Last year the Assessors found that Mr. Schwab did not live in the city, and they taxed him, as a non-resident, on property valued at $429,000. He paid the tax. This year the Assessors assumed that it would be correct to pursue the same course, which they did.

When Mr. Schwab visited the Hall of Records yesterday he explained that instead of being a non-resident, he was really a resident of the city on the first Monday in January, and offered to stand examination as a resident.

When the examination was concluded it appeared that Mr. Schwab's debts represent a larger sum than does the value of his personal property in this city. Under the law, therefore, Mr. Schwab does not have to pay any personal taxes. As a non-resident his debts did not have to be taken into consideration.

BANKER PATI GONE, DEPOSITS ARE MISSING

"My Life Threatened—I Own 65 Houses and Can Pay in Full," Notice on Door.

ITALIANS RUSH FOR MONEY.

Pati Borrowed $17,000 from Lawyer—Deposits Had Amounted to $1,500,000—Two Other Banks Suspend.

Pasquale Pati, banker and broker, in the Italian quarter of this city, has disappeared with his family, leaving a notice posted on the front door of his banking house at 240 Elizabeth Street, saying that he had fled fearing assassination, after having received many threatening letters.

His bank is closed and with him has apparently gone all the money which had been on deposit there. The banker's friends say that he was a marked man, and that the Black Hand is responsible for his flight.

The banking house remained closed all day yesterday, while thousands of excited depositors clamored outside and choked the street for a block or more. The notice was posted on the door of the bank, signed by Pasquale Pati and his eldest son, Salvatore, and said that they had disappeared for two weeks only, and assured the depositors that they would all be paid when the bank reopens.

Runs began on most of the Italian banks throughout the city, and before the day was over two were obliged to suspend payment until the excitement is over.

F. Acretelli & Son, at 239 Elizabeth Street, was one of these, and the other was De Chicchio & Luciano, at 229 Elizabeth Street. All three are private concerns.

Seven thousand Italians were depositors in Pati's little bank in Elizabeth Street. It had been Pati's custom to expose several thousand dollars in cash in the front windows of the place. One $10,000 bill was in this exhibit, which was guarded by heavy iron bars and a burglar alarm netting of steel.

His Home Deserted.

Pati, his wife, his son Salvatore, another son, Albert, and his two sons-in-law, Salvatore De Nofrio and Louis Cartier, disappeared early yesterday. The imposing country house of the Patis in Ocean Parkway, Brooklyn, is deserted, except for a caretaker. The books of the banking house, with the exception of the journal, have disappeared, and not a cent in cash could be found in the place yesterday by the head bookkeeper, José Sparanza.

Pati was acquitted on Monday by a Coroner's jury of the murder of Francesco Pelletro, who, three weeks ago, invaded the banking house and, drawing a revolver, threatened to kill Pati and his wife unless they gave him a large sum of money. But this was not the most recent trouble with Black Hand agents that Pati had, according to his friends. His relatives say that an attempt was made on Sunday night to burn his house in Ocean Parkway, and two cans of benzine and some oil-soaked rags were left on the front porch of the Pati homestead.

Six weeks ago a bomb exploded in front of the Pati banking house, and the heavy glass window in front was broken, but the money exhibit inside, including the $10,000 bill, was unharmed. It was after this explosion that Pati removed the money exhibit from the window.

Soon after the explosion Pati received a Black Hand letter saying that the bomb was a warning for him either to give up a large sum of money or die. The killing of Pelletro did not stop the flood of Black Hand letters, and they grew even more threatening than before. Now it was vengeance that was talked.

Family in Terror.

Pati began to grow frightened. His wife, too, was in terror, and on Monday at the inquest was bordering on nervous prostration. Late Monday afternoon when Pati had been acquitted, three men entered his banking house and demanded money. He refused. They then told him they intended to kill him and his whole family.

"And as for you," said one of the three, "you will be killed and your body will be cut up and put in a barrel."

Pati sent one of his clerks for the police, and the three men disappeared. Pati told the story to the police when they arrived. Lieut. Petrosini, who has been at work several years trying to find the band of Black Hand agents which has been threatening Pati, said yesterday that Pati's disappearance was probably occasioned by fright alone.

Although it was said in last Fall the banking firm of Pati & Sons was supposed to have on deposit about $1,500,000, the greater part of it was the sum that was drawn out after the October crash. Depositors in all parts of the country—for Pati & Sons did a large correspondence business—drew out their savings. The run did not stop until Monday afternoon.

On that day it became noised about Little Italy that Pati's life was in danger and that his place was going to be blown up. Hundreds of men and women gathered about the bank within an hour and demanded their money. In all, $8,800 was paid out before night.

Late Monday night Pati and his family apparently left the place for good. One of Pati's automobiles—he owns four—stood outside the bank until after midnight, while men were bringing out the books and bundles resembling books and satchels. Then the automobile returned and was loaded with a number of packages and went away. That was just before midnight.

Surprise for Bank Clerks.

When the clerks appeared for work yesterday morning they found the following notice in Italian posted on the door:

To my clients: I will suspend payment for two weeks, as I am compelled to leave town, as I have received threatening letters, and people have assured me that my life is in danger. I have no fears of not paying, as, besides having ready cash, I own sixty-five houses in New York, and have in my trust $100,000, and can pay everybody. I will return in two weeks. PASQUALE PATI AND SON, SALVATORE.

The early risers in Elizabeth Street saw this notice and spread the news. Long before breakfast there was a crowd gathering in front of the closed bank. It grew as the hours passed until the greater part of Elizabeth Street between Houston and Prince Streets was a jam of men, women, and children, frantically asking questions of one another or imparting what scanty information they had. The only thing they knew definitely was that Pati and his family had fled, leaving the bank closed.

Police Hard Pressed.

The police had their hands full trying to keep a clear space in front of Pati's bank. The only one allowed to stand in front of the door was a gigantic policeman who was a cousin of the sent banker. He willingly told the story of Pati's disappearance, and said that every dollar of deposits would be returned when Pati came back. Many Italians in the crowd said that the young man was Pati's press agent.

One of the statements he made was that $380,000 had been withdrawn from the Pati banking house since the first of the year, and that the only way to stop the run was to suspend payment temporarily.

Pasquale Pati's sister-in-law, Mrs. Vincention Pati, who conducts a small banking business in Prince Street, near Mulberry Street, said that she knew nothing of her brother-in-law's intention of leaving the city.

"But I am not surprised," she said, "for he told me a few days ago that he feared being killed by the Black Hand agents. He will come back, I am sure, when he is sure of police protection. He owns enough real estate to make good all his debts."

It was learned from another source that Pati recently transferred several of his houses to Racco Verri, a real estate dealer.

Pati has been accredited with owning the titles to sixty-five properties, mostly apartment houses in Manhattan and Brooklyn. The real estate end of Pati's banking business was conducted by his son-in-law, Salvatore de Nofrio, and the books in which the records of this branch of the business are kept are also said to be missing.

Bank Not Incorporated.

Pasquale Pati & Sons was not an incorporated concern, but had been doing business for twelve years or more at the Elizabeth Street address. There was a branch Post Office, Sub-Station No. 78, in the real estate department of the banking house.

Pati, as well as all other bankers in the city in whose houses there were sub-stations, was notified a few days ago by the postal authorities that it would be removed in fifteen days.

Sub-Station No. 78 was closed yesterday, and it is not known how Pati's accounts with the Government stand, as no outsider has yet entered the banking house.

John Palmieri, who was Pati's counsel during the Coroner's investigation of the killing of Pelletro, is hard hit by Pati's disappearance. He did not know of Pati's flight until informed of it by a TIMES reporter. When Mr. Palmieri recovered from his ssurprise he said that he had loaned Pati $17,000 on Monday.

"After Pati was acquitted by the jury he told me he was in terrible shape financially," said Mr. Palmieri. "He said there was a run on the bank and appealed to me to save him. I gave him $17,000, for I knew it would be safe. I certainly did not think he would run away without telling me. He gave me as security for the $17,000 a deed for the houses at 98 and 100 Thompson Street. I believe his bank is solvent and that all those who have deposits there will get their money provided his real estate is not sold at a forced sale. He is a rich man. If he had consulted me I would have told him to stay and face the music."

Mr. Palmieri said that Pati's life insurance policy for $100,000 was taken out in favor of his creditors.

On March 19 Salvatore Pati conveyed the building at 240 Elizabeth Street to his father, who on the same day gave a mortgage to the State Bank to secure notes for $20,000.

When F. Acritelli & Son opened their doors there was a crowd in line, every man and woman with bank book in hand, waiting to withdraw deposits.

For a while the firm met the demands. But at noon the evening editions of two Italian newspapers appeared on the streets. Displayed half way across the front page of each was the announcement of Pati's disappearance and the run on Acritelli and all the other Italian banks.

From every street came more Italians on the run with copies of the newspaper in their hands. Thirty policemen tried to keep the middle of the street clear, but without avail. The crowd in front of Acritelli's grew greater, and the banking house itself was closely packed with excited depositors. Then the firm decided to suspend payment, and those inside were told to go away and return in a few days. The scene in front of De Chiechio & Luciano's banking house was much the same.

SUPPOSED PRINCE KEEPS TO HIS ROOM

"M. Dufresne," at Philadelphia, Still Refuses to Tell if He Is de Sagan.

MME. GOULD IN NEW YORK

Cigarettes Sent by Sagan Servant to Tyler Morses "For S."—Count Boni Will Not Interfere.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—M. Bertrand Dufresne, who is supposed really to be Prince Helle de Sagan, the reported fiancé of Mme. Anna Gould, remained secluded in his room at the Bellevue-Stratford to-day. He refused to see any one who called.

He arose about 9:30 and ordered breakfast, a very simple affair, which was served in his room. Then he called for all the morning newspapers, and said he would receive no callers and was expecting no messages of any sort.

Not long after this, a man, evidently French, appeared at the information desk of the hotel and asked for M. Dufresne. He was asked if he were waiting to see the Prince de Sagan.

"No, I wish only to see M. Dufresne," he said. "I am M. B. Hiram Dansi. I knew him in Paris, but his business, that is private, and I cannot speak of it. I am an artist, and I have been commanded to paint the portrait of Monsieur MacAllister of the Drexel Institute."

A reply was received from the Prince's room to the effect that he was not in. A well-known Philadelphian called soon afterward with a letter of introduction to the Prince, and after this had been presented and an extraordinary delay had occurred, the same reply was sent down.

At 1 o'clock a luncheon was served to M. Dufresne in his room, and the rest of the afternoon, so far as outward appearances were concerned, was devoted by him to resting. At 6:30 o'clock he summoned a page and ordered a simple dinner with champagne. From that time no word was heard from him.

Late in the afternoon Mrs. George J. Gould passed through the city on her way to Hot Springs, Va. About this time a telegram sent to Mr. Dufresne was sent back by him, with the reamrk, "It is not for me." The telegram remained unopened.

Mme. Anna Gould passed yesterday according to her usual routine. At 1 o'clock she drove in an automobile to the Plaza, where she had luncheon with Mrs. George J. Gould, her sister-in-law. Later in the afternoon she went driving in a brougham in Central Park, and last night she dined with her sister, Miss Helen Gould. Mrs. George J. Gould left the Plaza in the afternoon and went to Hot Springs, Va., in the Gould private car. Mr. Gould returned to the hotel late in the day and again refused to discuss the affair.

The mysterious "W. H. Thomsom" who spent Sunday in New York is the Prince, according to several persons who saw him. It was said yesterday that the Prince was recognized in London early on March 13, and this was the day the steamship bearing "Mr. Thomsom" sailed from Liverpool.

BONI NOT TO INTERFERE.

Powerless to Prevent Marriage of Mme. Gould, Says a Relative.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, March 24.—A member of the Castellane family told me to-night that there was not the slightest probability that Count Boni would go to New York or otherwise take cognizance of the reported plan of his former wife, Mme. Anna Gould, to marry Prince Helle de Sagan.

"Count Boni knows that he is quite helpless in the matter," said my informant. "He knows that it would be simply blowing against the wind to go to the United States. He does not like America, and feels that he would receive little sympathy there. Besides, Mme. Gould gave Count Boni a million francs upon the condition that she should not only be permitted to leave France with the children, but also that she should not be disturbed by him."

PARIS, March 24.—Further efforts made to-day to locate Prince Helle de Sagan in Paris have been unavailing. It was learned, however, that a few days ago one of the Prince's servants deposited in the office of a steamship company a box of cigarettes consigned to Mrs. Tyler Morse, Hotel Wyoming, New York. The box was marked on the outside "For S."

SUICIDE IN THE SUBWAY.

Despondent Crockery Dealer Jumps in Front of a Train.

Persons waiting for a Subway train on the downtown platform at Sixty-sixth Street yesterday morning saw a middle-aged man dive from the platform in front of a train as it pulled into the station. Two cars passed over his body, which fell in such wise that the wheels did not touch it. The man's skull was fractured, however, and his back was broken.

Myron Sulzberger of 38 Park Row, one of whose cards was in the man's pocket, identified him as Emil Berger, 45 years old, of 318 East Seventy-ninth Street. He said Berger had been in some trouble, and had not been home on Monday night. He said the man had tried suicide a week ago by inhaling gas.

He had been in the crockery business, and was about to open up a new store.

HEALTH BOARD SUES DOCTOR.

Says He Didn't Report Scarlet Fever Case—He Calls It Hives.

Because the Queens Borough Health Department believes a child had scarlet fever, the department is suing Dr. Herbert F. Noble of Union Avenue, Jamaica, who diagnosed the case as hives, and did not report the case to the Department of Health. Dr. Noble is indignant at the charge, and says he will fight the case.

Grace Conklin, 15 years old, of Hardenbrook Avenue, Jamaica, had a rash that Dr. Noble, who is a prominent homeopathic physician, watched for two days, after which it disappeared. The physician told her parents she had suffered from no contagious disease.

Officers of the Health Department, hearing the girl had had a rash, sent a diagnostician to her home. She was quite well, but he found a slight scaling in the palm of her hand, he says, and pronounced the trouble scarlet fever.

Suit was then instituted against Dr. Noble for $50, the penalty for failure to report a contagious disease.

A. S. WEBB, JR., HEADS LINCOLN TRUST CO.

Directors Celebrate Rapid Recovery from the Effects of Last Fall's Troubles.

ALL LOANS ARE TAKEN UP

Capital Increased to $1,500,000 and Stock Subscribed for—The New President Not Yet 40 Years Old.

Alexander S. Webb, Jr., a son of Gen. Alexander S. Webb, was elected to the Presidency of the Lincoln Trust Company at a special meeting of the Directors held yesterday. Mr. Webb will take office on April 15. He succeeds Frank Tilford. The new President of the Lincoln Trust Company is now Vice President of the New York Trust Company.

Yesterday's meeting and the election of Mr. Webb mark the final recovery of the Lincoln Trust from the embarrassment in which it became involved last October. It withstood successfully at that time a ten days' run that cut its deposits down from $23,000,000 to $6,000,000, and left its Directors with a problem on their hands of rehabilitating the institution so as to make it worth while to continue in business. So there was something of a jollification meeting yesterday when the board got together to go through the formality of electing as President the man whom they had chosen to take charge of the rehabilitated company. And when Mr. Webb had been declared elected and it came time for him to make reply to some of the pleasant things that had been said about him in the nominating speeches, had a warm tribute to pay to the Directors, and said in substance:

New President Praises Directors.

"Gentlemen, when I looked over the stock lists of this institution and saw, however large your holdings were, nevertheless that the sum so invested was small in proportion to the money you have individually and as a board put into this company to save it, I appreciated that there was not one of you who could not have afforded, from a selfish point of view, to tear up his certificates of stock and scatter them out of the window. But instead of that you have all stood by, and are all here this afternoon. Your enthusiasm has made me enthusiastic for the Lincoln Trust Company, and I am as confident as any of you for its future."

In point of actual achievement the work of the Directors of the Lincoln Trust Company, which Mr. Webb described in the terms quoted, meant that an advance of $5,000,000 from the associated trust companies had all been paid and without any substantial sacrifice of the securities of the Lincoln Trust Company or harsh treatment of its customers. All the amount, with the exception of 15 per cent., was paid prior to Monday. On that day the remaining cash was turned over, and the Lincoln Trust Company stood again entirely on its own feet. Meantime the stock of the company has been increased from $1,000,000 to $1,500,000, and the entire increase underwritten by the Board of Directors, who as individuals had advanced millions to pull the trust company through in the days of its difficulties, so that the entire $500,000 new cash becomes available at once.

What pleases the Directors particularly in connection with these doings is that during the entire period of stress only one of their number resigned his post, and he on account of serious illness. Mr. Tilford will remain in the board on his retirement from the Presidency, and will continue his business with the trust company. This is the list of men who as Directors have pulled the Lincoln Trust Company through:

George C. Boldt,
George C. Clark,
Robert E. Dowling,
Edward Holbrook,
Samuel V. P. Hoffman,
Abram M. Hyatt,
Frank M. Tilford,
William Felsinger,
George Leask,
Edward P. Hatch,
Robert Goelet,
Arthur Iselin,
Isaac N. Seligman,
Bradish Johnson,
Clarence H. Kelsey,
Morton F. Plant,
William Salomon,
B. Aymar Sands,
Louis Stern,
Samuel D. Styles,
W. De Lancey Kountze,
Dr. John P. Munn,
James Quinlan,
Irving E. Raymond,
William G. Conklin,
Stuart Duncan,
Owen Ward.

Harrison E. Gawtry is the Director who retired on account of illness. It was thought for a time that Morton F. Plant would have to quit his post on account of serious ill health during the Winter, but he insisted on remaining in the board, and even had daily reports of the progress made by the different committees brought to his bedside that he might be in touch with what was done and aid in any way possible.

The officers of the Lincoln Trust will hereafter be the following: President, Alexander S. Webb, Jr.; First Vice President, Abram M. Hyatt; Second Vice President, Owen Ward; Third Vice President, William Barrows, Jr.; Secretary, Joseph Z. Bray; Treasurer, Horace F. Poor. Mr. Webb was added to the board yesterday in connection with his election as President.

A Young Bank President.

Although a man less than forty years old, the new President of the Lincoln Trust Company is a man of thorough banking training. A son of the long-time President of the College of the City of New York, he took up a banking career immediately upon the completion of his studies, and was in the Lincoln National Bank under Gen. James for eleven years. Then for three years he was Secretary of the Metropolitan Trust Company, and resigned from that position to go with the New York Security and Trust Company as its Secretary. Upon the merger of the New York Security and Trust Company and the Continental Trust Company into the present New York Trust Company he become a Vice President, and continued in that institution until the present time.

Mr. Hyatt, the new First Vice President, has also had long banking experience, having been with the United States Trust Company for many years. Later he went to the New York Security and Trust Company as Secretary and First Vice President, and for the last six months has been managing Director of the Lincoln Trust. The election of the new officers was unanimous on the part of the board.

KNICKERBOCKER TO OPEN.

Receivers Ordered Discharged After Court Discussion About Their Fees.

In the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, Justice Clark ordered the discharge of the receivers for the Knickerbocker Trust Company. The company will resume business to-morrow. The receivers will be formally released from their duties on filing a certified accounting of their management. The question of the amount of the fees to be allowed them will not be decided until the accounting is filed.

George W. Wickersham, the attorney for the receivers, stated in court that the receivers had handled $133,000,000 in cash and securities. In all they had handled $20,000,000 in cash, three-fourths of which was the bank's funds, the remainder being trust funds. Mr. Wickersham said that under the law the receivers could charge 5 per cent. of the cash handled as the amount of their compensation. This would amount to $1,000,000. They would consider it fair, however, if $500,000 or $600,000 was set aside for them.

Julian T. Davies for the company said he did not believe the receivers could legally ask for a commission on the trust funds, as these were not under their control. It was pointed out that in addition to the receivers' fees about $100,000 would have to be paid to counsel. Deputy Attorney General De Ford thought that $250,000 should be sufficient for both the receivers and the attorneys.

In the opinion of Herbert L. Satterlee, appearing for the depositors' committee, the receivers should be satisfied with a fee of $50,000 each.

ORIENTAL BANK PAYING OFF.

Over $1,000,000 Paid Yesterday to Depositors and Creditors.

Further progress was made yesterday in the task of liquidating the Oriental Bank. Up to the close of business the bank had paid off $400,000 of foreign loans and $600,000 of savings bank deposits, as well as about $150,000 to creditors, who were the holders of certified checks—or certificates of deposit. At a meeting of the Liquidation Committee yesterday, it was decided to pay all these creditors at once.

There were a good many depositors who came to the bank yesterday with their pass books expecting to get some real money for which they had waited so long. The books were received for checking and audit, and the depositors told that they would be paid just as soon as this process could be completed. No definite predictions were made yesterday as to just how long the checking up of the depositors' accounts would take.

RAILROADS AID THE ZUST.

Special Engine Brings It to Ogden—Machine Shops Thrown Open.

Special to The New York Times.

OGDEN, Utah, March 24.—The Southern Pacific Railroad has extended a most unusual courtesy to the Italian crew of the Zust car in the New York to Paris race. The car, which broke down at Kelton on the disused track of the Southern Pacific, was unable either to repair or to return under its own power to Ogden, where it might get relief. The Southern Pacific officials, when they heard of its plight, volunteered to send out a special locomotive and car to Kelton to bring the racer back to Ogden, while the Union Pacific Railroad again turned over its shops to the Italians for repairs. The engine left for Kelton this morning, and returned with the car this afternoon. The Italians are now at work in the Union Pacific shops. Sirtori hopes to complete repairs to-night and to be able to proceed early to-morrow morning.

This is the third time that the shops of the Union Pacific have been placed at the disposal of the Italian car, while once a wrecking train was stopped to help it out of its difficulties on the road. Instructions issued by railroad officials directed that everything that could consistently be done to aid the racing cars, American and foreign alike, should be done freely.

DE DION'S WILD JOURNEY.

Guide Leads St. Chaffray Far Astray—A Fire and an Inhospitable House.

Special to The New York Times.

EVANSTON, Wyo., March 24, (by Train from Summit of Mountains.)—After a remarkable day and a remarkable night in the mountain wilds of Wyoming I have stopped a train to send this dispatch. We were far off the right road yesterday, but have regained it, and are now on our way to Evanston, which we hope to reach to-night and find good beds and food—also attention for my injured hand, which has not been helped by yesterday's experiences.

We spent last night at Bryan. It is a big town of two houses. The first house is the station master's post and the second house is the section master's home. This last building is really occupied by a man, although we had reason to suppose differently when we came to it.

It was 10 at night. We were overtired and hungry after a most remarkable day of thrilling sport. The two lights of the big town of Bryan appeared to us as the joyful promise of rest and of supper. We knocked at the door of the well-furnished home and had the honor to pay our respects to the lady and lord in a parlor.

Then we found ourselves outside. The night was as dark as before, and our hunger was very sad. As a matter of consolation we were told by our pilot that the people of the other house had arrived 24 hours since in their new home, and had remained all that time without eating and had not obtained even a glass of water from the chief of this pleasant town. It was more sad because I had fever on account of my wound. There was nothing to do, however, and our men slept in the automobile and the car was under the protection of the stars and nothing else.

We had a pilot all of yesterday. Let me introduce him. He was an inhabitant of Rock Springs, who was willing to make a trip to Ogden, and we were glad to have him. His experience was that when rain had fallen in Wyoming, it was better to break a new track and he would show the De Dion the way to do it.

He did show the way—a most funny one.

"Don't keep to the valleys," he said to the driver; "go to the top of hills and follow the summits."

We did. Between these summits were plenty of plains covered with heavy mud, rivers that were sufficiently deep, and irrigating ditches of a kind we had not met before to cross. When the small rivers were crossed at a speed of thirty miles an hour the water came up high on the car for a second, but we rushed through. When a speed of only ten miles an hour was observed the car sank in the mud. Fortunately we knew how to get it out.

I am sorry to say that the road we broke will not be of much help to Wyoming State. After making twenty miles of such a journey from Rock Springs we had Granger, for which we had been steering, at our left and behind us. That was all very well for distance, but a river, a very large river, was between the car and our objective point as to direction. Bryan was very far behind.

There was much snow, and we did not suppose that we could get back by night, which was then coming on. Our pilot was still sure of himself, however, and we still trustful. The De Dion swallowed hill after hill—under his direction, and all looked well as we were getting into a dry country of deserted sands. Then something happened to it. It was a ditch eighty feet deep. Its sides were almost vertical. It showed an entrance large enough for two horses, and we had hopes for a few moments. We found the descent was at a grade of 80 per cent. and the ascent 90 per cent. on the other side. In the middle in the mud at the bottom, half covered by water, were the bones of [illegible]

"How deep will your car sink?" asked the pilot.

"I don't know," was the answer.

We did not care to prove how far it would go down in the mud, so we sought another path. We traveled along the borders of the ditch through a valley that presented dangers to the De Dion at every turn, gullies and rocks abounding. After ten miles of this hazardous cross-country running we arrived at the summits of the hills again.

"I am very sorry," said the pilot frankly, "that I have been the cause of so much delay for you. But anything I can do to help I will do."

He was put to work immediately, in fact everybody had to work. At this moment Autran said:

"I don't know, but it seems to me that something is burning in the car."

At once the automobile was stopped. We made a hasty search. We found a fire. No matter how we got the car, a fire is not pleasant in it. This one was fast spreading among articles in the De Dion. We looked for water; we saw sand. Water can be had at that point, but at a depth of 1,500 feet and we had no time to bore a well. But the De Dion was quickly saved. We used water from the radiator and our clothes and put out the flames.

"Do not smoke any more, please," I said to the guide, "if you want to arrive at Ogden with the automobile."

Black night came again. We decided to go back, being aware that the summits of the mountains were conducting to the north instead of the west. Thus we returned to the inhospitality of Bryan.

BOURCIER ST. CHAFFRAY.

GERMANS STILL FACE STORM.

They Make 78 Miles Despite Bad Going—Delay in Mud Hole.

Special to The New York Times.

RAWLINS, Wyo., March 24.—After another day's run through a driving storm, the German Protos car stopped here at 6:35 o'clock this evening, seventy-eight miles nearer the end of its transcontinental run in the New York to Paris race. The roads from Rock River, from which place the car set out this morning, have been execrable, and the heavy machine had constant difficulty during the day. High speed was impossible at any time, the great weight sinking the wheels deep in the snow and mud.

Leaving Rock River this morning, Lieut. Koeppen expected to make Bitter Creek to-night, but he is still seventy-four miles from that point. In running to Rock River yesterday he lost considerable time, stalling in the middle of a swollen creek. When the car tried to ford the stream it stuck fast, unable to advance or retreat. It required considerable ingenuity to extricate it from its difficult position. As a result of the mishap, the car made Rock River at 7 o'clock, where it was due at noon.

TALE OF LOST GEMS RECALLED

Mother of Woman Who Said She Forgot $236,000 Box Sued.

Henrietta McMasters, mother of Mrs. Charlotte Mason, who some months ago advertised the loss of a box containing $236,000 worth of jewelry, money, and silver plate, was examined in supplementary proceedings before Supreme Court Justice Marean, in Brooklyn, yesterday, to explain a judgment for $590 obtained by Fred W. Will for money loaned.

The attorney for Mr. Will tried to find out whether Mrs. McMasters knew anything about the box supposed to have been lost by her daughter on a train. She replied that she did not know anything about it except that her daughter never recovered it. She said that she had pawned some jewelry in 1905, but had never recovered it.

In the course of the examination the lawyer representing Mrs. McMasters attempted to have reporters excluded from the room. Justice Marean denied the application. The hearing was adjourned.

ROSIE'S COCAINE DREAM.

Victim of Drug Tells Court Her Husband Had Been Killed.

In the Tombs Court yesterday, Rosie Farrell, a prisoner, said her husband had been robbed and killed on Sunday in "Diamond Dan's" saloon, in Park Row and his body buried in the cellar. Detectives searched the saloon and cellar, but found no evidence of crime. Rosie's husband was there. He told the police his wife was a cocaine victim.

The PIANOLA PIANO
(MADE ONLY BY THE AEOLIAN CO.)

A child can play the Pianola Piano, but that is not the most wonderful thing about it

It is the responsiveness, the sensitiveness, the capacity for musical expression, that have made the Pianola and Pianola Piano so universally successful.

Long before the days of the Pianola there were electrical and other contrivances for playing the piano, but they never met with any great measure of success, because the effects they produced were so purely mechanical.

Musicians of the highest fame have praised the Pianola, when they could not be induced to say a word in favor of any other instrument of this character.

A child can play the Pianola and Pianola Piano, but the more highly developed is one's musical intelligence, the better will be the results. That is why the playing of these instruments is so fascinating—they call upon you for the best that is in you.

The more you play them, the better you play them, and the greater becomes your perception of their wonderful musical possibilities.

The Pianola Piano presents opportunities for delicacy of shading and coloring found in none of its imitators. The Metrostyle and Themodist are among the features of vital importance that are exclusive with the Aeolian Company's instruments.

NEW CARS TO SAVE $2,000,000 A YEAR

City Railway Officers Say Automatic Fare Collectors Will Turn in All the Nickels.

LOSS NOW IS TREMENDOUS

5,584 Conductors Discharged in 1907 for Failure to Register Fares—Receivers See Light.

The officers of the New York City Railway look to the pay-as-you-enter car for an increase of more than $2,000,000 a year in the receipts of the road when the automatic nickel-collecting device has been installed. The increased receipts, the railroad men say, will be derived from the unimpeachable integrity of the fare-collecting machines, which can always be depended upon to turn in all the nickels collected from passengers.

What this means may be judged from statistics recently compiled by traction officers on the discharge of conductors for "failing to register fares" during the last four years. The figures were made up before the end of 1907, and therefore are to a certain extent approximated for that year. It is shown by these returns that in the year 1904 3,017 conductors were discharged for failing to register fares; in 1905, 2,448 were discharged; in 1906, 3,924 were discharged, and that in 1907 there were 5,584 whose services were dispensed with because of this form of carelessness.

As there are about 3,000 conductors in the employ of the New York City Railway Company, the 1907 figures represented the discharge of the entire force twice during the year for the cause mentioned. A high traction officer is authority for the statement that several hundred conductors have been retained in the company's employ who the company knew, did not turn in their fares, simply because the company could not better the situation by hiring others.

It was said yesterday that as soon as the public becomes familiar with the new cars one of several automatic fare-collecting and registering devices now under trial will be installed, and the conductors, as the officers put it, "will be left with their time free to assist passengers in getting on and off the cars."

Some Statistics of Lost Fares.

What this will mean to conductors has to be gleaned from unofficial evidence, but in a suit for alimony brought some time ago by the wife of a New York City Railway conductor, the wife alleged that with $15 a week as pay, her husband was getting $35 a week extra, and therefore had an income of $50 a week, out of which she asked the court to make him pay her $25. A story that has been told many times without contradiction has it that on some lines the conductors, motormen, and inspectors of the company have an arrangement whereby the motorman gets a rake-off of 25 cents on every trip his car makes and the Inspector a like rake-off on every car he inspects, so that the conductor has to knock down 50 cents a trip before he can begin to count his own "earnings."

From the company's viewpoint, the gain from collecting substantially all the fares, in case the pay-as-you-enter cars are installed on all lines, will be tremendous. Estimated at 10 per cent. of gross earnings, or about $2,180,000 a year, it would be enough to pay the City Railway's special franchise taxes, which have never been met or provided for heretofore. Otherwise applied it would enable the company to maintain two-thirds of the depreciation fund that the receivers now estimate is necessary to the proper handling of the properties.

The mere collection of all the fares, on the basis of existing statistics of traffic and operating cost, would not, however, put the surface lines on their feet. According to the receivers' figures, after allowing for a decrease of gross earnings of $1,100,000 in 1908, and an estimated increase of operating cost of $1,000,000, the payment of the special franchise taxes and the creation of a $3,000,000 annual depreciation fund, showed a balance of $1,562,703 for distribution as income on the capital investment, the fixed requirements of which have heretofore been in excess of $12,000,000.

Plan to Meet Fixed Charges.

Adding $2,180,000 to this as the estimated gain in fares collected does not bring the amount very near the requirements. There are, however, certain other considerations to be recalled, such as the passing of the rental of $3,639,937 on the $52,000,000 of Metropolitan Street Railway stock and the rental of $959,748 on the Third Avenue stock. These charges will probably never be resumed, for the admitted prospect is for the wiping out of this capital invested when it comes to reorganization.

That would cut down the fixed charges to less than $7,500,000. To meet it, on the figures of the receivers, there would be the estimated net earnings of $1,562,703 referred to and the $2,180,000, or thereabout, increase in fares collected. The proposition now is to install the pay-as-you-enter cars all over the surface system as fast as they can be obtained and paid for, and a material saving in operating cost due to fewer accidents and a corresponding gain in traffic due to the popularity of the cars is looked for by the railway officials.

Provided these gains neutralized the decrease of gross earnings and increase of operating cost expected for 1908 over 1907, $2,100,000 would be added to the balance applicable to charges, bringing it up to nearly $6,000,000 with the other sums referred to. How the other $1,500,000 is to be made up is a problem with which the reorganizers are confronted.

There was a conference in United States Judge Lacombe's Chambers yesterday on the proposition of the City Railway receivers to issue certificates for upward of $2,000,000. At its close Arthur H. Masten, the receivers' counsel, said that the opposition was less strong than at the earlier hearing, and that he believed the plan would go through.

D. W. STEVENS DOING WELL.

Attempt on His Life Ordered by Korean "Righteous Army."

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—D. W. Stevens, adviser to the Korean Council of State, whose assassination was attempted yesterday, was resting easily to-day at the St. Francis Hospital. The physician in attendance reports that he is doing as well as could be expected. The Korean N. W. Chun, who was also shot yesterday morning, will probably recover.

The attempt to assassinate Mr. Stevens, it is said, was the result of a carefully hatched conspiracy, inspired immediately by a manifesto to the Korean "Righteous Army." This manifesto reached here on the same ship which brought Stevens.

The manifesto was, in part, as follows:

"To All Koreans in All Parts of the World:

"Loyalty to his nation and fealty to his parents is the primal law of man's nature. The right to live and the right to die for duty is also the rule of nature.

"But, alas! Grievous times have come upon Korea, our compatriots. We who have been educated by our 500-year-old dynasty and raised up by our 4,000-year-old ancestry have come under the domination of the barbarous, savage islanders—the Japanese. They have swooped upon our country and are indulging their barbarous appetites with a cruel heart. It is so much we could not say it with our tongues, nor could we write it with our pens.

"The Japanese have abdicated our Emperor, destroyed our villages, killed our brethren, robbed our land, seized our benefits, and are the enemy not only of Korea, but of all the world—for they have violated the peace of humanity.

"Compatriots, we must unite and consecrate ourselves to our land and restore our independence. We are sure our God will help us. We must all do our best to kill all Japanese, their spies, allies, and barbarous soldiers.

"The Japanese may compare the rising of our righteous army to the attempt of an insect to move a big tree, but right is on our side, and we are confident that in the end we shall be victorious, opposing their treachery with the justice of our cause. We will sacrifice our lives to their guns and swords, and as the front men fall the men behind them will take their places. Defeated to-day, we will again attack on the morrow until our vow to exterminate the Japanese or die has been accomplished.
E. YIE LIN YUNG,
"General Korean Righteous Army.
"(Date) 4240 After Tan Koon."

I. W. Chang, the Korean who shot him, has made a statement from which the following extracts are taken:

"I shot him because he was the main factor in the Japanese reign of bloodshed and oppression in Korea, and because he, as the head and adviser of the régime, was responsible for the deaths of our fathers, mothers and brothers in Korea."

$10,000 FINDS HER A PAUPER.

Mrs. Davis, Now in Boston Poorhouse, Will Get That Sum from Sister.

Through a decision returned by Justice Dugro in the Supreme Court yesterday Mrs. Sarah H. Davis will be able to leave the Municipal Poorhouse in Boston and enjoy $10,000, her share of the estate of her sister, Mrs. Sarah A. Pierce, who died several years ago, leaving an estate valued at $30,000.

According to the evidence, several years ago Mrs. Pierce, who owned the house at 44 East Ninety-eighth Street, was taken seriously ill and sent for her niece, Miss Mary Jane McDaniel of 4,417 Third Avenue, to nurse her. Mrs. Pierce found it would be necessary for her to undergo an operation, and before going to the hospital made a deed for the house in favor of her niece, with directions as to how the proceeds should be divided in case of her death.

She then required Miss McDaniel to make a return deed, so that she could retain control of the property. The deed made to Miss McDaniel was properly recorded, but the return deed was not, and the complainants charged that Miss McDaniel was in unlawful possession of the property. The court decided that the property should be divided into three parts, one for each sister, Mrs. Ellen Perry, Miss McDaniel, and Mrs. Davis, who is in the Boston poorhouse.

It was brought out in the evidence that Miss McDaniel is already under indictment for perjury in connection with another piece of property belonging to Mrs. Pierce and is now awaiting trial on bail.

TWINS GET A FATAL FALL.

Little Ones Tumble Out of Window and Fracture Their Skulls.

Charlie and Willie Gehnrich, the two-year-old twin sons of Mrs. Minnie Gehnrich, who lives in the two-story house at 444 East Eighty-ninth Street, fell from a window on the second floor yesterday afternoon to the paved yard behind the house. The skulls of both children were fractured.

Mrs. Gehnrich entered the room from which the children fell just as they toppled from the window, and she ran screaming downstairs into the yard. Policeman Lederman found her holding the unconscious infants in her arms and weeping over them.

The policeman called an ambulance from the Presbyterian Hospital, and Mrs. Gehnrich became distracted when she saw her children taken away. She ran all the way to the hospital behind the ambulance. Tere is no hope that the twins will live.

ENGINEER SHOOTS HIMSELF.

Charles H. Campbell, Who Came Here from Georgia, Ends His Life.

Charles H. Campbell, an engineer, 52 years of age, formerly of Atlanta, Ga., who has been living recently at 1,721 Beverly Road, Flatbush, L. I., shot himself last night at 136 West Twenty-second Street, and died in the New York Hospital an hour later.

It is said he had been unable to obtain employment at his own calling, and had taken a position with the Frederick W. Shepperd Publishing Company, in the building where he shot himself.

Frederick Shepperd of the Publishing Company identified Campbell and said that the dead man's relatives in Atlanta had been notified.

Late last night a woman, who said she was the wife of the suicide, went to the hospital and identified the body as that of her husband. She could give no reason for the act.

Assembly Passes Labor Federation Bill

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—The Assembly passed without debate the bill of Assemblyman Filley of Rensselaer providing that railroads pay their employes semi-monthly. The bill is a measure of the State Federation of Labor, and this is the first time in years that it has been passed by the Assembly.

BROOKLYN NEWS NOTES.

Five passengers were slightly injured in a collision between two cars of the Reid Avenue surface line, at Broadway and Marcy Avenue, yesterday morning, when an eastbound car ran into an open switch and swung over against a car bound west. Many of the windows in the cars were smashed.

As a result of picking up a "live" wire in the Brooklyn Rapid Transit power house in Fifty-second Street, Stephen Curtis, 16 years old, may lose the sight of both eyes. He was at work in the power house when he picked up the wire, which he thought was "dead." He fell unconscious from the shock. The physician who attended him said he believed that Curtis would become blind from the shock.

Charged with violating the automobile speed law, Deputy Fire Battalion Chief Henry Wackerman was yesterday arraigned in the Flatbush Court. Chief Wackerman was riding with members of his family in Prospect Park when arrested. He denied the charge. The case was referred to the Court of Special Sessions.

Doorman Patrick J. Dunn of the Parkville Police Station was before Deputy Commissioner Baker yesterday charged with keeping chickens in the cupola of the station house. Dunn explained that one of his neighbors died, leaving homeless a hen and her brood. Dunn said he took them into the station house out of pity. The Commissioner dismissed the complaint. When Dunn returned to the station the hen laid an egg for his dinner.

Frederick Lincks of 281 Van Wagner Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., fell from a west end train at Eighty-fourth Street and Eighteenth Avenue, Bath Beach, yesterday afternoon, and was dragged beneath the train for several blocks, being instantly killed.

NEW BODY TO FIGHT THREE CANDIDATES

"The Better Times Association" Formed to Oppose Roosevelt, Taft, and Bryan.

HIRE A MEETING PLACE

Society Wants Needed Reforms Without Unnecessary Slaughter, Its President Says—Members' Names Secret.

"The Better Times Association of America" was established in a large storeroom at 317 Lafayette Street yesterday. The association is to conduct a campaign to prevent the election of Theodore Roosevelt, Secretary of War Taft, or William J. Bryan as President of the United States. The place obtained for conducting the campaign is a large store fully 200 feet deep, with a width of 80 feet. The store was empty yesterday save for a small space in the front, which was railed off and contained a desk, a couple of chairs, President Henry G. King, and a young woman typewriter. President King said the other members or officers of the association who are paying the rent and running expenses, prefer that their names be kept a secret, at least for the present.

"The association is a membership corporation without capital stock, not designed for profit, but to accomplish a purpose," President King said. "It is not put forward or inspired by any power, interest or candidate," he continued. "It has no candidate, but it has some ideas which are expressed in its platform. Its organizers believe that there are many thousands of persons who have similar views. They and these thousands have been without any means of making themselves heard. They have been permitted to vote, choosing between candidates named by politicians.

"Present indications are that the Republican Convention will name either Roosevelt or Taft, and that the Democratic Convention will name Bryan. We believe that a majority of the voters in this country, if they had their way, would have none of them, but would prefer a man who would accomplish necessary reforms without unnecessary slaughter.

"The same people feel that Taft, nominated by Roosevelt, and his use of the Federal patronage and power will be as Roosevelt himself. Moreover, they resent the idea and fear the precedent of a President appointing his own successor. They cannot turn to Bryan and his 'isms.' We believe that if these same thousands can make themselves heard and understood the Republican Convention will give some regard to their wishes and will not dare to nominate whom they oppose."

When asked for what the new "Better Times Association" stood, and what they expected to accomplish, Mr. King handed out a lengthy "platform" which has been adopted by the members, who prefer to keep their names from the public. This is the platform:

In God we trust—notwithstanding.

We "stand pat" on the Constitution, and do not want it amended by executive act—also notwithstanding.

We respect the courts and resent executive interference therewith—likewise notwithstanding.

We believe the average of honesty in this country is as high as in any country on earth—again notwithstanding.

We believe the country is all right—slowly convalescing from indigestion caused by overfeeding and from fright induced by the chief surgeon's threat to remove the patient's liver.

We love a square deal, but not everything so labeled.

We believe punishments should only follow proof of guilt, whether to colored or white, corporation or individual—still notwithstanding.

We remember that the corporations are made up of thousands of stockholders, and employ millions of labor.

We favor personal punishments which hurt the wrongdoers, and not the innocent stockholders and employes.

We commend reasonable safeguard and control over corporations, but denounce rash, revolutionary, and confiscatory assaults upon them.

We question the sanity of a policy which burns down the building in order to drive out a few rats.

We are wearied of club swinging and loud noises.

We believe we are entitled to "good times" in these times of plenty.

We regard "me" as too strenuous and "my policies" too drastic to be continued either by "me" or any proxy or appointee of "me."

We oppose a third term or a President's appointing his successor.

We have faith in the power of public opinion, and believe we can make ourselves heard and understood.

This platform Mr. King has had copyrighted so that none of his party's political opponents may steal the thunder of the association. When asked how it was proposed to get the platform before the voters Mr. King said:

"This association has devised a post card system which includes a certificate of membership reading:

I hereby accept membership in your association, it being understood that I am to pay nothing for dues or otherwise.

I favor the nomination of..................

"There is also a campaign button which members of the association are asked to wear."

Illinois District Instructs for Cannon.

AURORA, Ill., March 24.—Delegates chosen in the Eleventh Illinois Congressional District to-day were instructed for Speaker Joseph G. Cannon. Resolutions favoring a new tariff and a postal savings bank were adopted, and President Roosevelt's policies were indorsed.

Indiana for Bryan, Probably.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 24.—The first session of the Democratic State Convention will be held to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock. In all probability the delegates will be instructed for W. J. Bryan. John W. Kern has been mentioned for Vice President, and would receive the hearty support of the Indiana Democracy.

At the primaries held in this city to-night, National Chairman Thomas Taggart and his friends won a decided victory, carrying every ward in the city by large majorities.

NOT TO DISPLACE WOODRUFF.

Republican State Chairman Back from Washington Feeling Happy.

Timothy L. Woodruff, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, got back to town yesterday after a few visits to the White House, in the course of which he informed the President of his activities in the interest of Gov. Hughes's candidacy.

Mr. Woodruff asserted that he had heard in Washington that the President desired that the control of the State Committee and of the Kings County organization should remain unchanged. This was Mr. Woodruff's way of saying:

"My job is safe as far as the boss is concerned."

Mr. Woodruff confirmed the announcement that Representative James S. Sherman of Utica would be the permanent Chairman of the State Convention which meets on April 11. M. Linn Bruce will be the temporary Chairman. With regard to the activities of Mr. Odell, Mr. Woodruff said he feared nothing, as Odell couldn't get votes enough to put him back in control of the organization.

PRENTICE ATTACKS ODELL.

Leader Says He Is Using Hughes's Name as Cloak to Regain Power.

Ezra P. Prentice, the Republican leader of the Twenty-fifth Assembly District, has put in circulation a letter attacking the Odell faction which has been making war on Mr. Prentice in his district. The letter, which is being sent to all voters, is, in part, as follows:

"We make the direct charge that this Quigg-Odell combination is attempting to use the name of Gov. Hughes as a cloak to regain control in this district for their own personal ends. Mr. Odell, Mr. Quigg, and their associates have never been the supporters of Gov. Hughes and his principles, and they are not now."

MACK CHARGES TREACHERY.

District Leader Says Quigg-Odell Faction Is Allied with Tammany.

At a meeting held in the Fifteenth Assembly District last night the present Republican leader, Harry W. Mack, asserted publicly that the so-called Quigg-Odell faction of the party, with whom, according to Mr. Mack, Senator Saxe has allied himself, has entered into a compact with Tammany whereby about 200 Democratic voters are to vote as Republicans at the primaries.

Tennessee Districts for Taft.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., March 24.—Indications are that there will be a split in the State Republican Convention to-morrow. The Evans forces will have control and the Brownlow adherents will probably bolt. The Republicans of the Fourth Congressional District held two conventions at Lebanon, Tenn., to-day. Both factions indorsed Taft.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., March 24.—A split in the convention of Third District Republicans here to-day resulted in two conventions. One instructed delegates for Taft. The other named delegates with no instructions.

Taft Loses Michigan District.

SAGINAW, Mich., March 24.—The Eighth District Republican Convention to-day chose delegates to the National Republican Convention. They were not instructed, but one of them stated that he would vote for Speaker Cannon if he is a candidate. The resolutions commend President Roosevelt and demand a Presidential candidate who will continue his work. An attempt was made by the Shiawassee County delegation to amend with a resolution instructing for Taft, but it was lost by 51 to 14.

Virginia District Fails to Indorse Taft.

NORFOLK, Va., March 24.—The Second District Republican Convention to-day elected uninstructed delegates to the Republican National Convention. President Roosevelt and the Administration were indorsed. Efforts to secure the indorsement of Taft failed.

New Star in the Naval Flags.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Secretary Metcalf to-day issued orders providing for the change in the naval flags due to the addition of one star through the advent of Oklahoma to the Union. On July 4 the flags will contain forty-six stars, arranged in six rows.

WARDMEN EXAMINED IN GAMBLING CASE

Men in Charge of Sham Resort Tell of Purchasing "Protection" from Them.

WARRANT FOR McNAUGHT

More Transfers Looked For When All the Evidence Is Placed in Bingham's Hands.

Commissioner Bingham's investigation of the charges of police protection of gambling houses, an outgrowth of the trap laid for grafting policemen by The World, was resumed yesterday, and Wardmen John F. Lyons and John T. Horan were on the rack for an hour or more in Deputy Commissioner Hanson's office at Headquarters.

They were confronted by two of the gamblers who operated the "plant" gambling house in Sixth Avenue, near Twenty-sixth Street, and who say that money for police protection of the den was handed over.

Lyons and Horan were in uniform when called to the front. A few hours before they had been transferred from their former detail and ordered out for patrol duty, because of the part they played in the police graft scandal.

William Rose and Alexander Ward, who operated the gambling house, identified Lyons and Horan as the men with whom they negotiated for protection.

Rose testified that Horan, one of Capt. Farrell's wardmen, who was brought over to the Thirtieth Street Police Station when Farrell succeeded Capt. Keleher, appeared in French Marx's place—the "Arsenal Saloon"—during the negotiations between Rose and the police for protection.

In telling of Horan's appearance there, Rose said that one day while he was in the saloon with Ward, Horan appeared and called French Marx outside the door and had a private talk with him.

"Marx wrote a name on an envelope and Horan left," said Rose. "Marx rejoined us and said: 'That is our new wardman who came over with Farrell. He is willing to do business. Now we can open the wheel in either the upper or the lower Tenderloin.' Marx showed me the envelope, and on it was written the name 'Horan.'"

Horan testified before Deputy Commissioner Hanson on Saturday that he had never been in French Marx's place, and never saw Rose. Ward corroborated Rose's statements in every detail yesterday, but Horan stuck to his original denial. Rose also told of a meeting in Marx's place on the evening of March 5 between himself and Lyons, who was ex-Inspector O'Connor's wardman.

"Lyons came in, and Marx and Lyons had a talk," said Rose. "Then Lyons called me into a small room and said: 'Whatever Marx says is all right with me.'"

Lyons on Saturday denied this meeting, as he did yesterday, in spite of the added testimony of Ward, who said that he saw Lyons and Rose enter the small room on that night.

Ward also corroborated Rose's statement that after the raid on the first "plant" gambling house, at 163 West Thirty-fourth Street, he was walking in Sixth Avenue one night when he met Lyons and Wardman John J. Eaton, and they talked of the $100 that was paid to Edward McNaught for police protection. It was on that occasion, said Rose, that Lyons told him that McNaught had never given him the $100, and that McNaught was "a bad one."

Rose and Ward appeared in the Night Court before Magistrate Moss last night on the charge of having gambling paraphernalia in their possession. They, with Edward McNaught, were captured in Capt. Barney Keleher's raid on the Thirty-fourth Street place on Feb. 12. They were held under bail by Magistrate Moss a week ago for a further hearing, but last night they were released in the custody of their attorney, Abraham Levy. McNaught, who was also arrested in the raid, did not appear, and a warrant was issued for his arrest.

The city editor of The World and several members of his staff appeared as witnesses and told the Magistrate that the gambling house which was raided had been opened with the sanction of Commissioner Bingham and the District Attorney's office, and was only a trap to catch dishonest policemen. Deputy Commissioner Hanson had called on the telephone to Magistrate Moss earlier in the evening and explained the case to him. Rose told Magistrate Moss last night that Edward McNaught, a brother of Police Lieutenant McNaught, did not appear in the case as one of The World's men but as a gambler who wished to get all the money he could out of the game. "He went into it merely for mercenary motives," said Rose.

"This has been a good lesson to the police, and I am sure the object lesson will have its desired result," said Magistrate Moss in releasing Rose and Ward.

Besides reducing Inspector O'Connor to the rank of Acting Captain, Commissioner Bingham has made eight transfers as a result of the graft disclosures, and others are to follow.

THREATENS AN INTERPRETER.

Widow Tries to Horsewhip Him for Not Paying $4,000 Note.

Just after the courts had risen yesterday in the County Court House, and when the quadrangle was crowded with persons leaving the building, a well-dressed woman who said she was Mrs. Mary Wells Jennings, a widow, of Brewster, N. Y., accosted one of the court interpreters and threatened to horsewhip him. The interpreter quickly disappeared from the building.

Mrs. Jennings said the interpreter owed her $4,000 for money loaned.

NAVY IS SHORT OF FUNDS.

Unable to Pay Contractors at Work on Two Battleships and Two Destroyers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—No payments for current expenses in constructing the two battleships and two destroyers provided by the act of January, 1907, have been made by the Navy Department since March 6 on account of lack of funds. For the same reason payments to the Midvale, Carnegie, and Bethlehem Steel Companies for steel purchased were stopped by the department last Tuesday, making at that date a total of suspended payments of almost $500,000.

These facts, set forth in a correspondence between the Navy Department and the House Committee on Naval Affairs, were submitted to the House to-day by Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou. The whole matter now rests in the hands of the Appropriations Committee, where there seems to be no disposition to hurry through an emergency appropriation bill to relieve the Navy Department of its embarrassment.

The ships which are now in process of construction were ordered by the department last year under an appropriation of $10,000,000, but with specifications unchanged from those first submitted by the department with a $12,000,000 estimate. The work went on until Jan. 1 last, according to Secretary of the Navy Metcalf's statement, when it was suddenly realized by the department that the appropriation was almost exhausted and that unless further funds were immediately voted by Congress work on the battleships would have to stop in the middle of April or be continued on a credit basis until July, when next year's appropriation would be available.

DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE DIES WHILE ABROAD

HE CHECKED CHAMBERLAIN

Resigned from Balfour Cabinet on Protection Issue—Refused Premiership for Gladstone's Sake.

CANNES, March 24.—Spencer Compton Cavendish, eighth Duke of Devonshire, died here this morning of heart disease.

He was born July 23, 1833, and was a son of the seventh Duke and Blanche, daughter of the Earl of Carlisle.

LONDON, March 24.—The news of the death of the Duke of Devonshire at Cannes came unexpectedly to England and has caused widespread regret. He had been ailing since he suffered a sudden attack of heart weakness at Windsor Castle last June. Alarming reports reached London during his sojourn in Egypt this Winter, but recent accounts of his health had been reassuring.

His family were advised yesterday of a relapse, and Victor C. W. Cavendish, his nephew, and Lord Charles Montagu went to Cannes and were present when the end came.

High tributes were paid to the Duke by the leaders of both parties in the House of Commons and in the House of Lords to-day. The House of Lords paid the dead statesman the unprecedented compliment of adjourning out of respect to his memory.

The death of the Duke leaves a gap in the public life of Great Britain, for although his withdrawal from the Balfour Ministry estranged him from a majority of the party, he still had a large following in the country. He was also most active socially, and his entertainments at his Piccadilly residence and at Chatsworth House, in Derbyshire, and his other country house were the most notable of their kind. Members of the Royal family frequently were his guests.

The Duke has no immediate family, and the Dukedom passes to Mr. Cavendish, who married the daughter of Lord Lansdowne. The death of the Duke places a badge of the Order of the Garter at the disposal of King Edward. A number of public offices also are made vacant by his death, notably the Chancellorship of Cambridge University.

Declined the Premiership.

The Duke of Devonshire, as the Marquis of Hartington, was well known in liberal politics in the Victorian era. In Mr. Gladstone's Ministry he was made Chief Secretary for Ireland in 1871, and retained that post until his party was thrown out in 1874. Before that he had held office under Lord John Russell as Secretary for War for a few months. He was also a Lord of the Admiralty in 1863.

When Mr. Gladstone stated his intention in 1875 of resigning as leader of the Liberal Party, he was chosen for the leadership in the House of Commons. He held the onerous post with tact and ability until the defeat of the Conservative Party in 1880. Queen Victoria offered him the Premiership, which he refused, as Mr. Gladstone was still alive and available. He entered Mr. Gladstone's Cabinet as Secretary of State for India, and later became Secretary of State for War.

Lord Hartington continued an ardent supporter of Mr. Gladstone's policy until the latter introduced the Home Rule bill for Ireland in 1886, when he quit the Cabinet and became the leader of the famous group which was the nucleus of the Liberal Unionists, and broke away from Gladstone. He called many mass meetings in various parts of England, and also moved the rejection of the Home Rule bill in the House of Commons. In appreciation of his services and his strenuous opposition to the bill he was asked to take a portfolio in the Conservative Cabinet by the late Lord Salisbury, but declined.

He became Duke of Devonshire on the death of his father in 1891. This brought him about 186,000 acres of land in England and Ireland, with the magnificent feudal palaces of Chatsworth, in Derbyshire, England, and Lismore Castle, on Blackwater River, in the most picturesque part of Ireland. He received the Order of the Garter from Queen Victoria in 1892 and was installed as Chancellor of Cambridge University in succession to his father.

He took no important post under the Government until 1895, when he accepted that of Lord President of the Council, which he held under the Conservative Premier, Arthur Balfour, until the tariff reform fever, fomented by Joseph Chamberlain, broke out in 1903. He caused a great sensation by resigning his post in October of that year, and his action had much to do with the fall of the Conservative Cabinet.

The Duke spent the greater part of his time at his beautiful homes at Chatsworth and Lismore, with Spring and Fall visits to Devonshire Park, Eastbourne, the beautiful watering place on the Sussex Coast which he had built up. Tramps were zealously kept out of Eastbourne, and the town was so dignified that there were no electric cars and the railroads were not allowed to run excursion trains to it.

A Strong Believer in Feudalism.

In person the late Duke of Devonshire was a reserved man of the old Salisbury school, who believed in feudal rights. To his tenants he was a kind landlord, and he was liked by all the men and women who had ever been in his employ. His purse was always open to charitable objects, but between him and the common people there was a deep gulf.

In appearance he was a man above the average height, slimly built, with gray hair and whiskers, and a ruddy face. He was slow and heavy in speech, but facts were his strong point in political arguments, and many of his opponents were surprised to find that he was so very much awake to what had been said by others who addressed any meeting.

When King Edward and Queen Alexandra went to Ireland in April, 1904, they paid a visit to Lismore Castle, and the Duke had the grounds closely guarded by plain-clothes men from the Royal Irish Constabulary, who were hidden behind trees in the spacious grounds. The King rode about in the donkey cart, while Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria tried to catch salmon in the Blackwater River that flowed through the estate.

The Duke was a great admirer of the United States, and at a recent celebration of Washington's Birthday in London he said that the relations between the people of America and Great Britain had never been more cordial than they were then.

In 1892 he married the widow of the Duke of Manchester, to whom he had been engaged thirty years previously when she was the Countess d'Alten. He had no children. The Duchess is the widow of a Count and two Dukes.

7 YEARS FOR MAIL ROBBER.

Rosseau Was Caught with Securities Taken from Ocean Liners.

PARIS, March 24.—The man Rosseau, who was convicted of having in his possession and attempting to negotiate checks and bonds which had been stolen from mail bags aboard the steamships Savoie, Lorraine, and Teutonic, was to-day sentenced to seven years' imprisonment.

An accomplice, named Kohminski, was sentenced to one year's imprisonment, while a third man, Semelle by name, on trial on the same charge, was acquitted.

VON BUELOW SCOUTS WAR.

Thinks the Concert of Europe Will Still Be Maintained.

BERLIN, March 24.—Speaking in the Reichstag to-day Chancellor Von Buelow said the efforts of the great powers to extinguish the conflagration in Macedonia had been rendered futile because fresh fuel was constantly being thrown on the fire from the outside. The foundation of the trouble did not lie in strife between Christendom and Mohammedanism, but in the bitter struggle between the various Christian nationalities in the Balkans.

The barbarities which have taken place in Macedonia were blows to humanity and the civilization of Europe, but the possibility of war, owing to the dissensions among the powers on this account, was a contingency still more insupportable. "I hope and believe," the Chancellor said, "that the European concert will be maintained, and I understand that this same feeling prevails in the other Cabinets where the slight differences of opinion will be soon overcome."

He regretted that he was unable to give the contents of Emperor William's letter to Lord Tweedmouth, which had created such a stir in England. He said this communication was purely private and regretted the attempt to stir up British feeling.

"The purely defensive character of our naval programme, in the face of the attempts to impute to us aggressive intentions and plans toward Great Britain, cannot be repeated too often or too sharply," the Prince declared. "We desire to live at peace and in quiet with Great Britain, and we therefore feel bitterly that some British publicists should continue to talk of the 'German danger.'"

LIBERALS BADLY BEATEN.

London District Shows a Complete Reversal on the Licensing Issue.

LONDON, March 24.—The most keenly fought by-election for the present Parliament, which was necessitated through the death of Charles Goddard Clarke, a member from Peckham, a district in London south of the Thames, resulted to-day in a great victory for the Unionists. Their candidate, S. C. Gooch, was elected by a majority of 2,494. The Liberals carried the district in 1906 by a majority of 2,339.

The contest to-day centred largely in the Government Licensing bill, and the result is a striking demonstration against that measure. The announcement of the returns in the House of Commons caused the greatest excitement. There were Unionist shouts that the Government should resign.

PROTECTS NAME OF ZOLA.

French Government Refuses to Move Lannes's Body from Pantheon.

PARIS, March 24.—The Government has refused the request made by the Duke of Montebello to remove the remains of his grandfather, the illustrious Marshal Lannes, from the Panthéon to the family vault in Montmartre Cemetery. This request was made by the Duke because he did not wish the body of the Marshal to lie in the Panthéon with that of Emile Zola, whom he described as "the insulter of the army."

The Cabinet to-day voted to postpone the transfer of the body of M. Zola to the Panthéon from April 2 to June 4 in order to permit the completion of suitable arrangements. The anti-Zolaites have arranged a meeting to protest against this transfer.

ENFORCE STANDARD'S FINE.

Prosecutor Moves That Company's Appeal Be Dismissed.

CHICAGO, March 24.—United States District Attorney Sims to-day asked Judge Grosscup of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals to dismiss the appeal of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana from the fine of $29,240,000 imposed by Judge Landis last year. Judge Grosscup continued the matter until April 14, when the entire Court of Appeals will be in session.

District Attorney Sims contended that Attorneys Miller and Eddy for the oil company failed to give notice of two extensions of time for the filing of briefs in the appeal.

CHINESE PRIEST HERE.

Peter Chang Said to be the Only Chinese Catholic Minister in the World.

Among the cabin passengers arriving on the Holland-America liner Ryndam from Rotterdam and Boulogne was the Rev. Father Peter Chang, the only Chinese Roman Catholic priest in the world, accompanied by Bishop August Henning of the Diocese of South Shantung, China. The Bishop went out to China in 1887, and in a short time made 125 converts. He did not wish to give the exact figure, but says that there are more than 80,000 converts in his district now.

Father Chang wears his hair in a cue. He is 27 years old. He speaks German and Chinese fluently, but has no knowledge of English. Mgr. J. Kelly, rector of the Church of Our Lady of Grace, Hoboken, met him on the pier and put up a bond for $500 through Wells, Fargo & Co. to assure the Government that Father Chang would not stay in this country more than twenty days.

Chinese Prince in Yale Secret Society.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 24.—At the elections of the Yale secret society it was announced that Ponson Karl Chu, the Chinese Prince, who is studying at the university, has been made a member of Psi Upsilon. Chu is the first Mongolian to be admitted into a Yale secret society.

Notes of Foreign Affairs.

PEKING, March 24.—The British merchants of Tien-tsin and Niuchwang have sent strongly worded protests to the British Government concerning the course pursued by Japan with regard to the Tsinmintun-Fakumen Railroad. It is held that Japan's obstruction to the continuation of this line is not only in violation of the pledges given at Portsmouth in the peace treaty with Russia, but that it affects the entire future development of Manchuria.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 24.—The Russian Senate, the highest tribunal in the empire, to-day overruled the appeal made by the 167 members of the first Duma who on Dec. 31 were convicted by the Court of Appeals and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. These Deputies after the dissolution of the first Duma in July, 1906, issued the famous Viborg manifesto advising the people to give neither money nor soldiers to the Government.

LONDON, March 24.—John Morley, Secretary of State for India, has received a telegram from the British Indians residing at Vancouver asking for protection as British subjects. He declared in the House of Commons this afternoon that the Indian Government and the Colonial Office contemplated sending an envoy to the Canadian Government in the hope of bringing to an end, if possible, "this extremely difficult, intricate, and possibly dangerous situation."

LONDON, March 24.—The Prince of Wales will cross the Atlantic this Summer when he goes to Canada for the tercentenary celebration at Quebec in one of the larger of the British cruisers, and this vessel will be accompanied by another cruiser as an escort. The British Atlantic Fleet will cross ahead of the cruisers to be present and welcome the Prince on his arrival.

BERLIN, March 24.—Emperor William and the Empress, accompanied by Prince August, their fourth son, and Princess Victoria, their daughter, and attended by a numerous suite, left here this morning at 10 o'clock for Corfu by way of Venice.

Appraiser's Agent an Incompetent.

On the application of two of his children, Marcus Hanlon was declared by a jury in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, yesterday to be incompetent to manage his own affairs. Mr. Hanlon was for years an agent in the Appraiser's Stores in Manhattan, and is said to have an estate worth $300,000. He lives at 760 Rugby Road.

$10,000 for Loss of a Leg.

WHITE PLAINS, March 24.—For the loss of his leg and the pain and suffering he endured while the limb was being amputated, Edward McCabe, a New York cab driver, obtained a verdict of $10,000 damages against the New York City Railway in the Supreme Court here. McCabe was boarding a car at Fifty-ninth Street and Third Avenue, when it suddenly started and he fell under the wheels.

Medical Society for Armstrong Bill.

The Medical Society of the County of New York at a meeting last Monday adopted resolutions requesting the Finance Committee of the Senate to report favorably Senator Armstrong's bill providing for an appropriation of $185,575 for the site near Haverstraw for the Eastern New York State Custodial Asylum.

ROCHETTE CONCERNS CLOSED IN FRANCE

Court Seizes $1,800,000 Deposited by the Credit Minier and Franco-Spanish Bank.

THOUSANDS LOSE SAVINGS

Promoter Sold Stocks Throughout France and Spain—One Firm's Losses Will Be $600,000.

PARIS, March 24.—A court order was issued to-day closing all the branches throughout France of the Crédit Minier and Franco-Spanish Bank, financial institutions organized and conducted by Henri Rochette, the well-known French promoter, who was yesterday taken into custody on charges of swindling.

Administrators for both institutions were appointed, and the examining Magistrate ordered the seizure of the $1,800,000 deposited in the Bank of France and other banks to their credit.

A single brokerage house of this city which handled most of the Rochette stocks will lose more than $600,000 by the collapse of these securities. The Rochette stocks broke again on the market to-day and weakened the entire Bourse, which steadied later, however, and closed firm.

Crowds of stockholders besieged the closed doors of the Franco-Spanish Bank and the Crédit Minier to-day. Later they held a meeting and voted to enter suit against Rochette. Additional criminal complaints were lodged to-day against him. Reports from the provinces show that thousands of people of limited means will lose their savings.

The newspapers continually liken the case to the operations of Mme. Humbert, with the differentation, however, that Mme. Humbert reached the rich, while Rochette went after the small investor. Deputy Ceccaldi informed Minister of Justice Briand in the Chamber of Deputies to-day that he would question him on the subject of Rochette in the Chamber next Friday.

The Autorité charged in its issue of this morning that M. Cruppi, Minister of Commerce, and M. Rabier, Vice President of the Chamber of Deputies, were associated as lawyers with Rochette in several of his enterprises. This statement was followed this afternoon by unequivocal denials from both M. Cruppi and M. Rabier.

MADRID, March 24.—The arrest in Paris of Henri Rochette on charges of swindling has created stupefaction in many parts of Spain. Many Spaniards had invested in his companies, especially at St. Sebastien and Bilbao, where the Franco-Spanish Bank, of which Rochette was the founder, recently floated stock in one of his concerns. The Franco-Spanish Bank opened its doors as usual to-day. The Director announced that the institution was prosperous and that it would not go under.

Girl Wins Monument Competition.

At a meeting of the Bayonne Patriotic Monument Association last night the design of Miss Eleanor Eadie of 89 West Thirty-sixth Street, that city, was formally accepted. Miss Eadie competed with several New York artists. Her design is original, and shows a civil war soldier on scout duty with a sailor in the rear. The monument will cost $5,000, and will be erected in City Park. The money is being raised by popular subscription. Miss Eadie is a graduate of the Bayonne High School.

Favors Present Education Board.

The Board of Education at its meeting this afternoon will receive the report of the Committee on By-laws and Legislation on the proposal to reduce the size of the board from forty-six to fifteen members. The report will strongly oppose this. Chairman Harrison of the committee declares that he has yet to hear a good reason for the change. Other members of the committee agree with him.

CITY BREVITIES.

Dustin Farnum, the actor, was fined $10 in the Special Sessions yesterday for auto speeding in Broadway.

The Firemen's Memorial Fund has now reached $27,934.68.

Owing to the illness of President McGowan of the Aldermen, who was scheduled to speak on "The Board of Aldermen" at Public School 165, 118th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, this evening, Charles B. Ackley will lecture on "The Fire Department."

This will be "teachers' night" at the congestion exhibit. Invitations have been sent to all the Principals and teachers in New York City, and Supt. Maxwell, Miss Julia Richman, Mrs. Florence Kelley, and Dr. Walter T. Laidlaw will speak.

In crossing Sixth Avenue at Nineteenth Street late last night John Edward Evans, an actor, 63 years old, was struck by a car and so badly injured internally that he was taken to the New York Hospital.

Nathan Stein, proprietor of the Incandescent Supply Company at 89 Centre Street, had thirty gas jets in his store for demonstration purposes. Yesterday he turned on eleven jets and tried to die by gas. A policeman rescued and arrested him.

On the complaint of A. Parker Smith of 2 Rector Street, detectives from the District Attorney's office arrested yesterday Howard Slane of 82 Grove Street, Brooklyn, a broker, on a charge of obtaining $200 by false pretenses. He was locked up in Police Headquarters.

Lawrence E. Cloud, a young actor, who has appeared recently in Chicago, was arrested here yesterday, charged with having impersonated a member of the Secret Service Division of the United States Treasury Department. United States Commissioner Shields turned him over to Marshal Henkel to send him back there.

Sparks from a cap pistol started a blaze in the home of Louis C. Mouquin, the restaurant proprietor, at 273 West End Avenue, last night, and before it was extinguished it did about $500 damage. Servants put out the blaze by forming a bucket brigade.

TO DISCUSS DUKE'S ROMANCE?

Italian Paper Thinks Kaiser and King Will Talk of Miss Elkins.

ROME, March 24.—King Victor Emmanuel left for Venice this evening, where he will meet the German Emperor, who left Berlin to-day and is now on his way to that city, prior to going on board the imperial yacht, which will take him to Corfu. The King and Emperor will meet in Venice to-morrow, where they probably will spend the day together.

The Giornale d'Italia, in concluding its comments on the visit of the German Emperor, says that the German Crown Prince ran the same danger as the Duke of the Abruzzi, that is, he fell in love with an American girl.

"Perhaps," adds the paper, "the Emperor will be able to communicate to King Victor Emmanuel a method of avoiding this kind of American danger."

A CURRENCY BILL AMENDMENT

An Open Letter to Senator Aldrich from J. Howard Cowperthwait.

J. Howard Cowperthwait has sent an open letter to Senator Nelson W. Aldrich, who is in charge of the Currency bill in the Senate, stating that the elimination of railway bonds as security for currency issues suggests an amendment which Mr. Cowperthwait declares should give us the best feature of the European central banking principle, which is the opportunity for the banks to rediscount commercial paper and rehypothecate securities in periods of financial stress. Mr. Cowperthwait says:

> If you will permit the Secretary of the Treasury, in his discretion, to issue new money to a National bank upon the guarantee of such bank's Clearing House Association, you will have only to limit the sum of new money which may be guaranteed by an association in order to safeguard the Government and at the same time provide elasticity for the volume of National banknotes. The limitation of such a guarantee might be 50 per cent. of the combined capital and surplus of the banks composing an association. Of course, the association would secure itself as against its member bank, but while the collateral would be absolutely good as between them, it would not be the sort which the Government could handle, being largely commercial paper with varying maturities.
>
> State and municipal bonds belong to the investment class of securities, and, therefore, are as unsuitable for a basis for emergency currency as are railway bonds; but commercial paper such as a Clearing House Association might take with safety from one of its member banks is temporary in its character, and the very fact of its being excessive in volume, at any particular time, would show the legitimate need, at such time, for emergency money.
>
> New money issued directly to a bank may be used to foster dangerous speculation, but a bank's own Clearing House Association would not be willing to assist it except for non-speculative purposes.

Mr. Cowperthwait suggests also that the new money ought to be obtainable more cheaply in the second half of the year than in the first half, and says that in order to help in the moving of, say, $7,000,000,000 worth of crops he would make the rate of taxation on the new money only one-quarter of 1 per cent. per month in the months of July to December, inclusive.

GIVES POWER TO RAILROADS.

Hadley Says Decisions Will Allow Them to Suspend Objectionable Laws.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 24.—In reference to the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States yesterday in the Minnesota and North Carolina railroad cases, Attorney General Hadley said to-day:

"While these decisions are based principally upon the unreasonableness of the penalties prescribed by the Minnesota and North Carolina statutes, the effect is unquestionably to sustain the contention of the railroads.

Whenever the railroads do not like a State law, they can now have one of their officials make an affidavit that it would unreasonably reduce their earnings, and thereupon a United States Circuit Judge can suspend the operation of this law until it can be shown that the law is reasonable.

"When it is understood that the State freight rates are twice as high as inter-State freight rates the importance to the railroads of this right is at once apparent."

YOUNG HIDES HIS DISGRACE.

Banker in Jail Refuses to Ask Bail of His Wealthy Blind Father.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—John Young, Auditor of the Farmers' Deposit National Bank, who, with First Teller Henry Reiber, was last night arrested, charged with defalcations, believed to exceed $150,000, to-night refused to appeal to his wealthy father, Robert Young, on his sick bed at Mercy Hospital, even for the $25,000 bail necessary to release him from his cell.

"He must never know," was the prisoner's answer, when his wife pleaded, "Let me go to father."

Robert Young, one of the best known financiers in Pittsburg, ex-President of the Pittsburg Gas Company and worth a million, had the pupils of both his eyes removed yesterday to relieve him of an incurable optical malady. The father is wealthy enough to save the son entirely from prosecution.

To-night Robert Young, on recovering consciousness, was told that John had been called away on business. The son's bail is to be increased to-morrow morning.

Reiber and Young had been under suspicion for a week before they were arrested yesterday. As first teller and auditor they had been able to continue the falsification of the books for two years. Both acknowledged that they had lost in the stock market.

BROTHER TO FIGHT DELMOUR'S WILL

"Whispering Larry" Said to Have Been Under His Young Wife's Influence.

ESTATE WORTH $500,000

Protest to be Filed in Surrogate's Court To-day Against Admitting the Will to Probate.

Peter Delmour will file a protest in the Surrogates' Court this morning against the probate of the will of his brother, "Whispering Larry" Delmour, former Tammany district leader, who died last Christmas Day. His estate is estimated to be worth $500,000.

In his protest, Peter Delmour sets forth that to the best of his knowledge and belief the will filed is not the last will and testament of his brother, Lawrence Delmour, and that it was not made voluntarily. He charges that Lawrence Delmour was not "of sound mind and disposing memory at the time he signed the paper presented as his last will and testament." He also charges that it was not signed in a lawful manner, and was procured "by fraud on the part of Jennie Delmour, the principal legatee, or some other persons unknown to the protestant."

Friends of Mr. Delmour, a short time before his death, were surprised when he announced that he had married Miss Jean Walsh, a very attractive young woman who had nursed him through a serious illness.

His brother alleges that in his last illness "Larry" Delmour was unduly influenced by his wife to leave her practically his entire estate.

GRADY TRIAL NEAR END.

Mrs. Minke Testifies to Alleged Attack on Her by Devery's Right-Hand Man.

The trial of Dennis Grady, once the right hand man of ex-Chief of Police W. S. Devery, was continued yesterday when the complainant, Mrs. Bella Minke, who charges that on the night of Sept. 1 Grady accused her of stealing $166 from him, and then struck her several times in the face, took the stand to be cross-examined by the defendant's counsel, Abraham Levy.

According to Mrs. Minke, Grady was drunk when she met him that night, and with a certain Agnes Dyer drank with him in the back room of a saloon at Tenth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. She and Agnes Dyer left him after a few moments, but when they reached their home, 227 West Fifteenth Street, he was there, beating on the door; he accused her of stealing his money, struck her several times, and on the way to the station house he struck her several times again.

Two policemen testified that Mrs. Minke showed no marks of violence on her face on the night of the alleged assault. The case will probably go to the jury to-day.

FIGHT OVER VIVISECTION.

Rival Delegations to Argue Before a Legislative Committee To-day.

A delegation of men and women interested in the animal protection societies of this city will go to Albany to-day to urge the joint Judiciary Committees of the Senate and Assembly to report favorably to the Legislature the Johnston bill for the regulation of experiments on living animals. This bill is designed to remedy a defect in the law which, owing to the repeal of certain sections of the cruelty act of 1867, provides no remedy for irresponsible vivisection for mere curiosity's sake. The bill is opposed by the State Medical Society, which will send a delegation to the hearing to-day.

MAXIM TELLS WOMEN HOW THEY MAY VOTE

Make Suffrage Fashionable, He Says, and Victory Will Be Assured.

CONVERTED BY HIS WIFE

Inventor Puts In a Good Word, Too, for Suffragettes and Says That Fighting Wins.

Hudson Maxim of smokeless powder fame told the members of the William Lloyd Garrison Equal Suffrage Association how to get woman suffrage without waste of noise, at the studio of Miss Amy Grant, in Fifty-fifth Street, yesterday afternoon.

"Make it fashionable," said Mr. Maxim. "It is the duty of every woman to try to make woman suffrage fashionable, and then victory will be assured."

Mr. Maxim also threw in a good word for the militant suffragettes of England.

"Since that remote time," said Mr. Maxim, "when our omnivorous ancestors climbed down from their abodes in the trees and rocks and fought for place in their environment, the good things of life have been for those who fought hardest for them.

"In England the women have begun an actual warfare for their rights. Let the rebellion spread until the world is called to arms for the one last, greatest fight for liberty over barbarism—the equality of woman."

Mr. Maxim gave his own personal experience as to the equality of men and women, and it was received with great applause by the women.

"I am a born experimentalist," he said, "and have a reputation for conducting some very risky experiments. But all the things I have done to tame nitroglycerine and soften the temper of dynamite or make torpedo warfare a pleasant pastime do not compare for a moment in hazard with the experiment I have tried with my wife.

"I was forty-three years old when I was married. (I said 'I' then; I say 'we' now.) Previous to that I had had ups and downs—some high ups, alternating with low downs. After we were married about six months one of those low-down financial depressions came along. We were living in a place in London for which we paid about $2,000 a year, and our available cash amounted to $10. Did I have to break this unfortunate news to my wife? Not a bit; she knew all about it, for we had been partners and pals from the first.

"That was the experiment I tried. Did it work? To perfection, and it is working still. [Great applause.] We are still on our honeymoon, but have been married twelve years—ample time to prove by practice—and if our honeymoon is a full moon, it is not an old one."

"If women went to the polls and voted I should always go myself," said Will Carlton, who was asked to speak. "But as it is, I don't always go when it is not important. I don't like to go to the polls and shout out my name and age."

"You won't have to tell your age if the women vote," said Mr. Maxim, "they will change that law."

"I would guarantee that we should get the suffrage," said Mrs. Harry Hastings, the President, speaking of the Suffrage bill at Albany, "if we should go to the Senators and tell them we would vote their way. But they don't know what the women are going to do. They are afraid they will meddle with the privileges of men. But the women of to-day are not narrow, if they ever were, and there is nothing to fear from them."

STEWART IN PROCTOR'S SEAT.

Ex-Governor of Vermont Will Fill Unexpired Senatorial Term.

PROCTOR, Vt., March, 24.—John W. Stewart of Middlebury, ex-Governor of Vermont, was appointed to the United States Senate by Gov. Fletcher D. Proctor to-day to fill the vacancy caused by the recent death of Senator Redfield Proctor. Ex-Gov. Stewart has accepted. His term will expire next Fall.

John Walcott Stewart was born in Middlebury, Vt., Nov. 24, 1825. He was graduated from Middlebury College in 1846, and was admitted to the bar in 1850. In 1856 he was elected a member of the State Legislature. He served as State Senator in 1862, and in 1864 returned to the House to become its Speaker.

In 1870 Mr. Stewart was elected Governor for a term of two years, and after another short term as Speaker of the House, he was elected to Congress from the First Vermont District in 1882. He was re-elected to Congress for three successive terms.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Col., March 24.—J. W. Stewart, who has just been appointed Senator from Vermont by Gov. Fletcher Proctor, is the father of Philip B. Stewart of Colorado Springs and is at present visiting his son here.

RISE FOR POSTAL EMPLOYES.

Meyer Will Ask Senate to Increase Salaries of Carriers and Clerks.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—At the Cabinet meeting to-day Postmaster General Meyer told the President that he hoped to be able to convince the Senate that letter carriers and Post Office clerks should have an increase of salary.

The House has already passed an amendment to the Post Office Appropriation bill providing that letter carriers receiving $1,100 shall be increased to $1,200. There are 12,000 of these letter carriers in the United States.

Mr. Meyer hopes to convince the Senate Committee that the House amendment should stand, and also to convince the Senate that there should be a rise of from $1,100 to $1,200 for 2,600 clerks, as well as a rise of about 25 per cent. in the salary of men holding supervisory positions.

RAISE COSTUME APPRAISAL.

Cost of Twenty-nine Imported Dresses Increased from 60 to 150 Per Cent.

A special Board of United States Appraisers decided yesterday that ten costumers who arrived recently on the Oceanic with scores of costumes from Paris did not make their declarations large enough to the customs officials. Twenty-nine of the costumes are advanced in excess of the entered value from 60 to 150 per cent., which makes them liable to seizure. Nearly all of the other costumes are advanced in valuation, but not to the seizure point.

FUGITIVE CLERK ARRESTED.

Hotel Employe Charged with Theft of Mrs. E. Ellery Anderson's Jewels.

Word was received here yesterday of the arrest in San Diego, Cal., of Max Willie, formerly a clerk in the Hotel Martinique, who, according to the police, is wanted for robbing a woman guest in the hotel of jewels worth $3,000 last January. The jewels belonged to Mrs. E. Ellery Anderson, and were taken from the hotel safe.

DIAMONDS TO BE NO CHEAPER.

Jewelers' Board of Trade Says Foreign Combination Will Hold.

The Jewelers' Board of Trade, whose membership comprises nearly all the important firms in the diamond business, jewelry, and kindred trades throughout the country, gave out a statement yesterday predicting that there would be no fall in the price of diamonds, which dispatches from abroad had stated was likely owing to alleged differences between the De Beers and the Premier Diamond Mining Companies, which control 97 per cent. of the output.

The statement says that the agreement between the De Beers Company and the London syndicate remains in full force and only the renewal of the agreement now existing between the Premier Diamond Mining Company and the syndicate is now being considered, "but whether the same is renewed or not the prices of diamonds will not in the least be affected, because the officers of both the De Beers and the Premier Diamond Mining Companies, as well as the London syndicate, have given positive assurances that under all circumstances prices will be upheld."

ALWAYS BUSY ON NEW TOWER

When the Iron Workers Quit at Night Others Work by Electric Light.

The men who are bolting together the steel framework of the tower of the new Metropolitan Building, Madison Avenue and Twenty-third Street, have now got up as high as the thirty-fourth story. They quit at 6 o'clock in the evening, but coming behind them eight or nine stories are the lathers, putting up wire netting for the plaster, and down further are workers clearing away the débris left by the day workers. This force works at night up to 10, 11, and sometimes 12 o'clock, so that the tall tower at night looks from a distance as if it were already tenanted and the tenants were working late.

First Translation of a Buddha Book.

Justine Hartley Moore, a student in the Indo-Iranian Department at Columbia University, has just completed a translation of the "Iti-Vuttaka," or "The Sayings of Buddha," which is the first translation of the work ever made into English. This is one of the few important documents on Buddhism that has apparently been overlooked by Orientalists. There is a Chinese version supposed to have been made in the seventh century A. D. The hope that it might throw some new light on the much-discussed teachings of Buddha was what made Moore first interested in the project of translating it.

Police Stop Athletic Club Bouts.

Capt. The prisoners were released in $500 bail each.

DEMOCRATS DEMAND ACTION BY CONGRESS

Leader Williams Criticises Do-Nothing Policy and Tries to Have Four Bills Reported.

ONE A ROOSEVELT MEASURE

Employers' Liability, Free Wood Pulp Campaign Expense Publicity, and Injunction Bills Mentioned.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—John Sharp Williams, minority leader in the House, to-day announced that every form of filibustering known to parliamentary law would be used to block Republican legislation until four measures, one of which the President recommended in his last special message, shall be reported out of committee and brought up for discussion on the floor of the House.

The measures are the Employers' Liability bill, a bill admitting wood pulp free of duty, a bill calling for publicity of campaign expenses, and a bill forbidding Federal courts to grant injunctions against State laws on ex parte hearings.

Taunting the Republicans for their "do-nothing" attitude, Mr. Williams said that their dilatory tactics were in the very face of the demands of the Republican President, and the announcement of Representative Hepburn at the beginning of the session. He said in part:

"You have been permitting your Judiciary Committee to have hearing upon hearing on the Employers' Liability bill, and you have been using that merely as a buffer in order to prevent hearings upon other things before that committee.

"I shall refuse unanimous consent until you report to this House for its consideration some publicity of campaign contributions bill.

"I shall refuse unanimous consent for any request upon that side of the chamber until the Ways and Means Committee shall bring to the consideration of this House a bill for free wood pulp and free print paper.

"I shall make the same declamation until some Clayton bill or some other bill preventing mere ex parte and temporary injunctions, where only one side has been heard from, acting as a supersedeas of a law passed by a sovereign State, shall have been reported out."

FLEET WILL VISIT CHINA.

No Other Invitations to be Accepted—Will Return by Feb. 22.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The battleship fleet will visit China as well as Australia and Japan, and will be home on Washington's Birthday, that President Roosevelt may participate in the welcome before his retirement from office ten days later. In deciding this matter at the Cabinet session to-day, it was also determined that the limit of the social calls had been reached.

The Chinese invitation, which came from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, said:

"It is the desire of my Government and people to give expression on this occasion to the very friendly feelings which they entertain toward the American Nation, and to reciprocate for the many courtesies which have been extended to the representatives of my country on their visit to America."

LONDON, March 24.—Great Britain has not invited the American batleship fleet to visit England or to make any official calls at British ports, as the British Admiralty understands that the American Government does not desire that the voyage be further delayed. It is understood also that the United States has expressed the wish that there should be no demonstration in honor of the fleet at the British ports in the Mediterranean.

SMITH FOR WHYTE'S TERM.

Election May Be Contested on Ground of Too Short Lapse of Time.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 24.—In separate sessions to-day the Democratic members of the two houses of the Legislature voted unanimously for ex-Gov. John Walter Smith for United States Senator to fill out the unexpired term of the late William Pinkney Whyte. Ex-Gov. Smith already has been chosen for the full six-year term, beginning March 4, 1909.

The Republican members decided at a caucus not to participate in the election, taking the ground that any other course would be in violation of the Federal statutes.

It is understood that the legality of the election will be questioned, it being contended that the necessary time between the notice to the Legislature of a vacancy and the election of a successor had not elapsed as required by law.

FISH WOULD EXTEND FEDERAL CONTROL

Favors Government Supervision of Railroad Business in as Well as Between States.

NOT RATEMAKING POWER

Thinks It Wrong to Delegate That Legislative Function to a Commission.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, March 24.—In an address before the Economic Club to-night Stuyvesant Fish, formerly President of the Illinois Central Railroad, discussed the railroad problem. He declared that the powers of the Inter-State Commerce Commission should not extend to the making of rates, and that such powers as were left to the commission should extend to both inter-State and intra-State commerce. On this latter point Mr. Fish is in agreement with Paul Morton, former Vice President of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé, and many other men prominent in the railroad world. It is their refuge from the vicissitudes of State regulation.

Mr. Fish traced the development of the Federal statutes affecting the railroads side by side with the development of the railroads themselves, and declared that the original contact of the Inter-State Commerce Commission with the question of rates, under the law of 1887, had always seemed to him the weak point of the situation on account of its tendency to endow one body created by Congress with a mixture of powers granted originally to the three co-ordinate branches of the Government, and intended to be kept separate.

"This bad condition of law," said Mr. Fish, "was made worse by the passage of the Hepburn Rate bill in 1906, under which the Inter-State Commerce Commission was given the purely legislative function of fixing railroad rates. We now have the spectacle of a single body being authorized to exercise legislative, executive, and judicial functions. Shades of the forefathers! What would Hamilton and Madison and Jay say to this, not to speak of Jefferson and those of his school who called themselves Republicans?"

In advancing his proposition for the extension of the scope of the Inter-State Commerce Commission to matters of intra-State commerce, Mr. Fish said he thought it was the intention of the framers of the Constitution to have under the Federal Government everything important enough to be dignified with the word "commerce," because the language of the Constitution gave Congress the control of commerce "among" the States, and not merely "between" the States. He continued:

"For the protection alike of those who have invested their money in railways and of the public served thereby, there should be a local ownership of shares, and that ownership as widely scattered as possible among the greatest number of people. Directors should make full and frequent reports to their stockholders, and encourage the latter to question and discuss them at their meetings, as is done in England, in advance of declaring dividends.

"The stockholders should realize they are partners in a common venture, and that it is their duty alike on moral grounds and on grounds of self-interest, to hold their Directors, as trustees, to frequent accounting and a strict accountability for all their acts.

"The use of the misnomer 'Inter-State Commerce' should be discontinued, as the word 'inter' means 'between' rather than 'among.' The supervision of railroads should continue as at present under State and Federal authority. The State exercising such measure of regulation as shall provide for the local trade therein, prompt, frequent, and safe service, adequate to the growing needs of the public and retaining all its police power. The larger matters, which really affect 'Commerce among the several States' being relegated to Federal control, if need be through an amendment to the Constitution.

"As to Federal regulation, I believe that measures should be taken to expedite the investigation and determination of all questions affecting commerce among the several States by putting the administrative work under the direct control of the Executive, intrusting their judicial determination to the judiciary, and leaving with Congress itself all the legislative power.

"The attempt, under the present law, to vest in one body functions which our Constitution has vested in the Executive, legislative, and judicial branches of Government separately, should be given over. A purely administrative body should be created as a part of one of the departments of the Executive.

"The judicial functions hitherto exercised by the Inter-State Commerce Commission should be relegated to the courts where they properly belong. If needed, additional District and Circuit Judges should be appointed. The attempt by Congress to delegate the legislative function of fixing in advance the rates should be abandoned. At best, it is of doubtful constitutionality. All disputed cases before the Inter-State Commerce Commission must eventually be passed on by the courts. Congress should therefore so legislate as to really exepdite the final decision of such cases."

BRICE ORDERED TO JAIL.

Court Finds Late Senator's Son in Contempt and Directs His Arrest.

Capt. Stewart M. Brice, son of the late United States Senator Calvin S. Brice, was adjudged yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Leventritt to be in contempt of court for failure to pay $2,271, the amount of a judgment obtained against him some time ago by Christian F. A. Mullenkamp. The ground on which the claim is based was not stated. Sheriff Foley has now been directed to arrest Brice and put him in Ludlow Street Jail until the amount is paid.

The contempt lay in the fact that Brice refused to respond to an order obtained by Mullenkamp's counsel last December in supplementary proceedings. He was then living at 200 West 107th Street.

FIRE PANIC IN APARTMENT.

Janitor Spreads Alarm by Declaring Black Hand Caused Explosion.

A series of explosions which were strong enough to shake the three-story apartment house at Lincoln and St. Francis Places, Brooklyn, preceded a burst of flame and smoke which poured up through the cellar stairway into the lower hall at 9 o'clock last night. The six families who have apartments in the house were thrown into a panic and fled to the street. A few minutes later Pietro Pino, the janitor, ran up crying:

"The Black Hand! The Black Hand did it!"

To the police Pino explained that he had been receiving Black Hand letters for two months, but had paid no attention to them until a month ago, when he was warned that one of the buildings of which he was janitor would be fired unless he paid over a sum of money. A day or two later, said Pino, fire was discovered in 666 St. John's Place, one of his houses, and last Monday he got a letter saying that another would be set on fire soon.

The police believe that Pino's blackmailers set fire to the house last night by causing a gas meter to explode, which in turn touched off the other five in the cellar. The damage was about $3,500.

TWELFTH NIGHT ENTERTAINS.

Reception at the Club in Honor of Miss Emma Thursby.

The Twelfth Night Club gave a reception yesterday afternoon to Miss Emma Thursby, making a special day for the occasion. Many of the members were present with guests, and members of different clubs were invited. The club Presidents who were at the Society for Political Study and the William Lloyd Garrison Association earlier in the day enjoyed the hospitality of the Twelfth Night later.

Mrs. Edward A. Kidder, in introducing Miss Thursby, said:

"I am sure more people have been sung into heaven than have ever been preached or prayed there." She presented the Twelfth Night Club as a whole to Miss Thursby. Left alone on the dais at the end of the room where the Twelfth Night Club bestows its guests she said:

"I never did make a speech; I can't make a speech, but I do appreciate being received so charmingly."

Receiving were Mrs. Alice Fischer Harcourt, Miss Percy Haswell, and Mrs. Herbert Lincoln Aldrich.

Mrs. Charlotte Wilbour, Mrs. Lillie Devereux Blake, Mrs. William Tod Helmuth, and Mrs. John S. Crosby were among the club women present, and among the professional women and guests of the club were Miss Jennie Eustace, Miss Jane Oakers, Miss Margaret Bourne, Mme. Louise Gerard Thiers, Mrs. Maxwell Jones, Miss Tobias of London, Miss Espen, and Miss Lewis.

HAFFEN'S REALTY HOLDINGS.

His Testimony That He Had None in the Bronx Contradicted at Inquiry.

The Commissioners of Accounts, in continuing the Haffen inquiry yesterday at the City Hall, succeeded in getting evidence which directly contradicts evidence given by the Bronx Borough President on Monday.

Joseph A. Liebertz, Treasurer of the Sound View Realty Company, which is said to have large holdings along the lines of recent improvements in the Bronx, said on taking the stand: "Mr. Haffen is interested in the company. Mr. Haffen's ownership has not benefited the company in any way. There's nothing to hide." Mr. Haffen on Monday denied owning any shares in the company.

The witness said that the Borough President owned one-tenth of the stock of the company, amounting to fifty-two shares. His brother, John M. Haffen, he said, owned a like amount, and so did Superintendent of Highways Martin Geiszler. He produced the stock books, which were put in evidence. One of them contained President Haffen's signature on the stub.

Michael Cunningham, a former Inspector of Highways, told of having been transferred from job to job about as fast as he made reports of a nature adverse to the interest of the contractor. Mr. Cunningham testified that his reports had been made to the Borough President personally.

SAYS MONK WAS STRANGLED.

Detectives Think It Was the Work of Some One with a Grudge.

The murder of Vincenzo Bonanno, the former Franciscan monk, whose mutilated body was found in an unoccupied apartment on the first floor of 235 East Twenty-ninth Street on Monday afternoon, remained as much of a mystery as ever yesterday. Lieut. Petrosino admitted that the case was one of the most difficult ever put up to him, but said he hoped eventually to get at the bottom of it and arrest the guilty person.

Coroners' Physician O'Hanlon performed an autopsy on the body and reported to Coroner Shrady that the cause of death was asphyxia.

Dr. O'Hanlon says he believes that the man was first strangled by his assailants, who then slashed his head and face with the razor.

Petrosino says he is certain that robbery was not the motive behind the murder. He is of the opinion that it was perpetrated by some one who had a grudge against the former monk, and it is along that line that he and his detectives are working.

TUNNEL EXPLOIT A MYTH.

Tannazio's Run Through Tube Robbed of Its Sensational Features.

Calanares Tannazio of 427 East Seventeenth Street, who was famous for a few hours yesterday as the man who walked from the Christopher Street (Manhattan) station throuh the Hudson tunnels to the Hoboken station without being hit by a train and with a bullet embedded in his brain, did not deserve the notoriety that was given him.

Instead of having a bullet in his brain Tannazio had an insignificant scratch on the top of his head, and instead of walking through the Morton Street tunnel to Hoboken, through which trains run every minute or so, he ran like an Indian through the unfinished part of the tunnel spur that is to connect Jersey City with Hoboken.

MORE ELEVATED TRAINS.

The Interborough Ordered to Increase Its Second Avenue Service.

At the meeting of the Public Service Commission yesterday a final order was issued to the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for an increase of service on the Second Avenue elevated line. By this order the company must run seventy-seven more cars southward between 7 and 9 A. M., eighty-eight more cars northward between 3 and 7 P. M., and three more cars southward between 9 and 10 P. M.

The Third Avenue Company, which is in the hands of Receiver F. W. Whitridge, received an extension of thirty days in which to complete the overhauling of its Summer cars. The original order allowed the company until May 1. The amended order reads until May 31.

Vreeland Again a Grand Jury Witness.

In the continuation of the investigation of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company yesterday afternoon H. H. Vreeland was the only witness called before the special Grand Jury.

Bonner Estate Valued at $50,000.

The will of Fire Commissioner Hugh Bonner was filed yesterday for probate in the Surrogates' Office. The value of the estate was given at more than $10,000, both real and personal property, but it is understood that the actual value is about $50,000. The estate is left to his widow, Mrs. Mary E. Bonner, and his four sons and two daughters.

Vaudeville Man Must Pay Alimony.

Joshua Lowe, a vaudeville booking agent, was ordered by Supreme Court Justice Hendrick yesterday to pay his wife, Mrs. Deborah Frances Lowe, $15 a week alimony and a fifty-dollar counsel fee, pending the trial of an action for divorce.

WORRY OVER SCHOOLS CALLED HYSTERIA

Department of Education Denies That Buildings Now in Use Are Unsafe.

DANGEROUS ONES CLOSED

Superintendent of Buildings Says That Brooklyn Structures Were Closed Because of Popular Fear.

"Hysteria" is the word which some school authorities are using to describe the agitation which has followed the reports of the battalion chiefs to Fire Chief Croker on the unsafe condition of many of the public schools of New York.

Not a responsible head in the Department of Education can be found who will admit that any public school building now in use is unsafe, much less that it is a fire trap. Supt. Maxwell said yesterday:

"The public school buildings of New York are as safe as any in the United States, and safer than most of them. I have promptly closed every room and every building which the Superintendent of School Buildings has reported to me as unsafe. Of course, we should be glad to have new and better buildings in place of the older ones for many reasons besides that of protection from fire."

C. B. J. Snyder, Superintendent of School Buildings, whose business it is to know the condition of every school building in the city, said:

"Every possible precaution is being taken to insure the safety of the children intrusted to our care. All buildings and class rooms reported as having such stairways or exits as to endanger the pupils' safety have been closed. The three minute limit for rapid dismissal, received by the Committee on Fire Protection, appointed by President Winthrop last May, is being closely adhered to, the inspectors reporting that recent practice in some schools has cut the time down to less than two minutes."

Mr. Snyder will not admit that the building in Brooklyn, recently closed, was really unsafe, but the action was taken because of the popular dread regarding it. He said that it would be reopened as soon as certain alterations had been made.

Reports of the Battalion Chiefs which are now in the office of Commissioner Hayes go into great details regarding the condition in which they found the buildings, and recommendations are numerous and specific.

In the basements of some schools, oil, turpentine, furniture varnish, and other highly inflammable material were found—not in the vaults where they are usually kept, but in one instance, at least, in an open room which the janitor formerly used as a kitchen.

As the reports are quite similar, since the same defects were found in so many buildings, a small number of them selected from Manhattan will serve to illustrate the character of all. Here they are:

School 8, annex, 28 Macdougal Street; 16 extinguishers and 16 axes and hooks needed; telegraph communication—that is, a fire-alarm box; alarm gongs not working; gas lights not protected.

School 124, 29 Horatio Street, erected in 1858; fireproof doors needed on vaults under sidewalk, where gas meters are kept.

School 174, Attorney Street, near Rivington Street, the heart of the lower east side congested district, erected in 1898. Needed: Fire escapes on front and rear of building, all classroom doors to open outward, and iron stairway from sidewalk to entrance of building.

School 3, Hudson and Grove Streets, erected in 1821, rebuilt in 1906. Needed: Eight three-gallon fire extinguishers, 11 hooks, and 11 axes.

School 44, Hubert and Collister Streets, erected in 1899. Needed: Outside fire escapes and all wooden doors from cellar to first floor replaced by fireproof doors. Here the Battalion Chief also reports:

"I found in a room formerly used as a kitchen by the janitor 10 gallons of turpentine, 1 gallon of black varnish, 5 gallons of raw linseed oil, and 5 gallons of furniture varnish. This room needs a complete overhauling. Stairway from basement to children's yard in bad condition; should be removed or closed altogether."

School 107, 272 West Tenth Street, erected in 1844; all gas jets should be in wire globes; coal bin in bad condition; crude oil in basement, should be in vault; fire escape on east side of building needed.

School 125, 180 Wooster Street, erected in 1823; stairway from first floor to cellar of wood, should be iron; hooks, axes, and extinguishers in front of each door, and front and rear fire escapes needed.

Already $41,000 has been spent by the city in the purchase of fire escapes, and it is expected that these will be turned over to Supt. Snyder for use on the buildings in Manhattan.

QUEENS SCHOOL UNSAFE.

Frame Building Closed by District Superintendent as a Fire Trap.

An old frame building in Crescent Street, Astoria, which has been used as an annex to Public School 5, was closed yesterday by District Superintendent Franklin of Queens as unsafe. Three classes, numbering more than 100 children, attended this school.

AUTO FOR DEPUTY BAKER.

Aldermen Voted It Down Once, Thinking Car Was for Bingham.

At their meeting yesterday the Aldermen appropriated $600,000 for a new building for the Washington Irving High School.

Alderman Mulligan introduced a long resolution criticising the expenditure of $11,000,000 appropriated to the Board of Water Supply last week, in view of the necessity for subways, and appointing a special committee of which he was to be Chairman to investigate about every department of the city administration. Against Mr. Mulligan's protest the resolution was sent to the Committee on Rules.

A resolution allowing Deputy Police Commissioner Baker, in Brooklyn, to buy an automobile without public bidding was adopted after being rejected when some Aldermen thought Commissioner Bingham was to get the new machine.

Administrator for Dunlop Estate.

The Title Guarantee and Trust Company was appointed by Surrogate Beckett yesterday temporary administrator of the $600,000 estate of Dr. Clark W. Dunlop, who died recently after having been adjudged insane.

Magistrate Wahle Again Before Jury.

Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle was again a witness before the Grand Jury yesterday. Assistant District Attorney Smythe refused to say anything in regard to the Magistrate's appearance except to repeat that it had arisen from certain facts which had come into the District Attorney's hands.

COCKTAIL OLIVE DRUGGED?

Mrs. Mackenzie Says It Was and That She Was Entrapped by It.

An olive in a cocktail ordered for Mrs. Carrie Mackenzie in a café in West Sixty-seventh Street, which she testified to eating, plays an important part in the divorce proceedings which her husband, Dr. James C. Mackenzie, is bringing against her before Supreme Court Justice Platzek and a jury.

Mrs. Mackenzie testified yesterday that on Oct. 9 last she, in company with a Mrs. Bell, a man named Gilmore, and a chauffeur named Staples, went for an automobile ride. They stopped at several places where refreshments were served. Eventually, at the Sixty-seventh Street café, one of the party ordered her a cocktail. She said she did not drink the liquor, but ate the olive. Immediately following they all got into the automobile and were driven down to the Van Buren Hotel, in East Twenty-sixth Street.

Before that, it is declared, Staples had telephoned Dr. Mackenzie that the party was on its way to the Van Buren. On the way downtown, Mrs. Mackenzie said, she gradually lost her senses, until by the time they reached the hotel she had to be helped out of the machine and into an upstairs apartment. The next she remembered was struggling with a man in a room, and then the entrance of her husband, accompanied by several other men.

She was sure that the olive had been drugged, and said that it was all part of a plan to entrap her. She denied her husband's charges, and accused him of conspiracy in a plot to ruin her. During her cross-examination she broke down, and court was adjourned for fifteen minutes to allow her to regain composure.

A pathetic circumstance was the presence of the couple's two young children during the proceedings. The daughter, Mary Frazer Mackenzie, was on the stand for a few moments as a witness for her mother, but was withdrawn after a few questions had been put to her. Their young son also will be a witness for his mother in the counter-suit of Mrs. Mackenzie, in which she charges her husband with misconduct. Justice Platzek dismissed the conspiracy charge, saying that it must form the basis for a separate action.

FIGHT OVER LAMAR ESTATE.

Duchess d'Auxy Wants a Young Man, Suitor for Her Daughter, Trustee.

The Duchess d'Auxy of Brooklyn applied to Supreme Court Justice Hendrick yesterday through her counsel, Charles Caldwell, for the removal of the Morton Trust Company as trustee of an estate under which she is beneficiary. This was denied. The application was opposed by Robert and James T. Soutter and the trust company, as it was necessary to protect certain interests.

The Duchess said that in July, 1873, she and her first husband, Robert Soutter, entered into an agreement with Timothy H. Porter, as trustee of property in West Twenty-first Street, Manhattan, which belonged to her father, G. P. Lamar. In February, 1878, the State Trust Company, of which the Morton Trust Company is the successor, was appointed trustee.

It was said that the Duchess wished to have Frederick H. Jacobs, Jr., appointed in the place of the Morton Trust Company. In his affidavit Robert Soutter says that Jacobs is but 21 years old; that he now has charge of the Duchess's property, and that he intends, with her consent, to marry her daughter, now a minor.

TO END BAKER CASE TO-DAY.

Coroner Expects to Finish Taking Testimony as to His Death.

Coroner De Mund is likely to-day to close the investigation into the death of Walter Farnsworth Baker of Boston, who died at the home of Frank H. Hurd at Bogota, N. J., after a wild ride in an auto from Browne's chop house, Manhattan, on Oct. 26 last. The inquest will be resumed this afternoon at Hackensack. Undertaker William F. Ricardo, who embalmed the body of Baker, and Dr. G. Howard McFadden have been asked to attend the hearing.

FREED FROM VALET WHO WED AS MASTER

Court Annuls Marriage of Actress to Man Who Posed as Guest of Holland House.

GAVE HER STOLEN JEWELRY

Told Her After Wedding That He Had Been Disinherited — Sent to Elmira Reformatory.

The granting of a decree annulling the marriage of Mrs. Hazel May Chalmers, an actress known on the stage as Hazel May Hall, from Edwin T. Chalmers yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Blanchard closed a romance the theme of which, while often used by the writers of melodrama, is seldom met with in every-day life.

Miss Hall met Clahmers, a clean-cut young fellow, well dresed, and apparently of unlimited means, in the Winter of 1903-4. For three months they spent most of their time in each other's society, and on April 18, 1904, they were married at "the Little Church Around the Corner." Chalmers represented himself to be the son of a wealthy man staying at the Holland House, and seemingly bore this out by his lavish way of spending money and bestowing valuable presents on his fiancée.

Among the presents was a gold locket studded with the initials, "C. L. K." In it was the portrait of a young woman. He explained this by saying she was a former sweetheart whom he had given up for Miss Hall. He said, however, that he wanted to keep the picture. Other gifts included a gold chatelaine bag and diamond ring.

On the night of the wedding Chalmers told his bride that he wished it kept secret for a while, as his father might disinherit him if he knew of it. For two days they lived happily, but on the second day Chalmers stayed away all night. Next morning he appeared, apparently much worried. He said he had dropped their marriage certificate in his father's apartments in the Holland House, and their secret had been discovered. There had been a scene between his father and himself, he said, which ended with his father disinheriting him.

Then the bridegroom suggested that it would be well for the wife to do some work to keep the wolf from the door. She declined, saying that was not her idea of newly married life. The bridegroom then disappeared. Mrs. Chalmers became anxious, and determined to plead with the "cruel father." She went to the Holland House and inquired for Mr. Chalmers, Sr. They had a Mr. Chalmers staying there, and she was duly presented. Mr. Chalmers had never heard of her marriage. Explanations ensued, and Mrs. Chalmers again appealed at the hotel office.

From the description she gave of her husband, he was recognized as one Chalmers, valet to a Mr. Kohl, a guest of the hotel. Mrs. Chalmers saw Mr. Kohl and told him her troubles. While doing so she happened to expose the gold locket given to her by Chalmers. Mr. Kohl saw it and recognized it as his gift to his wife, whose portrait was inside.

Chalmers was found and arrested. All the jewelry he had given his bride had been stolen from Mr. and Mrs. Kohl. The latter sympathized with the young wife, and was inclined, having recovered the jewelry, to be lenient. But when Chalmers was brought in by a detective and found to be wearing a suit of Mr. Kohl's latest wardrobe, even to the shirt, it was too much.

Chalmers was charged with grand larceny, and sent to Elmira Reformatory for four years. He pleaded by way of excuse that he loved his wife so much that he stole for her. That might be accepted on the stage, but not in real life, and Mrs. Chalmers began the annulment proceedings, which ended yesterday.

TENEMENT SET ABLAZE.

Rags Soaked in Kerosene Found in East Sixty-third Street Building.

An attempt was made yesterday morning to burn the tenement at 334 East Sixty-third Street. Rags were soaked in kerosene oil and ignited in the hallways on the fourth and fifth floors, and more oil had been spread around the roof.

Tenants discovered the blaze in the hall, and there was a panic immediately. Clad in their nightclothes, men, women, and children ran for the street, and some one fired a revolver. Policeman Barry, with the help of two young Italians, smothered the blaze. The building was formerly owned by John Bozusse, an Italian.

As New as the Spring

Everything is relative—overcoats that are in style are worth more than overcoats out of style. This year's coat is marked from last year's in many little ways—and its smartness is added to by the clever manner in which these various changes are executed.

At $25 we present a smart showing of fancy and black overcoats—Coverts, Diagonals, Stripes, Herringbones, Overplaids, Cravenettes, and plain smooth fabrics—silk lined, of course—with the full, boxy back, hanging straight from the shoulders.

If the collar's the top note of an overcoat—this Spring strikes a different note.

The velvet collars of the last few years have sensibly retired from Spring overcoats in favor of collars of the same fabric as the coat.

Of course we always have a sprinkling of coats with velvet collars for those who prefer them.

"Buttoned through" rough cheviot coats are the Spring novelty for men who like to be just a little ahead of most other men.

MORRISSEY FIRST IN 25-MILE RACE

Mercury A. C. Athlete Wins Long Distance Run, with Hayden Second.

OLD-TIMERS "KILLED OFF"

Veteran Performers Are Unable to Stand the Pace Set by Young Contestants—Compelled to Quit.

Youth triumphed over age and experience last night in the 25-mile indoor race held at Fiss, Doerr & Carroll's Arena, Twenty-fourth Street and Lexington Avenue, when J. P. Morrissey and Al Hayden of the Mercury Athletic Club finished first and second respectively. The leaders at the finish are practically newcomers in the long-distance ranks, and by stern determination and grit won from men of long experience and enviable records.

Of the nineteen starters only seven finished the race. E. P. Carr, Xavier Athletic Association, the victor in many long-distance runs, was compelled to quit shortly after completing the fourteenth mile, after being two laps in the lead. Fred. Lory, Mohawk Athletic Club, another veteran distance man, was also compelled to withdraw before covering half the distance, as was also S. A. Mellor, Jr., Mercury Athletic Club, who for thirteen miles forced Carr to do his best, and afterward succumbed. W. G. Frank, another old-timer, was outclassed and unable to sustain the fast pace.

The race proved an interesting event, and attracted about two thousand persons, who showed keen enjoyment in the long grind. It was an auspicious revival of the formerly popular long-distance amateur runs.

Of the original twenty entries two declined the issue, and one man was added, making a total of nineteen starters. At the crack of the pistol William Rozett, Pastime Athletic Club, went to the front, but before traversing half a lap he was passed by John Lindquest of the Svea Athletic and Gymnastic Club, who finished the first lap five yards ahead of Rozett, with Eddie Carr third, two yards behind Rozett. The majority of the runners started off at a mile clip, but a few turns of the fourteen-lap track brought them to their level, and they quickly got down to a steady grind. There were many changes in the leadership before the end of the first mile was reached. W. G. Frank, Irish-American Athletic Club, led at the end of the first mile, which was covered in 5:24 3-5. Eddie Carr was a close second. The same order was maintained in the second mile, Frank's time being 10:55. At this point several of the younger contestants began to show fatigue. In the next mile Carr replaced Frank in the lead, with both men traveling at good speed.

At the end of the fifth mile Frank and Carr had lapped the other contestants several times. Frank led Carr by five yards in 28:58. Several of the other runners were tiring and ran with drooping heads and halting strides.

After passing the fifth mile the pace slowed down perceptibly, Carr and Frank showing the best form, with S. A. Mellor, Jr., Mercury A. C., a former Marathon winner, dogging them at every stride. At the sixth mile Carr again replaced Frank and led by several yards in 35:19.

As the leaders approached the eighth mile Mellor increased his pace and took the lead away from Carr, but the Xavier A. A. champion regained his lead at the eight mile, but lost it again to Mellor, who was running strong. Mellor retained the lead up to the end of the ninth mile, with Carr second. The time was 53:31, the ninth mile being covered in less than 6 minutes.

Just before the completion of the tenth mile Mellor and Carr both lapped Frank, the former having increased his lead over Carr to half a lap. At the end of the tenth mile Mellor had a commanding lead over Carr, with Frank far behind. Two hundred yards further on Mellor lapped Carr amid much applause. The pace proved too much for Mellor, who weakened under the strain, and before the end of the eleventh mile Carr had regained his lost lap and led the Mercury Athletic Club man at the finish of the mile by more than half a lap. The Xavier veteran pushed Mellor so hard that the latter quit in the fifth lap of the thirteenth mile. Fred Lorz, Mohawk Athletic Club, also found the pace too hot and retired.

Carr's knee gave out at the fourteenth mile, and he retired for two laps to have it rubbed. He returned to the track, but soon was compelled to give up the race. J. P. Morrisey and Al Hayden, Mercury Athletic Club, then took up the running. The former led at the fifteenth mile, with Hayden close up. Frank was half a mile in the rear, and finally gave up in the seventeenth mile.

The field was reduced to eight contestants when the last five miles were reached. At this stage Morrisey and Hayden had a clear lead of ten laps over the nearest competitor. Morrisey drew away from his clubmate in the twenty-third mile. From this point he had matters all his own way and won by a mile. James Clark, Xavier Athletic Club, was third. The winner's time was 2:54:55, less than 2 minutes behind the record. The summary:

Twenty-five-Mile Run.—Won by J. P. Morrissey, Mercury Athletic Club; Al Hayden, Mercury Athletic Club, second; James Clark, Xavier Athletic Association, third. Time—2:54:55.

Dorsey Outpoints Bender.

Jack Dorsey and Tony Bender of Elizabeth furnished the main bout of six rounds at Brown's Gymnasium last night, with Dorsey having the better of it on points. The semi-windup was for six rounds between Johnny Carroll and "Sailor" Brown. Carroll has the reputation of being a heavy hitter, but he was unable to land effectively and lost on points. The opening bout was short. The principals were Kid White and Fred Golden. White landed on the point of the chin, and Golden went to the floor. "Joe Grim" of Providence outfought Harry Lortz in four fast rounds, and Harry Hill and Jem Mace participated in a fast and slashing four-round draw.

SEVENTH'S MEN AT HOCKEY.

Co. K Wins Championship of Regiment from Co. I at St. Nicholas Rink.

Skillful hockey was at a discount in the meeting between Companies I and K for the championship of the Seventh Regiment at St. Nicholas Rink last night, but the vigor displayed by the contestants and the closeness of the struggle kept the three or four hundred spectators at fever heat from start to finish. Company I, with Marshall Peabody of the New York Athletic Club as its leader, was expected to retain the honors won in the usual annual game between the two teams, but Company K outmanoeuvred its opponents and won by 2 goals to 1. Last year Company I was victorious by a score of 7 goals to 6.

With Oscar Coolican of the New York Athletic Club as referee, the two sevens faced each other in two twenty-minute halves, and Company K immediately began its attack on Peabody. He was looked upon as the dangerous element by Company K's men, and they watched the "Winged Foot" representative closely. Whenever he got the puck the entire team of Company K centred around him, and eventually stopped his progress. In only one instance throughout the game, however, was there any evidence shown of rough playing, and that was by Richards in the second half, who was penalized by a two minutes' retirement from the ice.

The play in the first half alternated in each team's territory until within five minutes of the close of play, when D. Struthers of Company K got the puck in a scrimmage close to Company I's goal, and amid much excitement scored the first point of the game. Shortly before the half closed Richards secured the puck half way down the rink, and by clever dribbling scored the second goal for Company K, the half ending with a shutout for Company I.

So evenly did the teams play in the second half that all indications pointed to no further scoring. The goal keeping of King Smith, the well-known angler, was a feature of the playing, but on a beautiful pass by Peabody Kelley placed the puck in the cage for the first and only time for Company I.

The line-up:

Company K, (2.)	Position.	Company I, (1.)
Smith	Goal	Eaken
Washburn	Point	C. McKenna
Richards	Cover point	A. McKenna
W. W. Struthers	Centre	Kelley
D. Struthers	Rover	Peabody
Fiske	Right wing	Milligan

Goals—First half, D. Struthers, Richards; second half, Kelley. Referee—Oscar Coolican, New York Athletic Club. Goal umpires—R. W. Myers and A. Coe. Time of game—Twenty-minute halves.

In the afternoon the teams of Cutler and Trinity played a game in the interscholastic series, which Cutler won very handily by 7 to 0. The result will bring Groff and Cutler together to-morrow night, and on Friday the winner of that game will play "Poly. Prep." for the championship. The line-up and score last night follow:

Cutler, 7.	Position.	Trinity, 0.
Stark	Goal	Powers
Storey	Point	Taylor
Herrick	Cover point	Harris
McLaughlin	Centre	Bolet
Nelson	Rover	Barbour
Orr	Right wing	McClave

Goals—White, 4; Orr, 2; McLaughlin, 1. Referee—Franklin Thompson, St. Nicholas Hockey Club. Time of halves—Twenty minutes.

ST. GEORGE WRESTLERS WIN.

Columbia Team Defeated by 4 to 2—Some Hard-Fought Matches.

The St. George wrestlers won the dual meet with Columbia University last night in the rooms of the St. George Athletic Club, East Sixteenth Street. The home team won by 4 bouts to 2. Columbia forfeited the 158-pound class to St. George, so that only five bouts were contested. Columbia's two victories were in the 135 and 145 pound classes. Shirmer won the former, beating Schmidt on general work, after fifteen minutes, an extra bout, and then an additional three minutes being required. In the 145-pound contest Ullman threw Schoencigel in 4:10, after a lively tussle.

The 115-pound event required fifteen minutes, Lehman of St. George and Winslow of Columbia being very evenly matched, but the former got the decision on general work. The shortest bout was in the 125-pound class, between Mahoney of St. George and Rockwood of Columbia. It lasted but sixteen seconds, when Mahoney, by a half-Nelson and crotch hold, threw his opponent handily. The heavyweight match was captured by R. Tisney of the home team, who threw Charles Moore, after a splendid exhibition, by a half-Nelson, in 5:31. The referee was A. Mellinger of St. Bartholomew's A. C.

Giants Shut Out Austin College.

Special to The New York Times.

SHERMAN, Texas, March 24.—To-day's victory of the Giants over Austin College was so easy that Manager McGraw sent his men through nine innings, that included six runs and eighteen hits, in less than an hour of play. Joe McGinnity worked the full game. Joe lobbed the ball over straight and easy. Tenney and Seymour led the Giants at the bat, the first baseman getting three singles, while "Si" cracked out two doubles. Score by innings:

										R.	H.	E.

Another Wet Day for Yankees.

ATLANTA, Ga., March 24.—The Yankees were unable to practice to-day on account of the rain, which started again just as the team arrived at the park. This makes the third successive day the team has been without practice. The Yankees will leave for Chattanooga to-morrow morning and play the Toledo team there on Wednesday and Thursday.

Two Yale Pitchers Disqualified.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 24.—Arthur Merritt, the best pitcher on the Yale baseball squad, has been disqualified by the Faculty, and Capt. Tad Jones of the 'Varsity nine said to-night that he saw no chance of Merritt being able to play this year. He has scholarship troubles. Pitcher Van Vleck has also been declared ineligible to join the team.

Cornell Nine Is Selected.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 24.—Coach Coogan to-day made the final selection of the Cornell baseball squad, which will leave Thursday for the annual Southern trip, opening with a game at Annapolis on Saturday. The team will be: Pitchers, Gable, Caldwell, Goodwillie, and Barker; catchers, Lally and Williams; first base, Watton; second base, Reiber; short stop, Heitman; third base, Matchneer; outfielders, Cornwall, Fulton, Jones, and Herbold.

Carp are plentiful in many of the best game fish streams in the country. Young carp is the favorite food of the young and adult bass. Many fishermen contend the carp eat the game fish, but this is contradicted by experts familiar with the habits of the carp. Illinois is the leading State in the country in the production of carp, the annual catch amounting to 20,000,000 pounds. It is said that thousands of pounds of carp are prepared as "excellent canned salmon."

Worms and dough balls are best bait for carp, but there are instances where they will bite at live minnows.

Striped bass will soon go up the Hudson River to spawn, and they usually begin to bite early in May.

The trout season opens on Long Island next Saturday and will continue until Aug. 30. For the rest of the State the season opens on April 16 and closes on Aug. 31. Black bass can be caught on Long Island May 30 and in other portions of the State June 16.

South Brooklyn has a new fishing organization called the Overland Anglers. The members, although young men, are enthusiastic fishermen, and according to the itinerary arranged a lively season will be the outcome. The men who have been placed at the head of affairs are: President—John Heebner; Vice President—Richard Cambrick; Secretary—Henry Stevens; Treasurer—Dave Warwick; Governors—Charles Johnson, Peter Gannon, Ted Roberts, and James Jones.

AUTOISTS EAGER TO FORM NEW CLUB

Action, However, May Be Deferred Until After the A. C. A. Annual Meeting.

RADICAL CHANGES COMING

Younger Element to Make Fight to Control Its Policy—New Club to be Run on Popular Lines.

It was learned yesterday that the plan to organize a new automobile club, which would be the New York City representative in the American Automobile Association, has reached such significant proportions that the statement was made by one of those actively interested in the scheme that something definite would be forthcoming within the next week. A number of autoists who returned from the recent Savannah stock car races discussed the situation at considerable length, it was ascertained, both in Savannah and on their homeward trip, with the result that the opinion was almost unanimous for a new club to be run on popular lines. In this group of motorists were from eight to ten members of the Automobile Club of America, which has just withdrawn from the Automobile Association of America.

From other sources where the plans for the proposed club have been quietly broached it was learned that there is a disposition to wait until after the annual meeting of the Automobile Club of America on April 14 next. Members who profess to know what is going on in the club have no hesitancy in admitting that an upheaval such as the A. C. A. has never experienced before is looked for at this meeting. The younger and newer element is going to make a fight for power to dictate the policy of the club, suggest popular competitions, and in various other ways make a determined effort to demonstrate the usefulness of the club in so unmistakable a manner as to cause a majority and not a minority of the more than 1,200 members to make a personal use of the club and take an active interest in its doings.

"I have heard something of these rumors," said A. R. Pardington yesterday. "I am a member of the A. C. A., and I did not hesitate to write President Colgate Hoyt that I regretted the recent action of the club, and I also told him that I thought it had weakened the club's usefulness materially. I think, with tactfulness, the difficulty might have been avoided. I am taking, however, no active part for a new club, for I think it will be time enough to discuss that after the A. C. A. annual meeting."

In fact, the inference was clearly made by some of the A. C. A. members who are not in accord with the recent action of the Governors that, provided the expected upheaval accomplishes what is hoped for, the action of the club may in a short time be reversed and the A. C. A. return to the fold of the A. A. A. It is owing to this probability that among the more conservative motorists there is a tendency to postpone any radical steps until after April 14. The Board of Governors is required to announce the ticket proposed by the Nominating Committee two weeks before the meeting, and the members of the club are anxiously awaiting the list of names.

If the new automobile club is organized it is the intention of those vitally interested in the movement to make it a thoroughly popular club in every sense of the word. The new President has virtually been selected, and other prominent names are being considered for the other offices. The headquarters of the club will be near the Central Park Circle and Broadway. Its annual dues will be from to $25.

An autoist, who talked over the matter with Jefferson De Mont Thompson, Chairman of the A. A. A. Racing Board in Savannah, said that Mr. Thompson was in favor of the plan and would become a member. Mr. Thompson is a member of the A. C. A., and a short time ago an effort was made by some of his friends to induce him to stand for the Presidency, but he has positively declined the use of his name. As William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has assured President Hotchkiss that he intends to remain a Director of the A. A. A., it is confidently believed that he will also join the new club.

VANDERBILT CUP RACE.

Savannah, Next to Long Island, Best Place to Hold Event.

The New York automobilists who attended the races at Savannah last week have returned to this city enthusiastic over the conduct of the contests and the results achieved. All of the official party that went South returned with the exception of Jefferson De Mont Thompson, who stopped off at Washington for a few days. In the absence of the Racing Chairman, A. G. Batchelder declared that the success of the Southern meet was particularly gratifying to him, as it demonstrated beyond doubt the possibility of conducting road races under military police regulations with absolute safety to the public and contestants. By the demonstration of this fact alone it insured the holding of the Vanderbilt Cup race in the South, if a properly policed course could not be found on Long Island.

"The Racing and Technical Boards were a unit in declaring that the meet insured the holding of the Vanderbilt Cup race again by proving the possibility of conducting a race without danger to the public," said Mr. Batchelder. "It may be the course on Long Island will be near enough to completion to enable us to hold the race there by introducing a short stretch of public roads which might be safely policed, but if this does not prove practical, there is the course at Savannah which may be utilized, with perfect policing and immunity from danger.

"Every one agrees that it is desirable to hold the race on Long Island within easy access of New York if it is at all possible, but we would rather go to Savannah than not race at all. It would be possible by adding two short stretches of road near the Savannah course to make a twenty-five mile circuit that would afford a perfect course for the cup race, and the Savannah people are prepared to arrange the circuit on this basis. This was the most pleasing feature of the meeting to us, and I think it will be good news to the automobiling public."

Summer Home for Autoists.

Definite action may be taken to-night at the meeting of the Long Island Automobile Club on the proposition to obtain a Summer clubhouse at Bay Shore. Allen C. Alderman, who was appointed Chairman of the committee a month ago to investigate the matter, will present his report. The members are heartily in favor of the Summer plan, and it is believed that satisfactory arrangements can be made whereby the Long Island autoists will have a Summer home early this season. The plan is to rent or purchase the old Peter Cooper home, which is a large house, with ample grounds, overlooking Great South Bay. The Membership Committee will propose eighteen new members to-night, among them being Charles H. Hyde, Clinton S. Scholes, David M. Hasbrouck, Harry Hitchings, Dr. Russell M. Rowe, Charles W. Holloway, Jay S. Jones, and Edwin A. Cruikshank.

Auto Club Officers.

It was learned yesterday that a surprise is in store for autoists when the report will be announced of the officers selected for election at the coming annual meeting of the Automobile Club of America by the Nominating Committee. A meeting of the Board of Governors was held yesterday in the clubrooms, West Fifty-fourth Street, near Broadway. The nominations were presented to the Governors, and while no information was vouchsafed as to the candidates, it was stated that the meeting was entirely harmonious, and that while the ticket will show some radical changes, it will be one that will merit the hearty support of the club membership. While the Governors are not required to announce the nominations to the members until within two weeks of the annual meeting, it was said that the report will probably be made public this week. The annual meeting will be held on the evening of April 14.

AZURE MAID A "GOOD THING."

McDaniel Rides Well-Played Horse to an Easy Victory at Benning.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Although the card offered by the Washington Jockey Club at Benning to-day was in no respect attractive, the sport was really better than it was at the opening of the meeting yesterday. Beautiful weather improved the attendance materially. The track had dried out somewhat.

The "good thing" of the day was Azure Maid in the fourth. While Billy B. Van was made the favorite, the play on Azure Maid was heavy. McDaniel, her jockey, had difficulty in getting her to the barrier and was thrown once. Azure Maid went straight to the front and won, eased up. Poquessing was the only winning favorite. The summaries:

FIRST RACE.—Fillies and mares, three years old and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Goes Fast, 94 pounds, (McCarthy,) 9 to 5, 2 to 5, and out, won; Comedienne, 115, (McDaniel,) 6 to 5, 1 to 5, and out, second; Helen B., 94, (McCahey,) 20 to 1, 3 to 1, and out, third. Time—1:18. Queen Lead also ran.

SECOND RACE.—Maiden two-year-olds; four furlongs, old course. Personal, 104 pounds, (Brussel,) 30 to 1, 12 to 1, and 6 to 1, won; Balbek, 107, (McCarthy,) 6 to 1, 2 to 1, and even, second; Huldy, 104, (W. Walsh,) 60 to 1, 20 to 1, and 10 to 1, third. Time—0:52. Don Lear, Great Jubilee, Gerald, Sig, Sir Cannon, Markham, Jack Glenn, Trappe, Helen Hills, Takahira, Tiana, and Cheek also ran.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; six and a half furlongs, Columbia course. Poquessing, 106 pounds, (McCarthy,) 13 to 20 and out, won; Firebrand, 111, (McDaniel,) 7 to 1, 2 to 1, and 4 to 5, second; Glaucus, 96, (McCahey,) 4½ to 1, 2 to 1, and 2 to 5, third. Time—1:24 2-5. Listless, Shackie, and Denial also ran.

FOURTH RACE.—Maiden three-year olds; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Azure Maid, 101 pounds, (McDaniel,) 13 to 5, 4 to 5, and out, won; Tennys, 103, (T. Burns,) 6 to 1, 2 to 1, and 4 to 5, second; Billy B. Van, 103, (Quarrington,) 6 to 5, 2 to 5, and out, third. Time—1:33. Coppers and Strong Heart also ran.

FIFTH RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course—Beggar Man, 93 pounds, (McCarthy,) 10 to 1, 3 to 1, and 8 to 5, won; Kempton, 105, (J. Walsh,) 20 to 1, 6 to 1, and 3 to 1, second; Workman, 110, (Shaw,) 10 to 1, 3 to 1, and even, third. Time—1:18 2-5. Battle Axe, Right and True, Higginbotham, Flat, Little Woods, Neoskaleta, Bobbin' Around, and Paul Pry also ran.

SIXTH RACE.—Handicap; for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and forty yards, Columbia course—Holscher, 115 pounds, (T. Burns,) 5 to 2, even, and out, won; Littleton Maid, 94, (McCarthy,) 2 to 1, 9 to 10, and out, second; Campaigner, 95, (Walsh,) 5 to 1, 7 to 5, and out, third. Time—1:48 1-5. Peter Knight and Water Dog also ran.

Entries for Benning Races.

FIRST RACE.—For three-year-olds and upward; five and one-half furlongs, Columbia course. L'Amour, 108 pounds; Wm. H. Lyon, 104; N'Importe, 99; Prowler, 96; Tealeaf, 94; Nano, 87.

SECOND RACE.—For maidens, two years old; four and one-half furlongs, old course. Al Busch, Brown Tony, and Footloose, 110 pounds each; Taboo, Bonnie Kelso, Arrowshaft, and Ragman, 107 each.

THIRD RACE.—Selling, for three-year-olds and upward; seven furlongs, Columbia course. Oraculum, 116 pounds; Animus, 114; *Workmaid, 108; *Lally, 101; *Poquessing, 100.

FOURTH RACE.—For maidens, three year olds and upward; six furlongs, Columbia course. Jim Nutwood, Arlington, and Ora Lee, 115 pounds each; Call Boy, Richmond Duke, Hartford Boy, and Sherring, 101; Profusion, Ferry Landing, Putnam, Cartwheel, 98 each; Alloy, 96.

FIFTH RACE.—Steeplechase; for maidens; about two miles. Flying Machine, 156 pounds; Finn McCool, Aiken, Eric, Percentage, Penarris, and Wayside, 137 each; Bessie Kiser, 135.

SIXTH RACE.—Selling; for three-year-olds and upward; one mile and forty yards, Columbia course. Animus, 111 pounds; Reidmoore, 110; Al H. Woods, 108; Delphie, 105; *Lally, 103; Kingsessing, 88.

*Apprentice allowance claimed.

Jockey Martin Wins on Kaffir Chief.

LINCOLN, England, March 24.—The Lincolnshire Handicap, 1,500 sovereigns, for three years old and upward, the fist big race of the Spring season, was carried off to-day by J. H. Martin, an American jockey, on F. S. Barnard's Kaffir Chief. Longcroft was second, and Snatch ran third. Twenty horses started. Martin's mount was an outsider, and started in the betting at 100 to 7.

Mackenzie Quits Columbia Crew.

James C. Mackenzie, Jr., who rowed No. 2 on the Columbia eight last year, will not be able to compete for the Blue and White at Poughkeepsie this Summer. He told Coach Rice yesterday that his father had definitely decided he must not row, as he objected to his trying to master a hard architecture course and row at the same time. His absence leaves five veterans of last year's Poughkeepsie race in the boat, besides Jordan, who rowed No. 2 in the Harvard race. Mackenzie's absence made a slight shift necessary in the boat yesterday. His place was taken by Keator of last year's freshman boat.

New Defender of Gold Challenge Cup.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., March 24.—A new defender of the gold Challenge Cup of the American Power Boat Association, to be competed for in championship races on the St. Lawrence River next August, will be built by the widow of Jonathan Wainwright of Philadelphia, a late Summer resident here. Mr. Wainwright successfully defended the Chippewa Yacht Club's title to the cup against the world for three years with defenders Chip I. and Chip II., and intended to try again this year, but death intervened. In compliance with a wish he expressed shortly before his death, his widow and a former business partner will put a new craft into commission for the defense of the cup this season.

Billiard and Pool Results.

F. Meehan won an easy match last night in the pool tournament at John T. Doyle's Academy, defeating C. Perrin 50 to 33 in eighteen innings. Perrin's high run was 10 and Meehan's was 8.

It required fourteen innings for Willie Hoppe to again demonstrate his superiority at 18.2 balkline billiards over Jake Schaefer at Gruhn's academy last night. Hoppe made 400 points to his opponent's 306, and had an average of 28 8-14. Schaefer had contributions of 125, 41, and 22, while Hoppe had 115, 69, and 69. Schaefer's average was 21 12-14.

George F. Slosson and Champion George Sutton found F. Cassignol, the French billiard expert, an easy opponent in the 18.2 series of matches at Slosson's Academy yesterday. Cassignol opposed Slosson in the afternoon and was beaten 300 to 275. Slosson averaged 16.6-19, with high runs of 55, 45, and 38, against the Frenchman's 14 9-19 and high runs of 54, 44, and 41. In the evening Sutton outplayed Cassignol two to one. Sutton made 500 points in thirteen innings, with an average of 38 7-13. Cassignol's score was 139, and his average 10 9-13. Sutton made runs of 178, 55, and 52, and Cassignol 25, 18, and 28.

Auto Carnival Hill Climb Entries.

A resolution was adopted yesterday by the Executive and Finance Committees in charge of the automobile carnival, which takes place the week of April 6, whereby entries for the Fort George hill climb on April 9 will be open to cars whose agents or dealers are not represented on the subscription lists toward defraying the carnival expenses. The entrance fee for the hill climb for cars which are not subscribers will be $110 for the first entry and $10 for each additional entry. The committee felt that this was the fairest plan to adopt in view of the fact that those who have subscribed for the carnival fund have made it possible for the hill climb to be conducted. From present indications this will be the largest hill-climbing event ever held in this country, both from the standpoint of the number of entries and the diversity of power of the cars themselves.

Dr. Schuyler S. Wheeler of the Automobile Club of America has consented to act as one of the judges for the decorated division of the motorcar parade on the night of April 7.

Carnegie Helps Olympic Fund.

Caspar W. Whitney, President of the American Committee of the Olympic Games of 1908, received yesterday contributions of $500 to the American Olympic Fund from Andrew Carnegie.

NEW YORK BOXERS WIN.

But Status of Some Contestants Must Be Established Before Prizes Are Awarded.

BOSTON, March 24.—Four of the seven championship bouts in the National amateur boxing championship tournament at Mechanics' Hall to-night were won by New York boxers, while the championship titles in the three other classes were taken by Boston men. There is some question as to the awarding of the championship titles to the New York boxers, who won the final bouts, entitling them to the championship in the 115, 125, 135, and heavyweight classes, as a telegram was received during the progress of the tournament from James E. Sullivan of New York, President of the Amateur Athletic Union, advising the management of the Boston Athletic Association, under whose auspices the bouts were held, to hold back the first and second prizes from the New York men until an investigation of their amateur standing could be made. This delays the award of eight prizes, as four New York men reached the finals in addition to those who won their bouts.

But one of last year's National title holders participated in to-night's tourney, and he, Emory Payne of New York, was defeated in the finals of the heavyweight class by a fellow-boxer from New York, Thomas Kennedy, in the feature event of the nineteen which were decided during the evening. Summaries:

115-Pound Class.—Angus McDougall, Boston, defeated C. McDonald, Cambridge, in four rounds.

115-Pound Class.—M. J. Carroll, New York, defeated T. J. Maloney, New York, in three rounds.

125-Pound Class.—E. J. Walsh, New York, defeated James Mullen, Gloucester, one round.

135-Pound Class.—J. Denning, New York, defeated F. Bannon, New York, three rounds.

145-Pound Class.—William Rolfe, Boston, defeated Michael Carr, Boston, one round.

158-Pound Class.—Henry Hall, Boston, defeated Peter Kenney, New York, three rounds.

Second Round in Chess Tourney.

VIENNA, March 24.—Play in the international chess masters' tournament, in this city, was resumed this morning, when the second round was contested. The Russian player, Salwe, was pitted against Marshall, who played the black pieces. In the course of the game Marshall made a brilliant sacrifice of a piece and won in his best style. His countryman, Johner, fell an easy prey to the Russian Rubinstein. Like Marshall, Swiderski, too, won his game against Berger by brilliant play, giving up a piece for position. The other games resulted as follows: Suechting lost to Duras, Tartakower to Schlechter, Reti to Cohn, while the games Leonhardt-Teichmann, Spielmann-Maroczy, Perlis-Alapin, and Bardeleben-Mieses ended in drawn batles. Rubinstein and Schlechter lead the field with two wins each to their respective credits.

NEW LIGHT ON REVISION.

The action of the Iowa Republican Convention on the question of the tariff is the most significant event that has yet been reported in the process of preparation for the Presidential campaign of this year. The convention was in the hands of the wing of the party usually most strongly opposed to progress in this matter. They adopted the Ohio declaration. It is plain that they would not have done so had they not been convinced that the opinion of the party is very strongly in favor of that declaration. It was not a question of placating a minority of kickers; it was a question of embodying the prevailing sentiment. Nor is it to be assumed for a moment that the shrewd and experienced politicians of the State of Mr. ALLISON did not fully understand the scope and true meaning of the declaration. Here it is:

> A revision of the tariff by a special session of the next Congress insuring the maintenance of the true principle of protection by imposing such customs duties as will equal the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with a reasonable profit, to the end that, without excessive duties, American manufacturers, farmers, producers, and wage earners may have adequate protection.

It is predicted from Washington that this declaration will be adopted by all the States of the Middle West, that is to say, besides Ohio and Iowa, which have already acted, by Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin. These seven States have nearly one-fourth of the population of the Union; they have 116 of the 483 votes in the Electoral Colleges, or 24 per cent.; they cast not far from one-third of the Republican votes of the Nation. Surely it would be a matter of no small consequence if they should take so definite and bold a stand on tariff revision as is announced in the resolution of Mr. TAFT's own State. A like plank in the National platform would be almost inevitable.

Then, in case of a Republican victory, we should have the party pledged (1) against "excessive duties"; (2) to duties that would represent only "the difference between the cost of production at home and abroad, with a reasonable profit"; (3) to revision on this basis at a special session of the next Congress, the term of which would begin with the inauguration of the President, and (4) we should in Mr. TAFT have a President who had deliberately given his sanction from the very start to this policy, who must thoroughly understand what it is and what it implies. If these things come about, it would be well within the probabilities that Mr. TAFT could begin and carry out an industrial and fiscal reform at the outset of his term that would prove many times more practically beneficent than all the projects to which his predecessor has devoted so much time and effort. Multitudes of sensible Americans, weary of the vain turmoil of the last four years, will pray that it may be so.

THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE.

The Duke of DEVONSHIRE was a man of commanding presence, serious demeanor, and a high order of intellect. He was never a very popular man in Great Britain, even in the days of his political leadership as the Marquis of HARTINGTON, but he had the respect alike of his followers and his opponents, and deserved it. He was in the House of Commons from 1857, when he was 24 years old, until 1891, when he succeeded to the Dukedom. He filled many important Ministerial offices, and was Secretary of State for War in 1866, Postmaster General from 1868 to 1871, Chief Secretary for Ireland, 1871-4, and Secretary for India in the eighties. He was prominent in the recent Unionist Ministry until Mr. BALFOUR's acceptance of Mr. CHAMBERLAIN's tariff policy, when he withdrew, as he had withdrawn from Mr. GLADSTONE's following on the Home Rule issue. His defection on both occasions caused much political excitement, as his influence was potent even in his later years.

The Duke's political career never brought him into personal relations with this country. He visited the United States during the civil war, and his too obvious sympathy with the Confederates was then a matter of common report. The story that President LINCOLN, in social conversation, addressed the Marquis of HARTINGTON as "Mr. Partington" is one of the surviving legends. It is probably untrue. The Marquis was a very young man then, and his presence caused no commotion. Quite recently he gave public utterance to his belief in the increasing friendliness of the people of Great Britain and the United States.

The Duke was a bachelor until after his inheritance of the title, when he married LOUISE, the Dowager Duchess of MANCHESTER, (Comtesse D'ALTEN,) whose sagacious influence, according to popular belief, had been useful to him in the crises of his public career. He leaves no children, and the Dukedom will fall to Mr. VICTOR CAVENDISH, M. P., his nephew. Presumably some of the vast landed estate, which has descended in a direct line for some generations, will go to others. It comprises 186,000 acres, mostly in England, and including Chatsworth and Hardwicke, Derbyshire, and properties in Westmoreland and Yorkshire which have been in the possession of the CAVENDISHES since the reign of HENRY VIII. The Duke was Lord of the Manor at Eastbourne, on the South Coast, and had a castle in Ireland, while Devonshire House, modestly set down as 78 Piccadilly, occupies a square block in the most expensive quarter of London.

MILESTONES OF REACTION.

There is no novelty of principle in the Supreme Court's decisions sustaining the Judges below who had suspended the operation of Minnesota and North Carolina statutes until their merits could be tried. The unappealable authority under our institutions simply applies principles as old as the Union to the special cases created by the action of Legislatures. In the Minnesota case it was Judge LOCHREN who said that the attempted legislation "is a disgrace almost to the civilization of the age. It is a reproach on the intelligence and sense of justice of any Legislature which would promote acts of that kind." Judge PRITCHARD in North Carolina indulged himself in no such language, although there was a trace of bitterness when the surrender by the complainant railways embarrassed him personally and prevented his sustaining the dignity of his court. But the decorum and correctness of his procedure did not prevent the press of North Carolina from urging even armed resistance to the exercise of Federal jurisdiction, under the plea that Judge PRITCHARD had "reduced the State to a satrapy. PRITCHARD is King, and the railroad official anarchists are Prime Ministers."

All this now is seen to be rubbish, as was plainly apparent to the judicious at the time. While the fire eaters were speaking as quoted, the "anarchists" were thinking and acting in the spirit indicated by President FINLEY: "We must continue to live in North Carolina, and must endeavor to demean ourselves as standing for law and order, and even sometimes suffering injustice, rather than to permit the peace and quiet of the community to be disturbed on our account." Those words were not uttered without cost. Judge PRITCHARD had taken a course similar to that taken in the Coney Island fare cases here. The persons paying the disputed rates were to receive coupons enabling them to recover anything wrongly paid, but under the plan adopted in the spirit of President FINLEY's words the company has no recourse, and the rates imposed under the confiscatory legislation cause a loss of the difference between the lawful and unlawful rate.

The idea should not be allowed to gain root that the railways are profiting by any technical or snap judgment. On the contrary, the Judges who are now sustained in fact declared the popular will more truly than the editors and Legislatures who misrepresented the people. For we are convinced that the people are not foolish enough to wish to injure themselves, nor wicked enough to wish to steal or confiscate the property of private persons or corporations. The wishes of the people in this respect are expressed not in the words of Legislatures or stump speakers or editors of a sort. The conscience of the people is expressed in the Constitution, and is expounded by the courts. In the calm and sober words of Judge PRITCHARD, uttered when he found no hearing, when the court speaks:

> It is not the voice of three or nine men, but the majestic voice and will of eighty millions of free men, whose voice is uttered as the Constitution declares it must be spoken. The highest honor of sovereignty is untarnished faith, and certainly no faith could be more deliberately and solemnly pledged than that which every State has plighted to the other States to support the Constitution as it is, in all its provisions, until they shall be altered in the manner which the Constitution itself prescribes.

The Constitution is not inspired nor unalterable, but it is the highest embodiment of the popular will, and it has been interpreted by the highest authority. Here should be an end, the same end as that reached when the Granger movement produced the same prostration as that now brought upon us in the same manner. The pity of it is that it should be necessary to learn such a simple lesson twice.

WHAT IS "IMPRISONMENT FOR DEBT"?

When Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi, in a protest to which we gave note some days ago, declared that there was no imprisonment for debt in his State, with the inference that enforced labor, usually called "peonage," was legally impracticable there, he was undoubtedly sustained by the language of the Constitution of the State. That instrument distinctly declares that there "shall be no imprisonment for debt."

But the Washington correspondent of The Chicago Tribune asserts that there are laws in Mississippi relating to the penalty for violation of contract which permit what in effect is imprisonment for debt, under which grave abuses are possible and have been shown to exist. He says:

> If a person violates his contract he is subject to a prison sentence. This prison sentence may involve either a term in the penitentiary or a period of time in the chain gang, which is a county institution.

The correspondent does not quote the statutes imposing a prison sentence for violation of contract. But he does quote the following provision, which, he declares, applies to tenants convicted of that act:

> Under Section 840 of the Mississippi Code it is also provided "that the Sheriff may hire out, at public outcry at the door of the Court House, convicts held for a fine, costs, and jail fees who have not been hired out with their consent or to their landlords without their consent."

That there have been serious abuses in hiring out convicts to work out their fines and costs of trial has been repeatedly reported, and officially Gov. VARDAMAN himself has used very severe language in exposure and condemnation of these abuses. If it can be shown that the laws of Mississippi specifically make the violation of a contract a "crime" punished by fine and imprisonment, then debtors are plainly exposed to the treatment denounced by the Governor. That is a line of explanation to which the representatives of Mississippi should promptly address themselves.

THE EASTER LILY.

The big white lily, grown in profusion in Bermuda and elsewhere to meet the annual demand for floral symbols of Easter in New York and its neighborhood, is not essentially an Easter flower, and its recent association with the commemoration of the Resurrection has no historical significance. White lilies, to be sure, figure in some of the early religious portraiture. The little white lily of the woods, a flower of early Summer, has long been associated by the poets, including SHAKESPEARE, KEATS, and TENNYSON, with modesty and purity. But the big Bermuda lily is not a symbol of modesty and has inspired no poet. Apart from its religious significance, Easter is the Spring festival, and the real flowers of early Spring, the tulip, the daffodil, the wild arbutus, are its more appropriate floral symbols. We derive our name for it from Ostara, the Saxon goddess of the East and the dawn. In Latin countries they cling to variants of the Aramic "pesach" (passover) as pascua, pasqua, pâques. If there is such a flower as "the Resurrection lily," it must be the small purple lily of Palestine.

As a matter of fact, when the lily is mentioned in other seasons, we never think of Easter. "Consider the lilies of the field." SOLOMON, in all his glory, was not so arrayed. Flowers gorgeous in color are brought to mind. To paint them, cries Salisbury, in "King John," were "wasteful and ridiculous excess." The fleur de lys of France is blue. The tiger lily, the panther lily, the red lily are as common in botany, if not in Bermuda and the Easter markets, as the big white lily.

All the Spring flowers are, fitly, symbols of the Resurrection, the renewal of life after the killing frosts, and commerce has made the Bermuda lily a Spring flower. There are sweeter flowers and lovelier. The lately developed Easter lily resembles somewhat the blossom of the despised jimson weed, though it seems not nearly so beautiful to the artist's eye.

There is something droll in the notion of a Tax Commissioner being not too politely bowed out of office on the ground that he is the heaviest debtor to the city for default in the payment of taxes in his borough. The wonder is that Mr. MULLER should have been retained so long, or that he should have been selected for a place of such peculiar responsibilities and powers. His qualifications could at no time have been other than those of the machine manipulator, and these he has not actively exercised for some years. He lagged for a long time superfluous enough so far as public service went, a relic of a system that has in part been modified, but is by no means as near extinction as it should be.

What is Maine's loss is our gain. In the Hon. CHARLES E. LITTLEFIELD his State loses an honest, able, and faithful Representative who has served his people and the whole people with wisdom and firmness and untiring energy. We are bound to accept his statement that politics has nothing to do with his abandonment of Congress at a time when it was practically assured that he could have another re-election if he wished it. But it remains true that his independent and conscientious devotion to his ideals of duty made his work in Congress exceedingly difficult and arduous. This was especially true in connection with his determined opposition to the extreme demands of the labor unions, on account of which the whole power of the National organization was thrown into his district two years ago to defeat him. As a member of the Judiciary Committee, and in his discussion of legal matters in the House, Mr. LITTLEFIELD has proved himself a lawyer of the higher type. He will be a welcome addition to the New York bar.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Toleration Is Not Kindness. Among the many notable passages in President ALDERMAN's address before the Civic Forum was that in which, after telling what the reasonable and enlightened South has determined it will do with respect to the negro in his political, social, and industrial relations, he suggested the need of another determination on the part of the Southern whites.

"The harshest experiences of the black people," he said, "are yet to be, for the South must come to treat them as the world now treats them, demanding that they develop not only manual and industrial power, but those moral qualities necessary to win freedom through fierce competition." That, in effect, is the same as saying that the South must cease to show toward negroes the "kindness" which takes the form of tolerating in them faults and offenses that would not for a moment be endured if committed by white men and women.

The excuse for this toleration has been and is an assumption of the essential and irremediable inferiority of the black race. Its members are not held to white standards of honesty, veracity, or purity of life. The theory is that they cannot attain to those standards, and their failure to do it excites down South as little real reprehension among the whites as among blacks. For instance, the appropriation of food in small quantities by a negro is hardly regarded as stealing; it is taken as a matter of course, and credit is expected for the maintenance of this attitude in contrast with the severer one encountered by the negro when he comes North.

The adoption of the opposite view, the stern holding of the negro to all the ordinary responsibilities and decencies of life, will, as President ALDERMAN said, bring upon him a harder test than any to which he has yet been subjected, but it will also give him the chance to rise which the other policy definitely takes away. The possibility that it may easily mean extermination in an unmitigated competition must be faced by both races. That is just what it will mean if the negro cannot measure up to this stern opportunity, but the alternative is the hopeless one of tolerated vices and weaknesses, which amounts to eternal refusal of recognition as beings really human. Among the gravest complaints against the negroes is that which charges them with failure to demand either morals or manners from each other. President ALDERMAN evidently thinks that the whites are equally negligent, and in a way have been far too kind—that is, lenient—with their black neighbors.

The Wolf Story Again. A member of the League of American Sportsmen has written to us expressing much concern that some Western Ananias should have betrayed us into printing as a part of the day's news the story of how a hundred timber wolves attacked the Zust car out in Wyoming and were not driven away till some twenty of the savage animals had been shot.

The story, he says, was not true. If ever American wolves attacked men—which there is no good reason to believe—it was before the time of high-powered rifles, and anybody nowadays who repeats the old fables is a conscienceless nature-faker or a too inventive writer paid by space. So declares our aggrieved critic, and he has the facts on his side.

Not all of them, however. He ignores the possibility of telling an impossible story just because it is impossible, and therefore amusing, and the chance that such a story might be bought and printed merely as an example of the humorous romancer's innocent art. In other words, he grieves and humiliates us—oh, quite unintentionally, of course, but none the less deeply—by refusing to credit us with that degree of common sophistication, general information, and ordinary intelligence which we ascribed to all our readers as a matter beyond question.

Why should he have assumed that we believed this tale when, as he solemnly says, "everybody who knows anything worth while about wolves knows that they are the most cowardly animals on the earth; that they always get out of sight of a man as fast as they can go"? That knowledge, or something like it, let us as solemnly assure him, was ours, and, as almost "everybody," according to his own statement, also has it, we cannot see the danger of printing something that was so obviously a "yarn." He'll be demanding next that we restrict the vivacious ST. CHAFFRAY to the dull exactitude of a Government report and carefully warn our readers against accepting as conclusive every declaration made by that passionate pilgrim in regard to the economics and sociology of these United States!

Indeed, already our correspondent seriously advises us hereafter to submit all animal stories to Dr. HORNADAY and Dr. OSWALD before printing them and to throw into the waste basket those discredited by high authority. Well, we're not going to do it—first, because we claim to know for ourselves a good story when we see it, and, second, because Dr. HORNADAY himself, to judge from some bouncing tales recently contributed by himself to a magazine, would not draw the line between fact and fancy even as strictly as we do.

Koreans Still Alive. All of one's preconceived notions as to the Koreans and their character are rudely shaken by the recklessly desperate assault made out in San Francisco upon an American, who had held an official position under what little the Japanese have left in recent years of their own Government.

The inhabitants of the Hermit Kingdom, we had been led to believe, were of that peculiarly mild and peaceful disposition which is the characteristic of a wornout, helpless, and hopeless people. That some of them were still capable of an occasional palace conspiracy, with the incidental murder of a man or two and a few women and children, the infrequent reports from that strange country have indicated. This attack upon Mr. STEVENS, however, was quite another matter, and indicative of the survival among the Koreans of some slight ability, as well as a strong inclination, to use a strong hand in the direction of their own national destinies.

These young fellows, undeterred by the probability of death and the certainty of punishment, deliberately, boldly, and openly attacked the man who, whether rightly or wrongly, seemed to them to have betrayed Korean interests by helping the Japanese. Of course, it was as little a pretty as it was a wise thing to do, but, abstractly considered, it had certain merits. The men capable of a crime of this sort are still to be counted with, and on, in estimating the ethnic possibilities of the Far East, and it had been supposed that the Koreans were negligible factors in the situation out there.

Japan itself was once a Hermit Kingdom, though never a weak or deprecatory one, and it may be that Korea is not quite as weak and deprecatory as she has seemed. It may be, too, that Mr. STEVENS did advise the King of Korea badly in counseling submission to the Japanese. Beyond any question, resistance to foreign domination, even though it be hopeless, is usually better than that for a nation not utterly lost to self-respect.

MUST HAVE SUBWAY.

An Indorsement of Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The reported interview with Chairman Willcox of the Public Service Commission in THE TIMES this morning appears to state the exact situation which confronts New York City.

The city must have additional subways to care for its present and constantly increasing traffic. Not to have them (and begun at once) will retard the growth in all boroughs, increase the stream of residents already turning toward New Jersey, and prevent the assessable value of property keeping pace with necessary increased taxation. This would mean materially higher taxes and a setback to the development of the residential sections of the city from which it would be long in recovering.

The Public Service Commission has apparently done all it can with its present powers. If the city's finances will permit, the work on the projected subways should be at once begun. If the city's finances will not permit of municipal building, then the law should be amended so as to invite private capital to the enterprises, and the pride of a Senator in a bill which has proved to be an absolute deterrent to subway building should not stand in the way of an amendment amply sufficient for the purposes.

If all this cannot be done under the present State and City Administrations, then the people should see that this Fall Chairman Willcox and other men who have the interests of the city at heart and comprehend its immediate needs are elected to the city and State departments where their work can be effective and not retarded and held back by procrastination or indifferent officials, whose earnestness and zeal in giving reasons for inaction suggests underground or overhead connection with the present mixed, insolvent, and abused transit system.

W. P. REID.

New York, March 19, 1908.

As to Fire Drills and Equal Pay.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I am glad that the wonderful new system of fire-drill originated in Cannon Street has not yet become obligatory; it merely may, and things that may happen do not always happen. Every now and then we hear of something the Board of Education may do. In the new plan, suppose the pupil called "three gongs" where he should say "two gongs" or vice versa, Bedlam would result; or suppose he called "fire!" instead? The whole gong and signal system is based on the idea that simultaneous signals are wisest and most reliable; and like the grace of God, it passes understanding to see how a relay race from thirty or more rooms could save time.

A second observation: You seem to take no stock, any more than myself, in the "equal pay" sophistries now current in the matter of teachers' pay. As an illustration of the sophistry, not to use a shorter and uglier term, advanced by the defenders of the proposition, they say that in various cities which they name equal pay for equal work is the rule, yet on investigation is it found that in those cities e. g., Buffalo, no men at all actually teach classes.

My own solution of the trouble, offered for what it is worth, is to have no men teachers if their work is not of a very different character from women's work. By engaging no more, and pensioning off as soon as may be those now working, or by hiring all teachers on and after a certain date (to be set lator) at the same rate of pay, i. e., the present women's pay, the question would settle itself, and the taxpayers have a show.

ROBERT P. GREEN.

English-Speaking Amity.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me, a North Briton, to associate myself heartily and unreservedly with the sentiments so tersely and ably expressed by W. H. T. in his letter published in to-day's TIMES. Like your correspondent I have ceased to be exasperated at the wholesale caluminous misrepresentations and denunciations on the part of a section of the press here, directed against a great and friendly Nation. The fox of objectionable journalism eager to possess the appetizing morsel of personal aggrandizement, resorts to every known or knowable artifice to entice their votes from the unwary citizens. No method is too low, no weapon too unclean for his nefarious purposes so long as Wily Reynard succeeds like his prototype in the fable.

I desire to express my keen sense of appreciation of the fair and able manner in which THE NEW YORK TIMES adjudicates on all matters of foreign or international import which it subjects to review, and especially for its importance as a factor in fostering amicable relations between the two great English-speaking Nations, against whose common interests neither the waters of the Atlantic nor the Pacific can offer any lasting impediment.

Bathtubs as Coalbins.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of March 9, Dr. Quincy S. Butler complains against the Board of Health for compelling him to put bathtubs in his tenement houses. "I found," he says, "that the majority of the bathtubs were used to store coal and refuse."

The writer has himself seen bathtubs in some tenement houses used for the aforementioned purposes. Nevertheless he ventures to doubt this to be the case with a majority of tenements. I am quite certain that during the Summer months these bathtubs are almost in daily use by the unfortunate tenants and their "sweated" children.

The doctor says, if you were to offer those people the whole earth they would refuse it, preferring to huddle together within a radius of a few blocks. Has he ever tried to offer them a decent house, say, on Fifth Avenue?

The poor people are compelled to huddle together in order to get the cheapest rooms possible. Again, in the Winter he is unable to heat more than one or two rooms out of the three or four that he occupies. Dr. Butler surely knows this to be a fact. But then it is exceedingly easy to condemn and to cast stones.

BALLAD OF THE PAY-AS-YOU-ENTER.

Soon shall we see the suburban shopper, with many parcels and umbrella, all slipping out of her arms, while she, wild-eyed, searches for her purse.
She hunts for it in three coat pockets and in her handbag, then starts on another hunt for spectacles, for without these she cannot differentiate a nickel from a quarter.
Meantime, behind her there waits, in the car vestibule and on the steps, with closed umbrellas, and with curses loud and deep, a wrathful throng.
They cannot seek a resting place till she, the suburban shopper, finds those spectacles, till she finds and differentiates and selects and pays over the nickel.
Behind these, again, under open umbrellas, with feet in the mud, I see a long row of wretched mortals.
They are irritated, vexed, annoyed, angry, exasperated.
They have the exact fare ready, but they cannot step lively, nor board the car, until the suburban shopper finds her spectacles and her nickel.
Behold in the street a congestion of vehicles, of cars, cabs, automobiles, carts, delivery wagons, all unable to proceed.
They are stopped, stayed, delayed, arrested, impeded, checked, frustrated.
All wait for the car, which waits for its passengers, who, in their turn, wait for the suburban passenger failing to have the exact fare ready.

TO BETTER NEW YORK TRANSIT

Legislature Considers Bill Authorizing Purchase of Steinway Tunnel.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—Measures to improve transit conditions in New York City were before the Judiciary and Cities Committees of the Assembly to-day, and came before the Senate in a bill, introduced by Senator Frawley and said to be indorsed by the New York City authorities, which authorizes the city to purchase the Steinway Tunnel.

Controller Metz appeared before the Assembly Judiciary Committee and pleaded warmly for favorable action on the Travis-Lee concurrent resolution, which would take bond issues for transit and dock improvements out of the debt limit and place them on the same basis as debts contracted by the city for an increased water supply.

"Unless this is done," said Controller Metz, "the city will be absolutely stranded and all improvements held up."

The sentiment in both Senate and Assembly is favorable to the passage both of the Travis-Lee resolution and the proposed amendment to the Elsberg rapid transit law to have subways built by private capital. Public Service Commissioner John E. Eustis of the New York City commission and Oliver C. Semple of counsel for that body appeared before the Cities Committee of the Assembly and pleaded for the proposed amendment to the Elsberg law.

GOVERNOR'S BILLS IN PERIL.

Belief That Anti-Gambling Measures Can Be Saved Only by Caucus.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—As a result of the missionary work done by agents of the race track interests throughout the State and at the Capitol, the Governor's bills for the abolition of race-track gambling are in jeopardy. There is a feeling here to-night that about the only thing that can save these measures from defeat would be to make them caucus measures. Then the Republican Party as a whole would have to take all the blame for their defeat and stand the consequences in the next campaign.

Senator Raines, majority leader of the upper house, where the bills may meet their defeat, has expressed the opinion that the Agnew-Hart bills are not properly subject to caucus.

The friends of the proposed reforms are counting on 23 Republican votes and the votes of Senators Fuller, Taylor, Cohalan, and McCall on the Democratic side. This would give them a bare majority with one vote to spare. But they admit that some of the Republicans are wavering and express doubt as to whether one of the Democrats will stay with them.

The bills will be passed in the Assembly on Thursday if the present programme holds good. Senator Agnew made an ineffectual attempt to-day to accelerate the procedure in connection with his bill to amend the Percy-Gray law. Now it is doubtful whether the bills will be reached in the upper house at all this week. In the meantime the Governor's friends insist that every day final consideration of the bills is put off increases the danger of defeat.

FOR STOCK EXCHANGE INQUIRY

Wagner's Request for a Legislative Investigation Welcomed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—When the Assembly Judiciary Committee met today for a hearing on the Wagner bill providing for the licensing of stock brokers and an increase in the stock transfer tax from 2 to 5 cents for each share traded in, Mr. Wagner sprung a resolution providing for a legislative investigation of the New York Stock Exchange.

"The New York Stock Exchange is composed of honorable gentlemen bound by stringent rules to accord honest treatment to the State as well as to the individuals, and we welcome your investigation," said John G. Milburn, the New York lawyer, who appeared before the committee representing the Stock Exchange.

Mr. Milburn added that he had already invited State Controller Glynn to investigate the affairs of the Stock Exchange and the system under which it operates. Controller Glynn has charged that the State is cheated out of $2,000,000 annually in stock transfer tax.

PASS WOMEN TEACHERS' BILL

Senate Favors "Equal Pay for Equal Work" by Vote of 35 to 10.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, March 24.—In spite of the fact that Gov. Hughes vetoed a similar measure last year, the Senate to-day, by a vote of 35 to 10, passed the "Equal Pay for Equal Work" bill, urged by the women teachers of New York City. In explaining the bill, Senator White declared that its chief provision required that the School Board of New York should make no discrimination in salaries on account of sex.

Senator Travis, who voted for last year's bill, made a strong speech against the bill to-day. He said that if enacted it would mean an additional tax burden in New York City of $10,000,000 a year.

Those who voted against the bill to-day were: Senators Agnew, Saxe, Page, Fuller, Armstrong, Dunn, Cassidy, Hinman, Raines, and Travis. Senator Fuller was the only one who voted in opposition last year.

INCREASE ELECTION DEPUTIES

Assembly Passes Robinson's Bill Over Objection of the Democrats.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—The bill introduced by Assemblyman Beverly R. Robinson, providing for an increase in the number of deputies in the office of the State Superintendent of Elections for the metropolitan district, passed the lower House to-day over the vigorous objection of the Democratic members, who declared it was unconstitutional and contained a joker. Mr. Robinson said the bill had been introduced purely in the interest of honest elections.

"Floaters who vote thirty times for a consideration on Election Day are the only ones who could consistently object to the bill," said Mr. Robinson.

The vote stood 80 in favor of and 51 against passage.

JULIAN'S PUPILS DINE.

Artists Who Studied Under Him in Paris Make Merry Here.

Some seventy artists who were pupils at the Academia Julian in Paris before 1890 assembled at the Atelier Café, 33 West Sixty-seventh Street, last night for their annual reunion. The room was decorated with relics and mementos of student days and songs of the old bohemian life in "Gay Paree," when they lived in the Latin Quarter, were sung.

Among those present were Robert W. Chambers, Gari Melchers, Robert Reid, W. L. Metcalf, E. E. Simmons, J. William Fosdick, F. S. Lamb, Arthur Dow, Frank V. Du Mond, Samuel Isham, F. C. Jones, H. W. Watrous, Louis Paul Dessar, Walter Gilman Page, H. R. Kenyon, Stacey Tolman, Lee-Lash, Herbert Adams, L. Giffen Cauldwell, Louis Loeb, Thomas Shields Clarke, Eli Harvey, August Franzen, F. W. Stokes, Albert Sterner, Roger Donahue, Robert V. V. Sewell, Otto Wigand, De Cost Smith, George Cohen, W. I. Couse, and fifty others from the Middle and New England States.

The Chorus Girl and the Church.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

What are the churches for? I notice that a young songstress in the choir of a well-known Methodist Church in this city has been asked to resign because it has just transpired that she is a chorus girl! Fortunate young woman, in that the histrionic taint shall save her from association with such a crowd of self-confessed Pharisees! How far have the churches drifted from the original doctrines and ideas of the gentle reformer whom they profess to follow! If we are to believe as true the sayings of Christ as recorded in the Testament, did He not try to impress upon His followers that His mission was to save sinners, and did He not continually upbraid those who went about with "I thank the Lord that I am not as other men are" continually on their lips? Small wonder is it that many of the truly kind and charitable are averse to confessing themselves members of the established Church.

THE FACE OF NATURE IN MANY PAINTINGS

Work of Robinson, Cullen Yates, and Loiseau on View at Local Galleries.

SALE OF HAMMER PICTURES

165 Examples by Artist Who Gained Inspiration from Cigar Box Labels—Other Approaching Sales.

An exhibition of paintings of William S. Robinson, Cullen Yates, and Wilhelm Ritschel in the Katz Art Galleries, 308 Columbus Avenue, may be seen until the 4th of April. Mr. Ritschel's Dutch scenes, painted at Katwyck, where he has his Summer studio, are familiar to his public, and these recent interpretations of the seaside effects of light in the little town have his authority of manner and sobriety of technique.

One picture, an evening scene, shows a strip of water, a boat drawn up on the sands, a quiet sky, and the figure of a tired man driving two tired horses. Throughout there is the sense, not merely of repose, but of the labor that is over. "Ploughing" is a fragment of the clumsy life of the field, drawn without compromise or special merit of composition, the heavy figures having a somewhat bunched look and giving, too, the unpleasant effect of coming out of the frame. The "Autumn Evening," on the other hand, is the gentlest of gentle scenes, with sheep going home, a house and barn keeping their quiet place in the design, and the pleasant peace of a lovely twilight enwrapping all.

Mr. Yates paints in a higher key, and has a preference for cool color harmonies and the tenderness rather than the gayety of nature. His "Spring Morning" is one of the green and blue pictures that seldom look as well in an exhibition with other work as on a wall by themselves, where, undisturbed by subtler and deeper color schemes, they bring indoors something of the freshness of the outdoor world.

Mr. Robinson's eighteen examples are some of them small studies for larger pictures, and these show the integrity of his method by their reality and freedom. It is occasionally difficult to accept his seasons, as he is entirely without the more or less hackneyed but recognizably logical tendency to paint his Autumns at the turn of the leaf and his Springs in their scant draperies of leaf and grass.

His "October" has a good sky, with Autumnal winds in the trees, and the brooding look of Autumn, but the coloring is not especially suggestive, nor is "The Wood Road, Spring," the rendering of tremulous leaves and thin branches that the name brings into one's mind. "Autumn Glory" is a golden scene, with an effect of strong, clear, hot light, and "The Brook" has the typical Autumnal coloring, the bright hues showing richly through a soft haze.

Paintings by Gustave Loiseau.

An exhibition of the paintings by Gustave Loiseau will continue until April 11 at the Durand-Ruel Galleries. M. Loiseau is a comparatively young man—he was born in 1865—and represented the younger school of impressionists, so far as a clearly individual talent may be said to be representative. He paints in a key higher as a rule than that of Monet, two of whose magisterial canvases hang in an adjoining room, marking by the profundity of their color an emotional range commonly not accorded to impressionist art. Even in contrast, however, with Monet's more fervent, perhaps more solemn, sentiment, M. Loiseau's canvases strike anything but a trivial note. His snow scenes in particular are wholly free from that frittering of the attention upon superficial phases of the scene which is—or long has been—common among painters of Winter landscapes.

In "La Neige à Tournedos-sur-Seine," a canvas dated 1899, we have his loveliest expression of the spirit of Winter in a region that is neither bleak nor barren. A group of houses, warm in tone, are at the left, a woman and child are walking on a snowy path by the river, above them bends a gray sky, dappled with fleecy cloud forms, various, deep, and tender. The thick, soft texture of the snow is apparent, the air is cold, but it neither tingles nor sparkles. The whole impression is eloquent not merely of the plain truth of the thing seen, but of all its appeals to a sensitive imagination.

"Les rives de l'Eure, été" is a record of full Summer. A narrow stream winds between trees that are silhouetted against the sky. A break in the line of the trees on the horizon gives the vision that sense of escape into distance which invariably adds to the imaginative interest of a composition. The color is rich and rather low in tone.

Another warm and vivid rendering of a highly pictorial ensemble is "L'Oise à Pontoise," in which the red-roofed houses, bare trunks of aged trees, a blue sky, and light shifting clouds are painted with freshness and vivacity. In a group of recent pictures the painter has turned to the representation of a certain hot dull blueness that comes into the sky under certain atmospheric conditions and oppresses the mind in nature as it does in art.

Approaching Sales.

A collection of 165 paintings in oil and in water color by the late John J. Hammer will be sold at the American Art Galleries on Thursday and Friday evenings, March 26 and 27. Mr. Hammer was born in Westofen, Germany, seventy years ago. He came to America at the age of 15, and worked in a cigar factory, where the landscapes used then to decorate cigar boxes inspired him to try his own hand at painting. He studied later in Paris, Dusseldorf, and Munich, and Dusseldorf seems to have set its mark rather more strongly on his work than either of the other two art centres. His career was varied by a sojourn in the United States, where he became Director of a school of art established in Pittsburg by Mr. Carnegie. Many of his subjects are drawn from the picturesque German village and field life.

On Friday and Saturday afternoons, March 27 and 28, at the same galleries, a collection of antique brass, copper, and other metal work belonging to Joseph Weintraub will be sold. The collection includes some interesting pieces of Turkish damascened ornamentation and a number of large brasses of unusual design. The use of the catalogue for purposes of identification and reference is doubled by the line of illustrations of the principal objects contained in it.

At the Fifth Avenue Auction Rooms Mr. Curran's collection of Colonial, Hepplewhite, Sheraton, and Dutch antique furniture is on exhibition until the days of sale, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 26, 27, and 28. The collection includes old clocks of Washington's time, a number of pieces of English cut glass, carved wood mantels, Colonial mirrors, bedsteads, and chairs.

A collection of oil paintings belonging to a private owner will come under the hammer of the Anderson Auction Company on the evening of March 26. The names in the catalogue range from Salvator Rosa to J. Carleton Wiggins, and include those of several important painters of the Dutch school.

Second Week of the Bengulat Sale.

Benjamin Benguiat, in the second and final week of the sale of his collection at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, 546 Fifth Avenue, offers a collection of some 800 antique and modern Oriental rugs, including many rich Kermanshahs, Persian-Irans, Persian, Princess Bokharas, and meshed rugs and carpets in mellow tones and great variety of sizes. Beginning to-morrow the sale will be continued in the afternoon for the rest of the week.

DUCHESS THE GUEST OF MRS. VANDERBILT

Mlle. Genee Had Been Invited to Dance for the Company, but Was Unable to Come.

RECORD BRIDAL CORTEGE

W. F. Hencken and His Bride-Elect Will Have Twenty-three Attendants at Wedding.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt gave a dinner with music last night in honor of the Duchess of Marlborough at her house, 677 Fifth Avenue. The sixty guests invited were restricted almost entirely to young married people. There were five tables.

After the dinner the guests assembled in the ballroom on the second floor of the Vanderbilt house, where there was informal dancing. Adeline Genee, the dancer of the "Soul Kiss" company, had been invited by the hostess to dance for the entertainment of her guests, but Mlle. Genee's physician advised her not to accept the invitation in view of the two stage performances in which she is scheduled to appear to-day.

Among those invited were:

The Duchess of Marlborough, Mr. and Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Frederick C. Havemeyer, Princess Belosskiy, Lady Vivian, M. de Perigny, Alfonso de Navarro, Robert Walton Goelet, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Worthington Bull, J. Borden Harriman, Miss Harriman, William Hoffman, Miss Cornelia Bryce, Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri, Mr. Pyne, Mr. and Mrs. James B. Eustis, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Iselin, Mr. and Mrs. Victor Sorchan, Marshall Kernochan, Mr. Winthrop, Mr. and Mrs. Royal Phelps Carroll, Mrs. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Douglas, Mr. Bishop, Miss Bishop, Miss Mills, Mrs. Ellis, and Messrs. Ramsay, Cochran, Robbins, and Winthrop.

The dinner was the first large affair given for the Duchess of Marlborough since she arrived on her present visit to America.

HENCKEN-GRAY WEDDING.

Pair to Have Record Bridal Cortege at Ceremony on Easter Monday.

Miss Georgia Gray and William Frederick Hencken, who are to be married at 4 o'clock on Easter Monday in St. Thomas's Church by the Rev. Dr. Stires, will have one of the most elaborate bridal processions on record in the city. Miss Gray is to have fourteen attendants, and Mr. Hencken nine.

The maid of honor is to be Miss Genevieve Ainslie of Chicago, and the matrons of honor selected are Mrs. Albert Landon Richardson, a cousin of the bride, and Mrs. Raymond Fearing Baldwin. The bridesmaids will be Miss Eleanor Vilas of Chicago and nine New York girls—the Misses Gertrude Hencken, sister of the bridegroom; Henrietta Norton, Florence Van Cott, Fanny Brower, Hazel Stillwell, Helen Smith, Dorothy Pownall, Katharine Walker, and Marjorie Jones. William Steele Gray, Jr., will be the page.

Mr. Hencken's brother, Albert C. Hencken, is to be best man, and the ushers are to be Dr. John R. Shannon, F. St. George Smith, John V. Koch, Jr., Pennington Satterthwaite, Frank Whitman, Whitmore Freeman, Arthur W. Schumacher, William J. Tingue, Jr., and Harold Reid Gray, brother of the bride.

Invitations to the church will be general, but the reception at the Gray residence, 39 West Fifty-third Street, will be limited to relatives and intimate friends.

AUTO TOUR TO TUXEDO.

Touring Society to be Entertained at Luncheon Sunday by A. E. Gallatin.

The Motor Car Touring Society will hold a run to Tuxedo and return next Sunday, where members and guests will be entertained at luncheon by A. E. Gallatin, the society's President.

Percy R. Pyne, 2d, is the Vice President of the society, and Orme Wilson, Jr., the Secretary and Treasurer.

Among the twenty-one members, to which number membership is limited, are J. Laurens Van Alen, Malcolm D. Sloane, Phoenix Ingraham, F. L. V. Hoppin, M. Taylor Pyne, Jr., Gordon Macdonald, Jr., R. Thornton Wilson, Marshall R. Kernochan, Buell Hollister, William W. Hoffman, Coleman Drayton, Aymar Johnson, Edmund P. Rogers, and Stuyvesant Fish, Jr.

COUNTRY FAIR FOR CHARITY.

Costume Party and Dance April 20 for Stony Wold Auxiliary.

A country fair and dance for the benefit of Stony Wold Auxiliary, No. 19, is the novel entertainment planned for the night of Easter Monday, April 20, at the Waldorf. A committee of well-known young women has it in charge, and it is intended to make it a costume party so far as practicable. Any sort of unconventional costume will be au fait, but evening dress will be frowned upon. The costumes are not, however, limited to any one type. Country dress or seafaring and Indian toggery will be acceptable.

There are to be exhibits and prizes, a baby show, shooting at targets with toy tin guns, tents, and all the accessories of a good, old-time rural fair. There will be old-fashioned dances also to old-fashioned music.

The supper, which is to be served at a reasonable hour, will be a regular country feast, with pies galore, doughnuts, cookies, pickles, tea biscuits and honey, and other toothsome but indigestible products, including coffee "like mother used to make."

Miss Dorothea Wardwell is Chairman of the committee, and the other members are the Misses Charlotte and Dorothy Grinnell, Leonora Cobb, Elizabeth Jennings, Clorinda Boardman, Elizabeth Hanna, and Alice Fellows.

The list of patronesses includes the names of Mrs. W. H. Draper, Mrs. Charles De Rham, Mrs. Arthur M. Dodge, Mrs. Harold F. Naddon, Mrs. Fancis Kinnicutt, Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Mrs. Dallas Bache Pratt, Mrs. H. Fairfield Osborn, Mrs. Hilborne Roosevelt, and Mrs. W. Seward Webb.

ST. CECILIA CLUB CONCERT.

Gives Second Function of the Season, Aided by Symphony Orchestra.

The St. Cecilia Club, conducted by Victor Harris, gave its second private concert of the season last night at the Waldorf-Astoria. The club has more than 200 members, who were assisted last night by the New York Symphony Orchestra, Berrick Van Norden, tenor, and Bertram Fox, piano accompanist.

Among the members of the club, many of whom were present, are:

Mrs. Frederick Edey, Mrs. Henry Burden, Miss Susan Warren, Mrs. Ethel S. Elliott, Mrs. Thornton Chard, Mrs. John H. Flagler, Mrs. Auguste Vatable, Miss Louise Wilmerding, Mrs. Duncan Wood, Miss Mary R. Callender, Miss Elsie Dominick, Miss Anita Dominick, Mrs. F. R. Culbert, Miss Caroline E. Lewis, Miss Ethel Champ, Mrs. George F. Dominick, Miss Alice Fellowes, Mrs. Henry Mottet, Miss Elsie Morrill, Mrs. Lancaster Morgan, Miss Mary Ogden, Miss Ruth Perkins, Mrs. Frederick Keating, Mrs. Durant Cheever, Mrs. Edward La Montagne, Miss Katharine Walker, Mrs. Joseph Wood, and Mrs. Marvyn Scudder.

A feature of the concert was the presentation for the first time of "The Fate of Princess Kiyo," a Japanese cantata for chorus, composed for and dedicated to the St. Cecilia Club by Henry K. Hadley, an American composer, now in Germany.

$1,200 FOR STONYWOLD.

Net Receipts from Bridge Tournament Yesterday at the St. Regis.

More than $1,200 was netted for the benefit of Stonywold Sanitarium Auxiliary No. 17 at a bridge tournament held yesterday in the ballroom of the St. Regis. There were over 200 players present.

The first prize, a box at the Manhattan Opera House, was won by Miss Flora Price; the second prize, a box at the Metropolitan, went to Mrs. M. L. Morgenthau, and the third prize, a box at the Hudson Theatre, was won by Mrs. Nordlinger. The boxes were donated for charity by the managers of the Opera Houses and theatre.

The bridge was arranged by Mrs. Benjamin Stern and the women of the auxiliary. The tournament was managed by J. B. Elwell. Tea was served at its conclusion.

Social Notes.

The wedding of Miss Gladys Tilden Southack, daughter of Mrs. F. T. Southack of 588 West End Avenue, and Rowland Christy, Jr., will take place in St. Thomas's Church at 4 o'clock on Monday, April 27.

Felipe Pardo, Ambassador to the United States from Peru, who has been in town for several days, returned yesterday to Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Chubb, who are in town for several days, are at the St. Regis.

Mr. and Mrs. William P. Draper entertained at dinner last night at the Gotham.

John H. Edwards of Ohio, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is at the Gotham.

A bazaar and entertainment, under the direction of Mrs. Jessie M. Smith of 120 Riverside Drive, will be held at the St. Regis on April 10 for the benefit of the Day Home and School for Crippled Children.

Auxiliary 16 of Stonywold Sanitarium has arranged a recital and author's reading by F. Hopkinson Smith at the Horace Mann Auditorium, Columbia University, on Tuesday, March 31.

Pupils of the Finch School will give two plays to-night in Carnegie Lyceum.

The Woman's Democratic Club will give its third annual dinner, in celebration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson, at the Hotel Majestic on Thursday, April 2.

Sewing Class Raises $800 for Charity.

The class sewing for the Fresh Air Fund of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine held its last meeting of the season yesterday morning at the residence of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. Mrs. Frank Hunter Potter is President of the class, and Mrs. Richard Irvin Vice President. The class has raised more than $800 for the home for children at Tompkins Cove, besides making hundreds of garments for the little ones.

Diet vs. Cosmetics

Good Food Clears the Complexion

The best "Beauty Doctor" in the world is a good, pure food. Rich, greasy, or poorly cooked foods will ruin the finest complexion a woman was ever blessed with, and all the cosmetics and treatments she may give it will only cover up, not remove the blemishes.

The treatment must come from the inside, for the pores of the skin must have the proper food to be healthy.

A lady living in the West of London, England, writes as follows:

"Grape-Nuts food has done me a world of good. Some years ago I fell a victim to a serious illness, which did great damage to my constitution. I gave up hope of ever recovering my natural good health until last winter, when tempted to try Grape-Nuts more from a liking for that kind of food than from any hope of it doing me good.

"I found to my surprise after trial of a week or two that I was getting quite plump, my voice much stronger, and my complexion was becoming beautifully clear. In fact, since eating Grape-Nuts my friends say I look 10 years younger, and I believe them, as my glass tells me it is true."

LAST BENEFIT BRINGS $19,000 TO CONRIED

Metropolitan Opera House Crowded for Final Testimonial to Retiring Director.

FEW BOXHOLDERS PRESENT

Directors of the Opera Company Give Him a Loving Cup—Theatre Managers Will Give Him a Dinner.

The last of Heinrich Conried's "benefit" performances was given last night at the Metropolitan Opera House. The Herr Direktor sat in his grand tier box and watched the waning of his final season, while the Direktor-elect, Herr Dippel, sang on the stage and was crowned with laurel in the final scene from "Die Meistersinger."

The opera house was crowded. Long before 6 o'clock there was a line which stretched far down Broadway waiting to buy standing room, and the space behind the rail was packed to suffocation before the curtain went up on "La Bohème." But the receipts reached only $19,000, in comparison to last season's brilliant benefit, when "Salome" was given and the house held $22,000. Last night many of the boxes were empty, others were occupied by singers. The regular boxholders were conspicuous by their absence.

The performance moved along very swiftly considering the number of bits of operas which were presented, but much of the performance was listless. Naturally the orchestra, which had played "Siegfried" in the afternoon in Philadelphia, was tired.

Most of the "stars" of the company appeared. A few did not. Mme. Fremstad had sung "Brünnhilde" in the afternoon and won a night's rest. Mr. Burrian and Mme. Kirkby-Lunn were excused for a like reason. Mme. Morena sat in a box and Mme. Cavalieri was not in evidence anywhere.

The performance began with the third act of "La Bohème," sung by Mmes. Abott and Dereyne and Messrs. Bonci and Stracciari. Then Miss Farrar and Mr. Martin sang the duet at the end of the first act of "Madama Butterfly." The "Miserere," from "Trovatore," followed, and Mr. Caruso, wearing his "Faust" costume, dragged Mme. Eames out to accept recalls. Next came the garden scene from "Faust," sung by Mmes. Farrar and Girerd and Messrs. Plançon and Caruso. The scene began with Marguerite's entrance, and the "Salut Demeure," which many had counted on hearing Mr. Caruso sing, was omitted. Gustav Mahler conducted the orchestra next in a reading of Beethoven's overture "Leonore," No. 3.

Then came the quintet and final scene from "Die Meistersinger," in which appeared Mmes. Rappold and Homer, and Messrs. Dippel, Van Rooy, and Goritz. The entertainment closed near midnight with the first act of "Pagliacci," sung by Mme. Dereyne and Messrs. Caruso, Scotti, Reiss, and Sarto. Messrs. Bovy, Ferrari, and Hertz took turns at conducting the orchestra.

The seven members of the German chorus, who stuck by Mr. Conried in the chorus strike two years ago, sent him some flowers yesterday, and this letter:

Mr. Heinrich Conried.

Dear Sir: The "seven faithful" beg to offer you some flowers for your farewell testimonial performance, and assure you that they will always remember with gratitude their dear and honored director.

We trust that the Almighty will soon give you a complete recovery. Yours very faithfully,

AGNES MAYER,
CHRISTINA EGENER,
MINIE EGENER,
BEATA SANNEE,
ROSE RITCHIE,
GEORGIA FRENCH,
ELSA KEGEL.

Mr. Conried received this letter also yesterday:

My Dear Mr. Conried: At a meeting of the theatrical managers to-day, I was appointed Chairman of a committee to arrange a banquet to be tendered by them to you, in appreciation of your distinguished services in the interest of grand opera in this city, and also in recognition of your services in behalf of the managers as the first President of their association. Will you therefore have the kindness to let me know what date may be convenient to you.

Sincerely yours, DANIEL FROHMAN.

The Directors of the Conried Metropolitan Opera Company honored the day by giving Mr. Conried a silver loving cup. There was no official presentation, and as yet the cup has not even been inscribed.

MISS ABOTT TO SING "MARTA."

Full Programme for Next Week at the Metropolitan Opera House.

"Marta" will be given next Monday evening at the Metropolitan Opera House and the title rôle will be sung for the first time this season by Bessie Abott. Wednesday evening of next week "Fidelio" will be sung with Mme. Morena in the title role, Miss Farrar will appear in "Traviata" on Thursday evening, "Don Giovanni" will be given on Friday evening, when Miss Fornia will sing Elvira and Mr. Blass, Leporello, for the first time here.

"Tannhäuser" will be sung Saturday afternoon, and Saturday evening Mr. Caruso will appear for the first time at popular prices in "Il Trovatore." Miss Fornia will be the Leonora. The soloists at the concert on Sunday evening will be Mmes. Eames and Kirkby-Lunn and Messrs. Lucas, Stracciari, and Master Kotlarsky, a young violinist. Mr. Ferrari will conduct.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Ethel Levy, who is now with Sam Bernard in "Nearly a Hero," will return to vaudeville at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre on April 20.

Ina Hammer, who was recently seen here in "The Rector's Garden," will produce Evelyn Greenleaf Sutherland's one-act tragedy, "His Own," at a benefit for Little Italy at the Montauk Theatre, Brooklyn, on Friday afternoon.

This evening will be Seventy-first Regiment night at the Hippodrome.

The Four Mortons, who have been starring under the management of Frank McKee in "The Big Stick," will make their reappearance in vaudeville at Keith & Proctor's 125th Street Theatre on April 20.

Frederick Burton, who is appearing in London with "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," has been engaged by Henry W. Savage to play "Bub" Hicks in the London production of "The College Widow."

The Shuberts have obtained the rights to a current Vienna comedy, with music, entitled "Ein tolles Maedel," and have engaged Sydney Rosenfeld to make the adaptation for the American stage.

Ted Marks announces that his annual Jubilee will take place at the New York Theatre on the evening of April 12. Several legitimate players will make their first vaudeville appearances.

Lillian Weber transferred yesterday the West End Theatre to the West End Theatre Company for a nominal consideration.

Ferdinando Fontana, the Italian poet and dramatist, has obtained the Italian rights to Arthur Stringer's "Sappho in Leucadia" and is translating the play into Italian.

The annual meeting of the American Playgoers for the election of Governors will be held at the Hotel Astor on the evening of April 5. Eleven Governors are to be elected.

GOV. GUILD SLIGHTLY BETTER.

But Massachusetts's Executive's Condition Is Extremely Critical Still.

BOSTON, March 24.—There is a more hopeful feeling as to Gov. Guild's condition. He passed a comfortable night and was reported to-night as resting comfortably. Still it was admitted that his condition is extremely critical.

Senator Penrose Not Improving.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—Senator Penrose was reported not so well this afternoon. The bulletin on his condition which was to have been made public at noon was withheld. Dr. Herbert B. Carpenter, one of the attending physicians, said that a consultation had been held this morning, but that he was not privileged to say anything concerning the patient's condition.

MISS ADAMS AS JOAN.

She Is to Appear in London in an Elaborate Production.

LONDON, March 24.—Charles Frohman is arranging for Maude Adams's appearance in London as Joan of Arc. He will have a play written in French and adapted to the English by William Gillette.

Local representatives of Charles Frohman said last night that the plan to have Miss Adams appear in London in a Joan of Arc play had been under consideration for two years. The idea was first suggested by J. M. Barrie, who believed that the American actress could make her best impression on English audiences in such a rôle. Miss Adams heartily took up the suggestion, and the lines of the play have been under discussion by the persons concerned, the desire being to get a new point of view on the French heroine's character.

Mr. Gillette has spent a great deal of time in France recently, and it is understood that he has been in consultation with French dramatists and has been looking deeply into all the legends of Joan in order to map out the play. Mr. Frohman has also had material gathered for a most elaborate production which will give the atmosphere of the stirring time to be represented.

DENIAL FROM ETHEL JACKSON.

Says She Is Not to Seek a Divorce from J. Fred Zimmerman, Jr.

Ethel Jackson, the original interpreter of the title rôle in the American production of "The Merry Widow," emphatically denied yesterday a published report that she is to seek a divorce from her husband, J. Fred Zimmerman, Jr.

"The story is utterly false," she declared. "We have given up our old place in West Fifty-sixth Street, but we have not separated and have been living together at the Hotel Seymour. Mr. Zimmerman left this morning with Frank McKee for French Lick Springs, and I expect him to return on April 5. We have had no disagreement.

"My fainting spells at the theatre have not been caused by any worry about domestic affairs, but purely by a weakness of the heart brought on by an attack of grip in the early Winter. The doctor tells me that the dancing strains my heart, and now and then I give way to it. I hope to be back in the cast in a week or two."

Mrs. Zimmerman is a daughter of Hart Jackson, the dramatist. Her husband belongs to one of the most influential families of theatre managers and owners.

MOVING PICTURE CONTROL.

Assembly Passes Bill Placing Licensing of Shows with Police.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., March 24.—By a vote of 111 to 6 the Assembly to-day passed the Gluck bill, placing the licensing of moving-picture shows in the hands of the Police Department, and increasing the license fee. The friends of the bill declared that the character of the moving-picture shows, which are of mushroom growth in New York City, was such as to contaminate the morals of young children, who constitute the majority of their patrons.

"Paradise Jimmy" Oliver and Assemblyman Eagleton, both Tammany members of the Assembly, were the most combative of the half-dozen that opposed the bill and voted against it.

SHUBERTS ADOPT NEW PLAN.

They Will Give Dress Rehearsals of New Plays for the Critics.

The Shuberts announced yesterday a new departure in their system of offering productions to the public. According to the statement, when a production opens in New York City hereafter a special dress rehearsal will be given one or two days before the actual opening.

The critics will be invited to this dress rehearsal with the understanding that they are to consider the invitation purely as an opportunity to familiarize themselves with the story and action of the play.

It is expected that the critics will attend the regular opening performances just the same, and will base their criticism on the actual "first night" performance.

Mlle. Genee the Victim of a "Fake."

A press agent sent to the newspapers last night a story to the effect that Mlle. Adeline Genee, the dancer, was seeking a pupil to train in her art, and that she would devote all day on April 15 to examining applicants between the ages of 8 and 14 who had first made application in writing to her manager to discover a suitable candidate. The story is not true.

Tetrazzini Likes the Circus.

Mme. Tetrazzini is making a new record as a patron of the American circus. Last evening, with three friends, she occupied box 45 in Madison Square Garden, making her third appearance as a spectator since the opening of last week. At the circus yesterday afternoon were the children of Harry Payne Whitney and Alfred G Vanderbilt.

Schuyler Malcolm Killed at Sea.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 24.—Word has been received here of the death of Allan Schuyler Malcolm of Yale, '06, at sea, by falling from a vessel's mast. While in Yale he won the Hugh Chamberlain Greek prize and the second Berkeley premium. In his junior year he was a high oration man. Later he made Phi Beta Kappa. After being graduated his health failed and he shipped as a sailor in the hope that life on the sea would benefit him.

William Richardson Sands.

William Richardson Sands of New Hamburg, N. Y., died suddenly at the Murray Hill Hotel last evening, in his 78th year. He was taken ill with pneumonia yesterday morning about 9 o'clock and survived the attack less than nine hours. He and his wife had made the hotel their Winter home for the last fifteen years, going each Summer to their home on the banks of the Hudson at New Hamburg, near Poughkeepsie. Mr. Sands was the son of Austin Ledyard Sands and Ann Maria Hodge. He retired from business many years ago. His wife was with him when he died. It is expected that the burial will be at New Hamburg.

Dr. Bryant Fassett.

Dr. Bryant Fassett, 28 years old, a son of J. Sloat Fassett of Elmira, N. Y., died early yesterday morning in Roosevelt Hospital of kidney trouble. He came to New York about two weeks ago for treatment. His father, mother, and wife were at his bedside when he died.

PLAY OF SORDID REALISM REVIVED

Mme. Kalich Appears at the Garden in "Marta of the Lowlands."

ACTING IS MELODRAMATIC

With Some Effective Results, Though the Whole Lacks Any Sort of Atmospheric Suggestion.

MARTA OF THE LOWLANDS, a drama in three acts. By Angel Guimera. (Translated by Wallace Gillpatrick and Guido Marburg.) GARDEN.

Manelich	Henry Kolker
Sebastian	Hardee Kirkland
Mosen	William Tooker
Tomas	Robert McWade
Jose	Robert Ferguson
Nando	Henry Hanscombe
Pelucca	Charles T. Terry
Morrucho	Bertram Grassby
Miguel	Arturo Santos
Marta	Bertha Kalich
Nuri	Ethel Browning
Antonia	Mary Hughes
Pepa	Genevieve Blinn
Michelena	Senorita Aurora

"Marta of the Lowlands" is a play of primitive emotions. In its colorful fabric it blends a story of ruthless passion, cruelty, and violence, of sin committed under pressure, of tardy expiation, and of eventual purification through suffering. In these respects it is like innumerable plays that come and go in the recurring seasons, but it has appeared at times as something with a deeper and firmer root. To this effect both the acting and the method of the staging have no doubt, contributed.

Somehow the "Marta of the Lowlands," seen at the Garden Theatre last night, seemed not quite the same play which a few years ago created such a favorable impression. The difference is not entirely due to the fact that Bertha Kalich now plays the title rôle. The whole atmosphere of the piece seems to have gone from it, the people no longer seem like types, instead of the simple, rugged thing it seemed it has become little better than the average melodrama. It is better to be sure, for when all is said and done, it must be admitted that Angel Guimera has gone to the soil for his characters. But a greater sensitiveness than was present last night is required to bring their genuineness into due prominence.

As the play is acted now it is still an interesting piece and one that compels a certain sort of sympathetic responsiveness. But only the names and the costumes are Spanish; the players from Mme. Kalich down are simply themselves. "They get away with it," as the saying goes, and that is about all.

Mme. Kalich, as is her habit, has some effective emotional moments. She knows how to suggest the picture of this sullen, dogged, tired, and heartsick victim of brutality. But her mannerisms grow worse each season, especially the habit of striking a contralto pitch and piling up passion in shrill trebles. The tender passage in which Marta lays her soul bare before the doddering old priest who has helped to make a martyr of Manalich she delivers with a very genuine suggestion of true feeling. But she resorts again and again to a hollow sepulchral method of intoning that is most unpleasant and unreal. Her acting, on the whole, is artificial, and her method is wholly bad. As for any suggestion that Marta is Spanish, one looks for it in vain.

This, however, is a common fault, though Mr. Kirkland does manage to create some sort of an atmospheric impression, and Miss Browning, as when she originally played the rôle, makes an appealing picture of little Nuri.

It is a curious fact, in connection with this revival, that Fernande Elliscu, one of the actresses who originally played Marta of the Lowlands, has left the English-speaking stage to play in Yiddish in Mme. Kalich's theatre on the Bowery, while Mme. Kalich herself continues her activities in the English theatres. Corona Riccorda, who created the rôle when the play was originally produced, has disappeared from public view.

SENATOR FRANCHOT DEAD.

Was Recovering from Operation, but Suffered a Relapse.

MONTREAL, March 24.—State Senator S. P. Franchot of New York, who was operated on here Sunday morning for paralysis, after showing encouraging symptoms up to last evening, suffered a relapse during the night and died at 6:45 this morning.

Stanislaus P. Franchot was born in Morris, Otsego County, N. Y., Jan. 30, 1851. He was graduated from Union College in 1871 with the degree of Civil Engineer. He was elected to the Senate as a Republican in 1906 and was serving his first term. Senator Franchot lived at Niagara Falls, where he was General Manager of a chemical manufacturing company.

John Good.

John Good, once President of the National Cordage Company, who received the title of Count of the Holy Roman Empire from Pope Leo XIII., died at his home, 71 New York Avenue, Brooklyn, on Monday. He invented many appliances for simplifying rope making. Royalties received for these inventions made him a multi-millionaire. He organized two big cordage companies and consolidated the trade. His last venture was the John Good Cordage Company, which went into the hands of a receiver. He leaves a widow, two sons, and a daughter. Funeral services will be held to-morrow morning in the Church of Our Lady of Victory, Throop Avenue and McDonough Street, Brooklyn. The Trustees of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank met at the bank yesterday and passed resolutions of condolence. They will attend the funeral in a body.

Capt. F. G. Mayne.

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—Capt. F. G. Mayne, formerly of the British Royal Engineers, and a nephew of Admiral Richard Mayne, died of heart disease here to-day. He was on his way from Morganton, N. C., where he was interested in a mining property, to England, and was to have sailed from New York on the Cedric on Thursday. As a mining engineer he was identified with Alfred Belt and others in the interests of Cecil Rhodes in South Africa. He was 49 years of age. His wife is in Morganton.

Henry B. Atwood.

Henry B. Atwood, a broker and member of the New York Stock Exchange, died yesterday at Orange, Va. He was wealthy and a member of a number of New York clubs. He had an office in Wall Street. He was about 35 years of age. He went South about three months ago with his wife and child, and at the time of his death was living on the plantation of his father-in-law. Mr. Atwood had a country place at Beechmont, New Rochelle, and was an enthusiastic yachtsman and automobilist.

Obituary Notes.

ISAAC P. POWERS, aged 82, President of the National Union Bank, died at Watertown, N. Y., yesterday.

DONALD DUNNET died Monday morning at his home, Avenue A and Eighty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, after a lingering illness. He leaves a widow, four daughters, and three sons.

MYRON WINSLOW TANDY died in Los Angeles, Cal., Sunday night of paralysis, after an illness of but a few days. He was Cashier for the American Express Company in Boston. He was 71 years old.

LOUIS MEYER, a retired wholesale butcher, died yesterday morning at his home in Newark, N. J., of heart disease. He was 88 years old and came to this country from Sulzberg, Baden, Germany, where he was born.

ABRAHAM BOGARDUS, who at one time was the best-known photographer in the United States, died at his home, 246 Madison Street, Brooklyn, on Sunday, aged 85 years. Mr. Bogardus retired from active business several years ago. He took the first photographs of Gen. Grant, Gen. Hancock, Samuel D. Morse, inventor of the telegraph; Horace Greeley, Henry Ward Beecher, and other equally well-known men.

JOHN EASTWOOD, President of the Eastwood Wire and Chemical Manufacturing Company of Belleville, N. J., died last night at St. Augustine, Fla., after an illness of only a few days. In 1843 he began business in Belleville in the manufacture of liquor used in setting colors in silk. In 1874 he went into the wire weaving business and his firm became one of the largest of its kind in the country. The body will be brought to Belleville for burial.

THOMAS S. NEEDHAM, 89 years old, who was for years connected with the piano trade in New York, died Monday morning at his home, 23 West Eighty-second Street. Only eleven days before his death he and Mrs. Needham celebrated their sixtieth, or diamond, wedding anniversary. Mr. Needham was one of the organizers of the Chamber Music Club, as well as of the Floating Church for Seamen, located near the Battery.

JOHN E. B. McINTYRE of 143 West Sixtieth Street died there yesterday. He was a member of the University Law School, and class historian; also Vice President of the Junior Holy Name Society, an ex-delegate of the Paulist Athletic Club, a teacher in St. Paul's Sunday school, a member of St. Paul's Temperance Guild, and ex-member of De Witt Clinton High School, Dwight School, and was confidential clerk for City Magistrate Charles G. F. Wahle. A mass of solemn requiem for him will be said in the Paulist Fathers' Church on Thursday morning.

TRADING IN HEAVY VOLUME

Favorable Message Expected from the President—Withdrawals of United States Deposits Heavy.

On a volume of transactions approximating 1,000,000 shares prices rose again yesterday, and before the advance had spent its force a halfscore of active shares had equaled or surpassed the highest prices touched by them for the year, which were those made during the so-called January rise. In the late afternoon profit-taking sales and operations for the fall conducted by speculators upon the theory that following a five-day advance there should come some reaction, led to recessions, but in practically no instance were these severe enough to more than nominally reduce earlier gains. The general level was left substantially above that of Monday night. Yesterday's further uplift was due in large measure to further consideration of the favorable developments of the previous day, including the victory for the publicity theory in the making of a report by the American Sugar Company; the Supreme Court's decision favoring the railroads in the Minnesota and South Carolina rate cases, and the introduction of amendments to the Sherman anti-trust law. Added to the continued effect of these matters was the influence derived from insistent reports that the President had prepared and would submit to Congress to-day, or certainly before the close of the present week, a message of unqualifiedly favorable tenor. Private dispatches received by different Wall Street houses purported to report almost verbatim much of the expected message, and on the Stock Exchange this information was received with enthusiasm, particularly that part of it which seemed to indicate a much milder Presidential attitude toward corporations. There was an appearance of artificiality, however, overlaying very much of the day's business, and it is a fair question if the desires of those in charge of the market advance have not for the moment, at least, outstripped the real improvement in conditions, great as this has been. Conservative railroad managers, for example, are not so convinced of an immediate return to fair earnings by Commissioner Lane's "prosperity figures," or the proposed amendments permitting traffic agreement, as they would be if they felt free to reduce wages as they have always been able to do before in times of severe depression. Similarly, bankers are still proceeding slowly in the investment of money, awaiting the effect upon investors' minds of the various measures which are now so loudly acclaimed.

Heavy payments to the Sub-Treasury involved in withdrawals of United States deposits have resulted in a loss by the banks to the Government institution of $4,702,000, and this will be increased by the additional payments made on the same account yesterday. With the completion of the present payments, the working balance of the Treasury will stand at above $50,000,000, which is the customary limit of safety, but the great excess of expenditures over current receipts has led to a belief among bankers that further recalls of deposits will be made before May 1. Another argument for continued withdrawals is to be found in the fact that arrangements must soon be made for the refunding of $63,000,000 of 3 per cent. bonds maturing on Aug. 1. Money rates here were unaffected by the payments to the Government, and discounts abroad were practically unchanged. All foreign markets were more or less interested in the irregularities disclosed in a large Paris banking house, and prices on the Paris Bourse were at one time very weak as a result of the arrest of the head of this concern.

OUTSIDE SECURITIES

Strength of Stock Exchange Reflected in Buoyant Market on the Curb.

BOOM IN COPPER STOCKS

Cumberland-Ely and Nevada Consolidated Move Up on Active Trading—Other Coppers Strong.

The strength of trading on the Stock Exchange was reflected yesterday in a buoyant Curb market, where transactions reached proportions which have not been exceeded since the busiest days of the first rise in January. Cumberland-Ely and Nevada Consolidated were put up with the news of the reorganization of the holding company, which it is expected will eventually absorb both of these properties and another concern with which the same interests are identified. The reported transactions in Cumberland-Ely reached 38,500, the price ranging between 8⅞ and 9⅝. The close was at 9⅛. Nevada Consolidated ranged from 12 to 13⅛, the close after reported transactions of 33,000 being at 13. Others of the coppers made fractional movements upward in sympathy with the rise of the leaders of the market, but Butte Coalition, which had been exceptionally strong on Monday, sagged off ½ point to 22¼.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New Month Activity and Heavy Trade—Closes 2 to 12 Points Down.

Cotton was unsettled and irregular yesterday, an early decline to new low records on the old crop months being followed by a rally led by new crop positions. Smaller offerings for long account after the first sharp break and talk of wet weather and delayed farm work were the steadying factors, with most buying for long account going into the later positions, of which October at one time was selling a point over May and July. The close was steady at a net decline of 2@12 points. Sales were estimated at 350,000 bales.

The opening was at a decline of 1@4 points. Toward the close prices eased off again under the prospect for clearing weather in the Eastern belt.

New crop months are showing increased activity and weather news should exert increasing influence.

The range of contract prices in the local market was as follows:

	High.	Low.	Close.	Mon. Close.
March	9.46	9.38	9.42@9.43	9.50
April	9.50	9.50	9.43@9.45	9.53
May	9.64	9.49	9.55@....	9.65
June	9.60	9.50	9.50@9.52	9.63
July	9.63	9.49	9.53@9.54	9.65
August	9.52	9.42	9.45@9.46	9.53
September	9.54	9.54	....	....
October	9.59	9.43	9.51@9.52	9.53
December	9.62	9.45	9.54@9.55	9.56

The local market for spot cotton was quiet, with prices 5 points lower, at 10.40 for middling upland and 10.65 for middling Gulf. Sales, 1,200 bales.

Southern spot markets were telegraphed as follows: Mobile easy, 1-16c lower at 10 5-16c, sales 100 bales; Savannah quiet, unchanged at 10⅛c, sales 410 bales; Norfolk dull, ¼c lower at 10½c, sales 20 bales; Augusta quiet and steady, ⅛c lower at 10⅝c, sales 882 bales; Memphis quiet, unchanged at 10¾c, sales 1,550 bales; New Orleans steady, unchanged at 10⅝c, sales 3,450 bales; Houston easy, ⅛c lower at 10½c, sales 669 bales.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Speculators' Views Conflict.

Superficially, at least, there was plenty of optimism in the speculative market yesterday. In the afternoon, when Union Pacific advanced sharply beyond 128, there was even evidence of enthusiasm among the professionals. But any one who took the trouble to find out just what the sentiment was, would have noted the presence of conservatism and a tendency on the part of men watching the market and alive to its possibilities to be prepared for recessions. These were not necessarily bears, and their own opinion was that so little public interest had been stimulated that it was unlikely that the upward movement could be contiuued for an indefinite period. On the other hand, the bullish traders retorted with the argument that, assuming the market was professional and manipulated, it was necessary that the advance should be carried sufficiently far to demonstrate that the public could not be brought into the market and to permit the selling of stocks accumulated for the purpose of improving the appearance of the market. Just at the moment this question of speculative sentiment is extremely interesting. The room trader is not always the closest observer of conditions or the best reader of the tape, and in the customers' rooms of brokers are traders who are keen analysts of both.

⁂

Occasionally the frequenters of the financial district—business men, brokers, and bankers—get ideas from outsiders, which either reveal to them conditions they had ignored or emphasize points in the situation which are well called to their attention. A case in point is an interview given by J. Ogden Armour on his return from New York to Chicago, in which he points out that the worst is over, and that sentiment and feeling here have changed for the better. Even now, if you ignore the little rally in the stock market and ask the ordinary man about conditions, he is likely to be pessimistic, but Mr. Armour says: "The contrast between the present and a month ago in New York, when I was there last, is striking. In February the average New Yorker not only saw blue, but felt blue. For him there was no prospect. Disheartened, discouraged, he dreaded the future. To-day he is hopeful. There are incipient evidences of optimism in Wall Street. Personally, I believe we have touched bottom in business, and from now on improvement will rule. Railroad earnings are bad, of course, but they should grow no worse. The West, actually and sentimentally, is in better condition than the East, and this may soon have a material effect on New York. All that we need is a good crop, and from current indications we shall have it."

Disposing of Unsalable Bonds.

Three or four weeks ago one of the directing influences in an institution which is liquidating its securities was charged with the work of selling a substantial lot of various kinds of securities at the best price possible. He disposed of the greater part of them at good prices, according to the market then prevailing, but bonds, including some notes, totaling less than $100,000, were of a character for which there was either a very wide market or no market at all. He exhausted all his resources, so far as securing all possible quotations, but could not find a bid that he felt warranted in accepting. The securities had to be sold, however, and finally he bought in the bonds through a friend at the highest offering price shown by the quotations he had received. These bonds and notes have been in the market since, but he admitted yesterday that, while the bid price had advanced in some instances, bonds were still offered lower than the price at which he had purchased any of the securities. He is an optimist, however, and fully expects to get his money back with interest. Some of his confrères told him frankly that he was foolish, but he had the satisfaction, at least, of clearing up the bonds allotted to him to be sold.

⁂

Is Liquidation Completed!

It seems absurd at this late day to suggest that there is any liquidation still to be completed, but bankers do not admit that all the liquidation is over. At the same time, however, they take the ground that whatever remains to be done is not likely to be of material import to the market. Presumably bankers should be informed on this particular topic, and without question they must know of loans that have been carried over to give a chance for the owner of the securities to save something from the wreck. It is curious to note that many brokers are daily asked about this particular subject. Apparently there are traders who believe that not only has liquidation not been completed but that the advance in the market, if continued for a little while longer, will bring about such liquidation. Brokers take the position, which is inspired by their banking friends undoubtedly, that this is no factor in the market at all. Brokers say also that one good thing in the present market is the carrying over from panic days of the habit of customers carrying more margin on their accounts than the orthodox ten points. In some cases brokers have continued the rule exacting fifteen points or twenty points' margin, but this is at least unusual.

⁂

Federal Decision and Gas.

Consolidated Gas advanced sharply yesterday and the ready explanation was that it reflected the belief that the decisions of the Supreme Court yesterday were entirely favorable to the company so far as the legislation in this State is concerned. Apparently many good traders held this view, but, of course, a six-point advance in Consolidated Gas is nothing particularly startling. The stock usually moves, whenever activity develops, in a wide range, and fluctuations of a few points mean very little. Sugar did not develop any pyrotechnics, and interest in the stock appeared to wane a little as the analysis of the statement issued on a preceding day became more widely known. One query heard was to this effect: Assuming the statement issued was the result of consistent work since the annual meeting, how long would it take to get out a statement such as the Steel Corporation issues? There was no disposition to quarrel with the figures themselves, but Sugar has been such a mystery for years that every one was greedy for a detailed account of its finances and its mechanism.

METAL MARKET REPORTS.

A further advance of from ⅛ to ¼ cent per pound was made in all grades of copper on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday. In the London market spot closed at £60 12s 6d and futures at £61 per ton, advances from Monday's prices of £1 2s 6d for both. Pig tin closed strong at a gain of £2 5s for spot and £2 12s for futures, at £143 and £141 15s respectively. Lead was strong at an advance of 8s 9d, to £14 5s. Spelter was unchanged at £21 2s 6d. Iron warrants were strong at 51s for standard foundry and 52s 4½d for Middlesborough.

Closing bid and asked prices of copper and other metals on the New York Metal Exchange yesterday for spot delivery compare as follows with those of the previous day:

CARING FOR ERIE NOTES.

Proposal to Extend Them with a Bond Convertible Privilege.

The holders of Erie Railroad notes were still in the dark yesterday regarding the provision which will be made for the notes which fall due April 8. While the road's bankers would not discuss the plans under consideration, the Street heard that in connection with the proposal for their extension an opportunity might be offered to get for these extended notes when they mature the equivalent of par in general lien bonds of the Erie Railroad, already in the road's treasury, or which may be brought into the treasury under the provisions of the mortgage.

Despite the uncertainty, confidence was expressed yesterday that the notes would be provided for. The quotation for them at the close of the market yesterday was 93½ bid, offered at 95.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—Late months showed leading strength all day yesterday on less favorable crop news from the Southwest, with apprehensions of continued drought. Demand for cash wheat was also more active in Minneapolis, where the stock has increased 175,000 bushels in the last three days. Export trade included ten loads of No. 2 red and five loads of Spring at outports and two loads in New York. Advances abroad included 10 points at Paris, ⅛c at Berlin, and ⅞@1⅛c at Budapest. Liverpool closed ½d net lower. The interior movement was quite liberal, while seaboard clearances were all flour, equivalent to 201,000 bushels. Cash wheat in New York closed as follows: No. 2 red, $1.01, elevator, and $1.02, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Duluth, $1.14⅛, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.12⅛, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—There was general buying from the start on reports of lighter country offerings and a late report of wet weather in the Argentine, impeding harvest. Liverpool was ⅜d higher and interior receipts 676,000 bushels, compared with 882,000 bushels last year. No. 2 corn was quoted 76c, elevator, and 70c, free on board, afloat; other grades nominal.

BANKING DEPARTMENT.

NEW YORK, N. Y., March 21, 1908.

TO THE DEPOSITORS OF THE KNICKERBOCKER TRUST COMPANY:

In view of the resumption of business by the Knickerbocker Trust Company, I deem it proper to make the following suggestions:

In addition to the legal reserve, there is more than sufficient cash to meet all payments required by the plan of resumption. There are eighteen thousand depositors with whom business relations will again be established. The company has four banking offices.

The physical impossibility of accommodating more than a limited number of depositors is obvious. I therefore urge that such depositors as can conveniently do so will postpone calling at the company's offices until the routine of business has been re-established.

Checks may be drawn against balances with the Company in the usual manner.

Respectfully yours,

CLARK WILLIAMS,
Superintendent of Banks.

FAIR FINANCE 2

To Every Man and Woman With Savings:

Up to four years ago the people of America invested their savings in Wall Street or in stocks created in, or controlled by, Wall Street. They bought what the Captains of Finance told them to buy. They were not equipped to know the worth of what they bought. The result: The people annually brought to Wall Street millions of their savings and—left them there. A further result: A few score of men became possessed of fabulous wealth.

During the past four years the people have been taught "finance." They withdrew their savings from Wall Street. A result: Wall Street had the stocks, the people the money. A further result. A deadlock between Wall Street and the people. This deadlock benefited no one—if continued it meant death to Wall Street, disaster to the people. That this deadlock would be broken was inevitable.

Wall Street has tried its every expedient to bring back the people with their millions of savings. The people would not come.

At the beginning of the tussle between Wall Street and the people I predicted the outcome—that Wall Street would be compelled to guarantee the people a square deal for the future.

After every effort had been exhausted to bring the savings of the people into the stocks of the prosperous industries of the people, and after a violent panic had resulted, because the people refused to further entrust their savings to Wall Street until it reformed its methods of dealing with the people, some of the great Captains of Finance asked my advice, and, upon receiving it, my co-operation.

I said to the Captains of Finance: "The people have been educated to the old game. They will not again, blindfolded, send their hard-earned savings into your market place. If the people will not buy their flour, their sugar or their woolens without first being shown they contain no chalk, no sand, no shoddy, why should they buy grossly adulterated stocks or good stocks at grossly manipulated prices? They have awakened to the fact that they have been buying stocks, the purity and legitimacy of the price of which should be of far greater import to them than the quality of their food and clothing, without any real knowledge of their construction, and consequently of their worth." The answer was: "Times have changed. We recognize the change. Wall Street must have the people's piled-up savings; Wall Street has good goods to give the people in exchange for their savings. If we cannot trade with the people upon our terms we must upon theirs.

"How can we get to them with our goods in a way which will convince them it is safe, best for themselves, to trade?"

My answer was: "Publicity. There is no reason why the old-fashioned horse-sense methods by which the people do all their other business should not be applied to their investments and speculations. From now on display your stocks to them as the merchants do their soaps, shoes and clothing. Tell them what they are, tell them honestly. Submit testers for your statements and—give them a square deal." Then I agreed to act as salesman, but upon my terms, which were that I be first actually shown the value of the goods to be offered, and in a way that would enable me to prove the values to the people so that they, too, could actually know them.

My condition that I be allowed to "paw over" the goods of "the Street" was conceded, and I quickly found enough rare good ones for a test. I thereupon asked that the public be given such bargains on the first selected lots that the people would fall over themselves to buy when they were offered. The result:

There will be offered to the investors of America and Europe:

First—Millions of gold.

Second—Scores of millions of copper.

Third—Hundreds of millions of (to be named later).

Of offers 2 and 3 I will not now treat, that is, not until after the First has been presented and bought.

"Fair Finance 3," tomorrow, will treat in detail of Gold. I will touch upon it here, with the following perhaps unusual statement:

Men and corporations of great wealth and business responsibility have been induced to contribute 20 per cent. of one of their most important investments to the public at 50 per cent. of its actual sure worth, or 25 per cent. of its perhaps worth, for the purpose of proving to the public, in an unmistakable way, that from now on the people are to get a square deal in American finance.

That this offer is a most extraordinary one, and possible only because of the remarkable conditions which surround finance at this time, can be seen in the light of the following:

In 38 active years in finance, I have never known of an investment which combined safety—government bond safety—with unusual dividends or unusual profits.

In that time I have never known of any investment where large dividends, were combined with sufficient safety, to justify an honest man who really knew finance in advising, say a woman of ordinary means, to exchange her government bonds or savings bank deposits for it.

In that time I have never known a sure, safe investment stock, which could be bought at even 60 per cent. of its investment return worth, which was allowed by the Captains of Finance, to get by them to the public.

In this Gold case, all the above heretofore unmet with conditions surround and control the investment which will be offered.

This remarkable investment which is to be offered to the people, is really free from any hazard. It could have been sold at any time during the past two years, and can be sold now to Wall Street itself at much more than the price at which it is to be offered to the public. It is as safe as any investment can be. It represents one of the greatest successes of its present owners, who are in the very front rank of the world's greatest Captains of Industry.

The enterprise represents an expenditure of probably the largest amount of capital, $12,000,000, and time, three years and successful effort ever expended by one group of great capitalists before allowing the public to participate.

It has been impossible, until these owners consented to this offer to the public, for anyone, public or capitalists, to secure any direct share in this property. The other four-fifths of the property, amounting to $14,000,000, which is retained by the owners, cannot be bought, even now, by the public or anyone at even double the price at which the public are to be allowed to come in on this one-fifth.

In other words, in my chapter to-morrow I will demonstrate absolutely, that this remarkable offer is really what it appears upon its face to be—an opportunity for the people to accumulate millions, and that this opportunity is given to them solely for the purpose of most successfully inaugurating a new system of finance.

NEW RAILWAY LAWS HURT N. Y. CENTRAL

President Newman Says They Have Been One of the Causes of the Depression.

LOSS IN 1907 EARNINGS

Annual Report Shows Increased Business Was Done at Higher Cost in Labor and Materials.

The report of the New York Central for 1907, issued yesterday, reflects the same tendencies which appear in the reports of nearly all roads for 1907, increased gross earnings reflecting business activity, with decreases in net earnings due to higher wages, higher cost of materials, and new legislative requirements.

The Central's gross earnings, the final figures show, increased $6,279,290, to $98,860,059, while its net earnings decreased $3,262,087, to $22,565,725. The surplus for the year was $365,908, compared with $328,000 shown by the preliminary figures, but this was reduced to $66,538 by charging off the discount on the $25,000,000 of notes sold during the year along with certain uncollectible items.

Of the effect on the position of the railroads of recently enacted legislation, President W. H. Newman says:

> The tendency to regulate railroads and the details of their business has been shown in many Federal and State laws, either enacted or proposed. The Inter-State Commerce Commission and the Public Service Commissions, which have been established in a number of States, have been given indefinite and almost arbitrary power. Hours of labor have been shortened by law, rates of fare have been reduced, liability for accidents has been increased, and in ways too numerous to mention burdens have been placed on railroad companies which other corporations are not subjected to, and their ability to bear them has been lessened.
>
> While the enactment of just and equal laws is of the highest importance to railroads, much of the recent legislation has not been preceded by intelligent study or investigation, and has been passed without reference to practical results. Uncertainty as to the effect of these new laws and doubt as to how far regulation and special legislation as to railroads is to be carried, have without question been the causes which have unsettled the value of securities and helped to bring on the present period of depression.

The increase in freight business during the year was due largely to a much heavier movement of coal, while the gain in passenger earnings, the report states, was due solely to larger interchange business, the commutation business having continued to fall off.

Contracts were entered into during the year with both the Pullman Company and the Western Union Telegraph Company for twenty-five years, the former running from Jan. 1, 1905, and the latter from Jan. 1, 1906. "These contracts," the report says, "supersede all prior agreements with these companies, and are more favorable in their terms to the railroad company."

The amount of the $30,000,000 New York Central lines equipment bonds issued last January, which represented purchases of equipment for the New York Central proper, was $13,500,000. In addition the Central purchased $5,845,252 of the equipment bonds issued by its subsidiary lines. The earnings from the transportation of mails decreased $232,032, the compensation having been decreased during the year.

GREENE-CANANEA'S REPORT.

Holding Company Has Acquired Nearly All of the Greene Co.'s Stock.

The first annual report of the Greene-Cananea Copper Company for the year ended Dec. 31 shows receipts of $125,012 and disbursements of $113,084. The company has an authorized capital of $60,000,000 in $20 par shares. Of this capital $50,000,000 was authorized to be issued to acquire the outstanding capital stock of the Greene Consolidated Copper Company and the Cananea Central Copper Company.

The report states that 925,038 shares of the Greene Consolidated's 1,000,000 shares have been acquired in exchange and 522,272 shares of the 600,000 shares of the Cananea Central. The exchange is still going on and the holding company expects to eventually acquire the full outstanding issues of its subsidiaries.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

Happenings of a Day in London, Paris, and Berlin.

LONDON, March 24.—Money was in increased demand on the market to-day for settlement and month-end requirements. Discounts were firm on gold inquiry from the Continent.

On the Stock Exchange the nearness of the settlement restricted business, which was moderate so far as British shares were concerned, consols and a few home rails being the principal securities traded in. Foreigners maintained their recent strength, and Japanese showed further improvement. Copper shares were strong on the rise in the price of metal, the favorable outlook also inducing increased support.

Americans were firm in the forenoon on encouraging news from Wall Street. Indications of broadening business caused fair buying, and prices went over parity. Later New York sent a strong opening, accompanied by good buying orders, especially for Canadian Pacific, and prices made further advances. The market closed strong.

Bar silver steady at 25 9-16d per ounce. Money, 2¾@3 per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2¾@2⅞ per cent.; for three months' bills, 2¾ per cent.

PARIS, March 24.—Trading on the Bourse to-day opened weak on the news of the arrest of Henri Rochette on swindling charges. The close, however, was firm.

Three per cent. rentes, 96f 90c for the account.

Exchange on London, 25f 14½c for checks.

BERLIN, March 24.—Prices on the Boerse to-day were firm on the expectation of a more favorable money market and good reports from the United States.

METAL EXCHANGE ATTACKED.

James E. Pope Says Quoted Prices of Copper Are Not Fair.

In the contest for the overthrow of the present management of the New York Metal Exchange, James E. Pope of the Pope Metals Company has issued an open letter complaining of the alleged decadence of the Metal Exchange as an actual market for copper and other metals. He scores President Robert M. Thompson and other officials of the Exchange for their alleged neglect of its affairs.

Much of his attack on the Exchange's management is devoted to criticism of the quoted prices of copper and other metals. He points out that not a few copper-producing interests have made long-term contracts with smelters for the refining and sale of their copper at prices based on the official quotations of the Exchange, and that this is one reason that absolute fairness in the official quotations should be maintained.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

At the annual meeting of the International Salt Company M. B. Fuller, the retiring Director, was re-elected.

A meeting of the Directors of the American Locomotive Company, which was to have taken action yesterday on the preferred and common stock dividend, was postponed to this morning for lack of a quorum.

The American Can Company has acquired an interest in the Sanitary Can Company, which will hereafter maintain its New York headquarters at the Fourteenth Street offices of the American Can Company.

The Calumet & Arizona Mining Company has declared a quarterly dividend of $1 a share. The dividend was due for declaration in February, but was postponed a month. The last previous dividend was $1.50 a share. A year ago it was $5.

The Sheriff received yesterday an attachment for $14,250 against the Manhattan Cobalt, Limited, a Maine corporation, whose offices are at 25 Broad Street, in favor of Martha A. Pardee, on ten notes of the corporation, of which eight were made on Nov. 20, 1907, and two in January, 1908, payable to Hugo Von Hagen, a Director, which were delivered to the plaintiff. The Sheriff levied on 85,000 shares of stock of the company and 84,930 shares of stock of the Manhattan Cobalt Mining Company of Quebec.

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING CO.

Earnings Better for Last 11 Months—Baking Powder Trust Rivalry.

At the annual meeting of the Corn Products Refining Company yesterday a statement was submitted comparing operations for the eleven months ended Jan. 31 with the twelve months ended Feb. 28, 1907. Gross earnings for the eleven months totaled $1,972,873, compared with $1,737,794 for the previous twelve months. Net earnings for the eleven-month period were $1,280,016, compared with $1,485,708 in the preceding twelve months.

In response to an inquiry made by one of the stockholders about the entrance of the Royal Baking Powder Company into competition in the manufacture of glucose, Chairman Frank H. Hall said that the plant purchased by the Baking Powder Trust had first been offered to the Corn Products Refining Company and had been refused. He said the company did not anticipate much competition from that source, and predicted that the company would soon pay dividends on its common stock.

The annual meeting of the Corn Products Company, which was taken over by the refining company, was held at the same time, and the following new Directors were elected: George S. Mahana, R. P. Walden, R. H. Strahan, and William D. Post, succeeding William J. Calhoun, Joy Morton, Charles L. Glass, and T. B. Wagner.

RISE IN WESTINGHOUSE STOCK

Shares Advance 7¼ Points on Reports of Early Readjustment.

The stock of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company advanced 7¼ points yesterday to 47½, and the rise was accompanied by reports of favorable progress in the readjustment of the company's finances.

President George Westinghouse has been in New York since last Saturday, and has had several conferences with the banking interests which are engaged in the readjustment of his affairs. A representative of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company said yesterday that there had been no immediate development which would account for the rise in the stock.

STEAM PUMP CO. GAINS.

Shipments and Collections Show a Great Improvement in Last Year.

Advance estimates of the International Steam Pump Company's fiscal year, which ends March 31, shows that in little more than eleven months which have elapsed since the last report, the shipments totaled $9,750,000, an increase of over $1,500,000 compared with the same period of the previous year. Collections during the same period reached nearly $10,200,000, an increase of practically $1,200,000. A total decrease was made in the company's floating indebtedness of more than $1,100,000.

The company has on hand orders amounting to nearly $5,000,000, equal to nearly half of the business done in the year about closing.

TRADING IN BALTIMORE.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, March 24.—Seaboard Air Line issues were the leaders in a strong and active local market to-day, with a generally better feeling evident. Seaboard common advanced ⅜, the second preferred ⅝, and the 4s moved up 2⅜. Atlantic Coast Line securities shared in the improvement. A. C. L. of Connecticut advanced 7½. Georgia & Alabama gained 3 points. United Railways issues were firmer, and Western Maryland Railway 4s were marked up 1¼, and the stocks were also firmer.

To Pass on New York Brake Bonds.

A special meeting of the stockholders of the New York Air Brake Company to pass upon the proposed $3,000,000 6 per cent. bond issue has been called to meet at Jersey City on April 8. According to the plan the stockholders of record of April 15 will be given subscription privileges at the rate of 80 per cent. of their holdings of stock, and the subscription price for each $1,000 bond is to be $900. The bonds will be dated May 1, 1908, and payments will be made in three subscriptions of 33 1-3 per cent. each, extending between April 15 and June 25.

Paper Directors to Meet April 1.

Talk of a possible cut in the preferred stock dividend of the International Paper Company for this quarter has given interest to the announcement that the Directors would meet on April 1 to take action on the dividend. An official of the company was quoted as saying yesterday that while no recommendation has been made to the Directors by the Executive Committee it is quite probable that the stock will be put upon a 4 instead of a 6 per cent. basis.

BUSINESS TROUBLES

JOHN RUDD.—Elihu Root, Jr., son of the Secretary of State, has been appointed receiver in bankruptcy for John Rudd, grocer, 2,815 Eighth Avenue and 1,768 Amsterdam Avenue, by Judge Holt. Assets are estimated at $2,000.

ALEXANDER BROTHERS. — Herbert K. Stockton has been appointed receiver in bankruptcy for Alexander Brothers, wholesale tobacco, 212 Pearl Street, by Judge Holt; bond $2,500. Assets are estimated at $5,000, of which stock is $3,000 and accounts $2,000.

RICHARD KLEITHERMES.—Richard Kleithermes, manufacturer of briarwood pipes, &c., at Spring Valley, has filed a petition in bankruptcy here, with liabilities of $14,975 and nominal assets of $5,600, consisting of stock, $600; machinery, $2,500, and real estate, $2,500, mortgaged for $2,000. Among the creditors are Marsh S. Cropsey, Nanuet, $5,171, partly secured; William Demuth & Co., $1,800, partly secured, and E. & H. Levy, $3,960. He owes $1,066 for wages. He has been in business about six years.

COOPER & LEVIN.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Jacob Cooper and Harry Levin, composing the firm of Cooper & Levin, manufacturers of cloaks, 50 West Fifteenth Street, by these creditors: Joseph Lessler, $208; Tobias Keen, $355, and the Imperial Braid Company, $30. It was alleged that they are insolvent, made preferential payments, and removed a large part of their stock. They began business June 1, 1907. NOT ASTONISHING

Many Inquiries from a Small Advertisement in The Times.

Otomobill Hat Pin Company,
738 Broadway, City.

To The New York Times:

The results from our small advertisement in Friday's issue of The New York Times surprised us beyond measure, for it was most astonishing that one little advertisement should have brought so many inquiries.

In making up our permanent list of mediums in which to advertise the Otomobill Hat Pin, we shall certainly give The New York Times very careful consideration.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, March 24.—A ridge of high pressure, with unseasonably low temperatures, extends from Minnesota to Western Ontario. Elsewhere low pressure prevails, with a marked disturbance in the Far Northwest.

Heavy rains continued in the South.

As a rule temperatures are below the seasonal average over the northern half of the country and above over the southern.

The eastward drift of the Northwest disturbance will prevent settled weather conditions during the next two or three days.

Winds along the New England Coast will be fresh northwest to north; Middle Atlantic Coast, light to fresh north; South Atlantic Coast, light to fresh and variable.

Steamships departing Wednesday for European ports will have light to fresh northwest to north winds, with fair, colder weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECAST FOR TO-DAY AND THURSDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Fair, somewhat colder Wednesday. Thursday, fair; light to fresh north to northeast winds.

New England — Fair, colder Wednesday. Thursday, fair; fresh north to northeast winds.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1907.	1908.		1907.	1908.
3 A. M.	48	48	4 P. M.	40	57
6 A. M.	46	48	6 P. M.	40	56
9 A. M.	45	49	9 P. M.	38	53
12 M	42	55	12 P. M.	37	48

This thermometer is 108 feet above the street level. The average temperature yesterday was 52; for the corresponding date last year it was 44; average on the corresponding date for the last thirty-three years, 40.

The temperature at 8 A. M. yesterday was 48; at 8 P. M. it was 54. Maximum temperature, 58 degrees at 3 P. M.; minimum, 46 degrees at 12:20 A. M. Humidity, 87 per cent. at 8 A. M.; 47 per cent. at 8 P. M.

REFEREES' NOTICES.

SUPREME COURT, COUNTY OF NEW YORK.—GUARDIAN TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, Plaintiff, against PEERLESS BRICK COMPANY and others, Defendants.

In pursuance of a judgment of foreclosure and sale, duly made and entered in the above entitled action, and bearing date the 25th day of February, 1908, I, the undersigned, the referee in said judgment named, will sell at public auction at the Exchange Salesroom, Nos. 14-16 Vesey Street, in the Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the 2d day of April, 1908, at 12 o'clock noon on that day, by Joseph P. Day, auctioneer, the premises directed by said judgment to be sold and therein described as follows:

All those certain lots, pieces or parcels of land situate, lying, or being in the Borough of Manhattan, City, County, and State of New York, bounded and described as follows:

"Beginning on the northerly side of 118th Street, distant four hundred ninety-eight (498) feet easterly from the northeasterly corner of Pleasant Avenue (formerly Avenue A) and 118th Street; and running thence northerly, parallel with Pleasant Avenue, two hundred one (201) feet ten (10) inches to the southerly side of 119th Street; thence easterly, along the southerly side of 119th Street, twenty-five (25) feet; thence southerly, parallel with Pleasant Avenue, one hundred (100) feet eleven (11) inches to the centre line of the block; thence easterly along the same, continued into the Harlem River, two hundred eighty-six (286) feet one (1) inch, more or less, to the bulkhead or pier line as now established by law; thence southerly, along the same, one hundred and six (106) feet ten (10) inches, more or less, to the intersection thereof with the northerly side of 118th Street, continued into the Harlem River; and thence westerly, along the northerly side of 118th Street, three hundred forty-six (346) feet two (2) inches, more or less, to the point and place of beginning.

"Together with all the right, title, and interest which the Peerless Brick Company, a domestic corporation, on May 31, 1904, had a right to convey in and to the land under the water of the Harlem River, conveyed by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New York, by grant dated January 19th, 1871, and recorded in the Register's Office of the City and County of New York, in Liber 1,170 of Deeds, Page 89, January 21st, 1871, subject to the covenants and conditions contained in said grant.

"Also the structure of whatever nature or description now upon said property and all other structures, buildings, and wharfs erected thereon, all machinery or chattels owned by the Peerless Brick Company and placed thereon, including all rights, privileges, and franchises pertaining to the business conducted or carried on by the Peerless Brick Company at the above described premises, together with all the personal property, rights, and privileges that may have been acquired by the company and used on the above described premises and now owned by it;

"Together with the appurtenances and all the estate and rights of the Peerless Brick Company in and to the said premises."

BANKRUPTCY NOTICES.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT, SOUTHern District of New York.—In the matter of MAX KAPELL, HARRY B. KAPELL, and MORRIS D. COHEN, individually and as members of the firm of EMPIRE BINDING COMPANY.—Alleged Bankrupts.

It appearing to my satisfaction by the affidavit of Albert Falck, verified the 14th day of March, 1908, that a petition was filed herein on the 25th day of February, 1908, that Max Kapell, Harry B. Kapell, and Morris D. Cohen, individually and as members of the firm of Empire Binding Company, be adjudicated bankrupts and that a subpoena be issued directed to the said Max Kapell, Harry B. Kapell, and Morris D. Cohen, which said subpoena was duly issued out of this court to a Marshal in and for the Southern District of New York, and said Marshal having made his return that the said Max Kapell and Harry B. Kapell have been duly served and that he was unable to serve said subpoena on Morris D. Cohen, one of the bankrupts, and that he will be unable to serve the said Morris D. Cohen; and

It appearing to my satisfaction that diligent efforts have been made since to ascertain the whereabouts of the said Morris D. Cohen, and that the said Morris D. Cohen cannot be found;

Now, on motion of Millard H. Ellison, attorney for Albert Falck, the receiver herein, it is Ordered that the said Morris D. Cohen appear, plead, answer, or demur on or before the 4th day of April, 1908, and in case of his failure to appear, plead, answer, or demur, adjudication shall be made according to the prayer in said petition; and it is Further ordered that this order be published in The New York Times once a week for two consecutive weeks, said publication to commence not later than the 18th day of March, 1908, and that a copy of this order and said petition be mailed to the said Morris D. Cohen at his last known place of abode on or before the date of the first publication.

Dated New York, March 16th, 1908.

GEORGE C. HOLT, D. J.

WAS NOT JACKSON'S GO-BETWEEN, HE SAYS

Herbert P. Auerbach Flatly Denies Charge Made by Banker Montgomery.

VIDAVER HEARING GOES ON

Lawyer Attempts to Discredit ex-Deputy Attorney General's Accuser in Court.

After a short examination of Frederick Searing, legal adviser of William R. Montgomery, ex-President of the Hamilton Bank, and after Arthur C. Palmer, counsel for Nathan Vidaver, had questioned Mr. Montgomery in regard to some banking transactions in Canada, Herbert P. Auerbach, investigator for Attorney General Jackson, was called to the stand in the Tombs Court yesterday at the continuation of the examination into the extortion charges against Nathan Vidaver.

Auerbach told Assistant District Attorney Kresel that he was the publisher of a Buffalo newspaper, and had been in the employ of Attorney General Jackson since last May. He said he had never been admitted to the bar, and that his work under Mr. Jackson was that of a special investigator.

The witness had known Vidaver for about two years, but not until after the failure of the Hamilton Bank had his relations been other than social. About that time, he said, Vidaver came to him, spoke of the reopening of the bank, and asked him how he could find the Attorney General. He spoke of some law firm in this connection. Auerbach thought it was House, Grossman & Vorhaus.

Auerbach admitted that he had talked once or twice about the Vidaver case with the Attorney General after the arrest. Mr. Kresel, referring to the allegation that Grossman had spoken of him as a go-between according to Mr. Montgomery's affidavit, asked him if he knew what was meant by go-between.

"Of course I know what a go-between is," said Auerbach, "but though Montgomery has sworn to it I don't know that Grossman or Vidaver or any one else said it. I do know that any one acquainted with me or with the Attorney General will say that it is false. There is absolutely no truth in any such statement."

When Mr. Searing took the stand Mr. Palmer brought out the fact that he was intimate with Mr. Montgomery and had been his legal adviser since the closing of the Hamilton Bank. The witness described the meeting between himself, Montgomery, and Grossman when the proposed payment of money to Vidaver to silence the press was discussed. He said:

"I advised him not to consider it, as I thought it would have no effect, and at any rate not to pay anything until the Attorney General delivered the goods."

Mr. Searing said that Mr. Montgomery had spoken to him about the proposed trapping of Vidaver by getting him to accept the money in the presence of a detective, and that he strongly advised against it.

Mr. Montgomery was called to the stand, and Mr. Palmer reviewed some of his previous testimony in regard to the telephone conversation with Mr. Grossman before the luncheon in the Astor House, at which Vidaver was arrested after accepting $500 in marked bills.

Mr. Palmer spoke of a bank in Canada of which Mr. Montgomery was at one time manager. He then read a long list of names and asked:

"Did you not, after making certain loans, get these men to indorse notes so as to cover up the loans, and didn't you date back some of the notes?"

Mr. Montgomery denied having done so.

"Were you not discharged from the management of this bank for making improper loans?"

"The bank never lost a cent on any of my loans," said Mr. Montgomery. "I was never dismissed from the bank, and at the next meeting here I will present letters from the bank officials and from others in Canada speaking in the highest way of my services there."

The hearing will be continued to-day.

SAYS GOMPERS IS WRONG.

Post Denies That Littlefield Is Going to Citizens' Industrial Association.

Special to The New York Times.

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., March 24.—In an interview to-night C. W. Post, President of the National Citizens' Industrial Association, speaking of the press reports from Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, which intimated that Congressman Littlefield had resigned with the purpose of taking charge of the legal department of the National Citizens' Industrial Association, said:

"There is not one word of truth in the assertion. It is one of the many acts of the labor leaders, who distort facts and make misstatements in order to create a false impression regarding faithful, honest, and capable public men."

WORKMAN CO-HEIR TO $500,000

Aged Connecticut Stone Cutter Is to Sail for Limerick, Ireland.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., March 24.—Richard Gleason, aged 70, a poor stonecutter, living with his married daughter on Birdsall Street, plans to take the rest of his life easy, having been notified to-day from Limerick, Ireland, that by the death of his first cousin, Miss Sarah Gleason, he was one of two heirs to her estate valued at upward of $500,000.

Gleason has six children. He will go to New York and take passage for Ireland. Gleason says he knew his cousin was rich, but supposed that she would leave her fortune to charity.

HOOKER WILL TRIAL GOES ON.

Daughter Testifies Her Mother Asked Spirits for Hair Restorer.

HARTFORD, Conn., March 24.—The contest over the will of Mrs. Isabella Beecher Hooker, sister of Henry Ward Beecher, by which her granddaughter, Mrs. Kate Burton Powers, was practically disinherited, was resumed in the Superior Court to-day. Mrs. Alice Hooker Day of New York, daughter of the testatrix, expressed her satisfaction with the manner in which her mother disposed of her property.

Questioned regarding the influence of spirits on her mother, the witness was unable definitely to gauge it. She characterized alleged mediumistic revelations as pure mind reading. She knew that her mother asked the spirit of some friend to recommend a hair restorer, adding: "She did not get it."

OFFICER GUILTY OF CRUELTY.

Captain Made Soldier Parade at Barracks with "Bad Boy" Placard.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—Capt. Clark D. Dudley of the Fourteenth Cavalry, at Boisé Barracks, Idaho, has been convicted by court-martial of the charge of cruelty in having compelled a young soldier to parade up and down the porch of the barracks for three hours wearing on his back a placard with the words "Bad Boy."

Capt. Dudley was sentenced to be confined within the limits of his post for four months.

Offers $20,000 for McKinley Home.

CANTON, Ohio, March 24.—Counsel for Miss Helen McKinley of Cleveland, sister of the late President, has elected to take under the appraisement the McKinley homestead at the appraised value of $20,000. By order of court on petition of James McKinley and others, appraisers had been named to fix a value on the property with a view to offering the home at public sale. Attorneys state that any heir has a right to elect to take the property.

The home of Hart, Schaffner & Marx clothes

No season ever brought to men so many really attractive, really new clothes features as this of 1908.

Spring overcoats, for example, always allow a certain liberty of cut—and gaiety of fabric.

Spring overcoats here of smart, unusual patterns; herringbones and self stripes.

Spring overcoats—in short—with all the style points that go to make just the difference between true fashion distinction and the merely freakish.

Come in and look them over.

IF YOU SEE IT IN THE SUN IT'S SO;

Bowring, in his "Kingdom and People of Siam," tells of a Siamese play in which the naive and childish desire for realism went so far that after the actors had left the stage the actresses undressed and took their bath. In the play they were said to be alone, so there was no reason to be ashamed of their nudity. In our more sophisticated Occidental civilization women undress on the stage for not quite the same reason. They are influenced not by the fact that the actors have departed but that the audience has arrived! It's a great thing, evolution.
